HOOVER SPURS CHANGE IN BASE OF REDISCOUNT

PROGRAM DESIGNED TO OFFSET HOARDING

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN

Leaders of both parties in the House and Senate pledged their support yesterday to immediate action on a bill to broaden the base of rediscount in the Federal Reserve System.

The projected bill, in the view of its principal advocates, will serve to check the current distressing deflation of bank credit, to release a considerable volume of presently sterile gold in the national banking system, and, if necessary, to pave the way for an increase in circulating currency to offset hoarded dollars.

As outlined last night in a formal joint statement issued by Senators Walcott and Glass and Representatives Steagall and Strong, the project represents the most far-reaching modification of the national banking practice since the establishment of the Federal Reserve System.

To Speed Legislation.

Under an agreement reached yesterday in two White House conferences, identic bills will be introduced in both Houses of Congress today, and efforts will be made to complete legislative action on the plan within ten days.

As now contemplated, the broader discount base will be accepted by all parties as an emergency measure, for one year only. By vesting the Federal Reserve Board with greatly increased discretionary authority on rediscount eligibility, the new arrangement promises to establish for the first time in United States history effective central bank checks upon both inflation and deflation of money and credit.

On the whole, the bill embodies the plan advocated by President Hoover during the last two years. Senator Glass, of Virginia, will sponsor the measure in the Senate.

Would Release Vast Credits.

The first result of the proposed arrangement will be to assure every member bank in the Federal Reserve System of the complete liquidity, if advisable, of its entire investment portfolio. This, it is anticipated, will at once release vast stores of potential bank credits now frozen by the determination of many bankers to maintain abnormally large currency reserves.

By substituting sound member-bank assets for the excess gold reserves now held against the greatly expanded Federal Reserve note circulation, the bill also will release for normal banking credit service nearly $1,000,000,000 of the reserve system's free gold.

This provision strikes at the heart of the prevailing credit stringency, which arises out of the fact that in many centers gold reserves against currency in circulation have been running as high recently as 75 or 80 per cent, against the 40 per cent required by law.

Due to Hoarding.

These excessive gold reserves have been necessitated by the sharp falling off—due to hoarding—in the rediscount paper eligible for reserve against Federal Reserve notes.

Potentially, the new law will substitute sound bank assets for this excess gold, thereby releasing a vast amount of sterile gold for normal credit operations.

Although the projected expansion of Federal Reserve authority does not link directly with the operations of the recently established Reconstruction Finance Corporation, some of

Roosevelt Is Indorsed by 1st Florida District

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The presidential candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, was indorsed here today by the Democratic executive committee of the first Florida Congressional District. At the same time the committee commended former Gov. Alfred E. Smith for his statement and his attitude regarding the nomination, and recommended that the vice presidential nominee be chosen from the Southern States.

In giving indorsement to Roosevelt, admonition was voiced against Florida putting forward a "favorite son" candidate at the forthcoming national convention in Chicago.

3 Suspects Captured After 5-Mile Pursuit

Gunfire Precedes Seizure of Alleged Bandits After Theft of Taxi; One Said to Answer Description of Sniper.

A police radio cruiser bearing a hold-up victim and three policemen last night overtook three alleged bandits after a 5-mile chase through Rock Creek Park. After their car, a taxicab they had allegedly stolen a few minutes earlier, was cornered in a blind lane off Military road, one of the men pulled an automatic pistol and attempted to shoot down Detective Sergt. E. F. Lewis, but the pistol jammed, according to police.

The trio then attempted to escape on foot, but were captured when police fired several shots into the ground and they halted. All of the men said they had only recently come to Washington.

They were taken to headquarters, where they gave their names as Willard Messick, 24 years old, of California; William G. Duffy, 22 years old, of Macon, Ga., and William McKinney, 18 years old, of Fitchburg, Mass.

Inspector F. S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, said one of the men answered the general description of the man wanted in connection with the slaying of Paul Riedel and the shooting of Gordon T. Backus, Helen Andrews and Doris Beall.

Police said E. M. Morningstar, 25 years old, of 330 Fourteenth place northwest, operator of an independent taxicab, picked the three men up last night at Twenty-first street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

They ordered him to drive to 1640 Albemarle street northwest. There is no such address.

At Twenty-ninth and Albemarle streets northwest, they said, one of the men pulled a pistol and ordered Morningstar to turn over his cash.

Morningstar said he told the men he was willing to give them his money and cab, but pleaded with the man holding the pistol not to shoot because he was the sole support of a wife and two children.

"Just give us your money and go on down in the woods and stay for half an hour and you'll be all right," Morningstar said the bandits told him.

They got $2.70 from him and forced him from the car.

His taxicab, driven by one of the bandits, had not disappeared from sight when No. 1 radio cruiser bearing Private R. J. Thompson and Sergts. J. J. Tolson and E. F. Lewis, turned into Albemarle street. Morningstar hailed them and hurriedly explained what had happened.

The taxicab turned into Rock Creek Park and the chase started in earnest.

DISTRICT BODY FIXES BUDGET LIMITATIONS

House Group Puts 4 Curbs on Uses of Funds Under $6,500,000 Plan.

Restrictive policies that will limit local budget items on four points, left open in past District appropriation bills, were agreed to late yesterday by the House District appropriations subcommittee.

Chairman Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, declared the committee "bound" on the following principles.

1. No new projects will be sanctioned in the present bill.

2. No increases will be voted in any budgetary item.

3. Reallocations or transfers of funds from one item to another, or reductions in one item to increase another, are excluded.

4. Reappropriation of unexpended balances for purposes other than originally appropriated are ruled out.

Meanwhile, Representative William P. Holaday (Republican), Illinois, announced he will insist on elimination of any additional jobs provided in the budget, invoking the Pou rule.

"It is my understanding that some 250 more positions are called for than were provided under the 1932 budget. There may be some of these, such as teaching assignments, that might be essential. I will ask that all of the others be cut out."

The Cannon statement was issued preparatory to consideration of the first items in the bill at 10 o'clock this morning. District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, the first witness, will testify on general salary provisions of the measure.

"The committee is working under limitations never before placed on a District appropriations subcommittee," Chairman Cannon said. "We consider ourselves instructed not only to reduce the Federal lump sum to $6,500,000, but bound by joint action of the various subcommittee chairmen on the four points I have named."

Asked what his stand would be on any emergency appropriation that

Spanish Premier Wins In Vote on Prison Ship

Madrid, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Premier Afana's government got a substantial majority in Congress today when he threatened to resign and called for a vote on a demand by eight deputies of the Left that the prison ship Buenos Aires be ordered back to Barcelona.

The ship sailed this morning with 110 political prisoners, bound for the penal colony in Spanish Guinea, and the premier's threat followed a tumultuous debate.

Trammell, U.S. Embassy Secretary in Rio, Is Dead

Rio de Janeiro, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Harvey Eric Trammell, secretary of the United States Embassy, died today after an emergency operation for appendicitis.

Born at Rector, Ark., in 1896, he came here less than a year ago from Colombia. He was wounded in France during the war and entered the consular service in 1926. A widow and two children survive.

THREE NATIONS URGE DRASTIC ARMS CUTS

Italy Asks Virtual Abolition of Aggressive Weapons at Geneva Parley.

Geneva, Feb. 10 (U.P.).—Japan, Italy and Poland, adding to the varied proposals for throttling war, presented their plans for limitation of armaments at today's session of the League of Nations' Disarmament Conference.

The Japanese plan, announced by Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese Ambassador to London, envisaged reduction in number and caliber of battleship guns, reduction or abolition of aircraft carriers, regulation but not abolition of submarines, prohibition of aerial bombardment and the prohibition of poison gases and bacteria.

Dino Grandi, youthful, suave, Italian foreign minister, went much further and pledged his government to the abolition of virtually every aggressive weapon of warfare, including capital ships, submarines, aircraft carriers, heavy artillery, tanks, army aircraft, chemicals and bacteria.

Foreign Minister August Zaleski, of Poland, announced his government is "heartily in support of all proposals calculated to make nations of bad faith shrink from the risk of aggression." He regretted, he said, the draft convention of the conference's agenda, which Poland fully accepted, but which had not limited "war potentials." This was taken to refer to

Concord to Fight Seizure of Bridge

Rally Against Taking Over of Span by U. S. for National Shrine.

Concord, Mass., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—No one, not even the Federal Government, backed by the Army, Navy and Marines, is going to take the Old North Bridge away from the people of Concord without a fight. The red coats tried it, and the consequence is history.

Senator David I. Walsh's recently announced plan to take over the famous bridge and battlefield as national shrines has caused Col. Robert E. Goodwin, Raymond Wheeler and Edward W. Sheehan, the local board of selectmen, to rally modern Minute Men to the defense. They resent that at this late date there should be any insinuation that Concord can not look out for her own Revolutionary shrines.

At the annual town meeting next month the townspeople will be asked to consider an article in the warrant "to determine whether the town will take any action by way of protest or otherwise concerning the proposal of the United States Government to seize and take over the battleground and the Old North Bridge."

Third Missing Plane Found Safe in Desert

Cairo, Egypt, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The last of three Royal Air Force airplanes, forced down in a blizzard in the Syrian desert last week, was found today north of Imtan. All the occupants were safe and well.

The other two machines were found Monday by Royal Air Force searchers.

SENATE DEBATE ON DOLE DRAWS GALLERY CHEER

IDAHO LEADER ASSAILS HOOVER PLAN STAND

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The question of a Federal appropriation for the victims of unemployment—or a "dole," as the opposition calls it—plunged the Senate into the most exciting debate of the Seventy-second Congress yesterday.

The principals were Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, and Senator Simeon D. Fess (Republican), of Ohio, two statesmen who, though located on the same side of the aisle, are polar opposites in much of their political philosophy.

Senator Fess, expounding the views of President Hoover, contended that the succor of unemployment victims is a local problem, one for the States and municipalities to handle. Thus far, he said, they have handled it. To make an appropriation out of the Federal Treasury now, he said, would be to open the floodgates and "turn the Treasury inside out."

Demands Called Limitless.

"There is no limit to the demands of men out of work," he said. "They will demand that the Government take care of them and say 'the Government owes me a living.'"

Senator Borah, in a thunderous voice, assailed this argument. He compared present conditions in this country with conditions abroad during the last war.

"True the armies left their dead and dying," he said, "but who can paint the picture of desolation and ruin and blasted hopes behind the army of unemployed.

"I am interested in saving the lives of the people. Call it a dole or what you like.

Galleries Add Applause.

"A Government which will not protect those who protect it is flying a flag which is a dirty rag, contaminating the air in which it flies."

The galleries applauded both Fess and Borah, thus violating the rules. Also, at one point, there was the sound of hissing.

Senator Fess, erstwhile schoolmaster, and ordinarily a mild individual, pounded his desk so vehemently during the debate that he skinned his knuckles and drew blood.

"If we leave this relief problem in the hands of the politicians," he said, "God help America."

The measure on which the Senate

Cooper Again to Enter Ohio Governor's Race

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Former Gov. Myers Y. Cooper announced his entrance into the Ohio Republican gubernatorial race tonight.

David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aviation, and Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, previously announced their candidacies. Mr. Cooper served one term as governor from 1929 to 1931, but was defeated for reelection by Gov. George White.

SMITH'S NAME TO BE LISTED IN NORTH DAKOTA

Voter Moves to Place Him on Primary Ballot.

TAMMANY IS SPLIT ON ITS ALLEGIANCE

Minot, N. Dak., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Alfred E. Smith, of New York, will be listed as a Democratic presidential candidate in the State preferential primary election March 15 on the initiative of a North Dakotan. The Secretary of State announced today that consent of the candidate was not necessary.

E. H. Stenvick, former postmaster here, said he would circulate nominating petitions in behalf of the 1928 Democratic standard bearer, and hoped to file for him by late Saturday, the deadline for such action.

Stenvick said he had not consulted Smith, but refused to abide by the decision of the State Democratic convention, which indorsed Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York. Roosevelt's name was filed yesterday.

More Filings Probable.

The new law interpretation, announced at Bismarck by Secretary of State Robert Byrne, was expected to open the way for more filings than had been expected. Previously the law was interpreted as requiring acquiescence of candidates before they were entered formally.

Byrne said filing is official as soon as he accepts nominating petitions after finding them adequate. Names will go on the ballot unless specific requests come from candidates that they be withdrawn.

Roosevelt, only Democratic aspirant on the ballot, thus far, was filed with his permission, Byrne said. Joseph I. France, former Maryland senator, also acquiesced to his filing as the only Republican thus far.

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Tammany Hall, which traditionally goes into political battles with a united front, is at present split three ways as the Democratic National Convention approaches.

New York State will cast 94 votes when the balloting for a presidential nominee begins in Chicago, and 48 of these delegates will be from New York City.

Normally Tammany controls most of these 48, but the political observers believe as things now stand, that no one candidate can count on even a majority of this bloc on the first ballot.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt has aroused the ire of many Tammany leaders by not squelching the Hofstadter legislative committee's investigation into the Tammany municipal government. Nevertheless, he has a sizable following in the organization.

Roosevelt's Tammany Friends.

His campaign manager, James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic State committee, is a Tammany man and has his own supporters within the organization.

John F. Curry, Tammany leader, is a personal friend of the governor, but he has not yet indicated

Senator Capper Commends Washington Essay Contest

Approval of Congress Is Expressed by Kansan; Boys and Girls Are Urged to Send Compositions in Soon So They May Get Full Consideration.

"Members of Congress as well as other public spirited citizens approve highly of The Post Washington Essay Contest, which brings such a splendid opportunity to the boys and girls of Washington and nearby Virginia and Maryland," said Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, yesterday. Senator Capper has taken an active interest in the affairs of the District since coming to Washington a number of years ago to serve the Sunflower State in the Upper House of Congress.

"The action taken by The Washington Post," continued Senator Capper, "might well be followed by other American newspapers as a means of increasing the interest of the youth of the land in the bicentennial celebration.

"The generous cash prizes given by The Washington Post to the 103 winners are an added stimulus to all who compete, I feel sure. Besides the individual pride which will be aroused through the awards, it is safe to predict that the schools from which these fortunate winners are selected will rejoice, too, over the victory.

"The life of George Washington is filled with inspiration for young and old alike. It is a wholesome lesson in industry, obedience and a determination to win against heavy odds. George Washington worked hard for every advantage which came to him. With few educational advantages at hand, he read every available book which came to hand. Indeed, he did more than read them; some of them were committed practically to memory and their influence remained with him throughout his life.

"I shall watch the columns of The Washington Post after the close of the contest to see the names of the winners. Certainly they will have my hearty congratulations and I commend The Washington Post for

U. S. Expresses Fear For Citizens in China

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Fresh instructions were dispatched yesterday to American Consul General Edwin S. Cunningham by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson in view of the imminent climax to the heavy fighting in and around Shanghai, it was learned here last night. The concern of the State Department for the safety of some 3,200 civilians in the war-torn area heightened considerably upon reports from consular and naval officers of an impending general action on the Shanghai front.

The State Department has endeavored to allow the American consul on the spot the widest possible discretion in view of the emergency nature of all developments. However, certain aspects of the situation were studied by Col. Stimson and his assistant, James Grafton Rogers, and the chief of the Far Eastern division of the department, Dr. Stanley Kuhl Hornbeck, for their bearing on international legal complications.

A sudden rout of the Chinese forces defending the Chapei forts or the equally to be feared triumphal return of the Chinese might precipitate a sudden problem of international law within the district of the International Settlement itself. The irruption of any large force of armed troops within the neutral area, defended as it is by a large but inadequate force of allied guards, might endanger the lives of all the inhabitants, civilian as well as military.

The intensive nature of the recent engagements between the excellently

HURLEY WARNS U. S. NOT TO FREE ISLES

Asserts Independence Would Mean Economic Disaster for Philippines.

(Associated Press.)

Solemn warning was given yesterday by Secretary Hurley of the War Department that immediate withdrawal of the United States from the Philippines would bring about economic disaster and invite revolution and anarchy in the islands.

He told the House insular committee "the political chaos in the Orient today is such that in my opinion this is no time to deal with Philippine independence."

Publicly revealing for the first time the result of his personal investigation last summer in the Philippines, the War Secretary charged Filipino political leaders with suppression of the right of free speech and creating a condition which prevents open discussion of the independence issue under penalty of ostracism.

Secretary Hurley directed harsh criticism toward the Hare independence bill, calling it "destructive and in no way a courageous measure for dealing with the Philippine problem."

Beginning his testimony by summarizing his "fundamental conclusions" Secretary Hurley made the following statements:

Until Filipinos shall have made far

Mellon Charges Dropped by House

Judiciary Committee Says Further Proceedings Unwarranted.

(Associated Press.)

Impeachment charges against Andrew W. Mellon were dropped by the House judiciary committee yesterday as the veteran financier prepared to step from the Treasury direction into England's Court of St. James.

Upon this exchange of duties and Mellon's impending resignation from the Cabinet to take the oath of ambassador, the lawyer representatives based their agreement that "nothing justified further proceedings."

Chairman Sumners announced his committee was unanimous on this point, viewing impeachment proceedings as virtually equivalent to an ouster suit.

Representative Patman (Democrat), Texas, sponsored the charges to obtain Mellon's removal from the Treasury post he occupied eleven years.

French Debt Obligation Holds, Herriot Declares

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Eagle, in a dispatch from Paris, quoted Edouard Herriot, former premier of France, as saying: "I cannot accept the theory that Germany's failure to pay France relieves France of the obligation to pay America. We signed an agreement and we must keep it."

The Eagle's correspondent says M. Herriot will publish his opinion in his newspaper, L'ere Nouvelle.

25 TOKYO STUDENTS HELD FOR PROTESTS

Tokyo, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The first public demonstration of any moment against Japan's course in Shanghai and Manchuria took place today at the Imperial University.

Twenty-five students were arrested for participating in a protest meeting at which handbills, urging the people to "stop this imperialistic war," were distributed.

Eight hundred students, assembled in front of the main lecture hall of the university, heard speeches by four of their colleagues and then attempted to parade through the streets in the vicinity, carrying red banners. The police dispersed them and arrested the leaders.

Handbills were circulated in the university throughout the forenoon and posters were pasted on university buildings. The posters read, "Down with the Students' Patriotic Association!" and "Down with empire day!"

Tomorrow is "Kigensetsu," the national holiday which celebrates the supposed anniversary of the founding of the empire in 660 B. C., by Immu Tenno, a descendent of the sun goddess.

While the police pressed ahead with their investigation to determine exactly what was behind the assasination yesterday of Unnosuke Inouye, leader of the opposition party, it was learned that Kijuro Shidehara, former foreign minister and the sole survivor of Japan's famous triumvirate of liberal statesmen, was seriously ill. The baron suffered a fainting spell and an attack of cerebral anemia Monday night.

Brazilian Soldiers Kept From Invading Uruguay

Santana, Brazil, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—A cavalry regiment revolted tonight in its garrison here and attempted to cross the Uruguayan border to Rivera to rescue Brazilian soldiers detained there in connection with the killing of a Uruguayan civilian during the Mardi Gras celebration last night.

Troops and police of Uruguay spread out near the street which divides the two countries, but Brazilian army officers persuaded the cavalrymen to return to their barracks before they reached the boundary.

John Drinkwater Is Ill Of Pneumonia Attack

London, Feb. 10 (A.P.). — John Drinkwater, best known in the United States for his play, "Abraham Lincoln," is seriously ill of bronchial pneumonia at his home in Highgate.

Last Saturday he developed influenza, pneumonia set in, and his temperature tonight was 102. The doctor who comes twice a day, said the playwright's condition was serious but not dangerous. His play about Lincoln is to open next Monday, and it was thought tonight that the opening would not be delayed.

Steps at Concentration Spurred Under Cover of Darkness.

Gen. Chen to Give Additional Financial Aid; Shanghai Chamber Asks Funds.

Shanghai (Thursday), Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Lives of United States Marines occupying part of a Chinese cotton mill in the American sector of the International Settlement were endangered today by two bombs dropped on the building by Japanese airplanes. Five Chinese workmen in the mill were killed and fifteen wounded. The Marine detachment, which was occupying the opposite end of the building, was jarred, but unharmed. A misdirected shell fell in the heart of the settlement's business district at about the same time and injured an Indian Sikh watchman. It was thought to have come from a Chinese antiaircraft gun.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Shanghai, Thursday (Feb. 11.—The greatest concentration of guns, manpower and ammunition of the entire Shanghai-Woosung engagement was in progress this morning as the Japanese and the Chinese got ready to fight it out to the finish.

The troops were massed about the Woosung forts, where the Chinese have stood up for a week under almost continued bombardment and aerial attack.

The concentration movement was carried out under the cover of darkness last night and early this morning. Passengers aboard steamships from Japan that docked at Shanghai late yesterday said they had passed a dozen Japanese troopships. Neutral sources here received a code message from Japan saying two Army divisions, about 20,000 men, had embarked for the front.

Chinese Getting Ready.

In the sector about the north station only two lines of trenches remained manned. Hitherto three or four lines have held full complements of men. A gap of half a mile existed between the Chinese front and the support lines after the shift had been completed.

Japanese field pieces, unloaded from ships in the Whangpoo, were picked up from the Shanghai docks by motortrucks that rumbled away to the north.

Both the Japanese and Chinese combed the Shanghai area for whatever materials of war they could lay their hands on.

Japanese trucks rushed bales of American cotton into the Woosung sector for use in protecting strong points from Chinese machine gun bullets and artillery shells. These bales, ideal for the purpose, were picked up at Japanese-owned cotton mills along the edge of the Whangpoo—mills which have been closed since the outbreak of the Shanghai trouble, throwing more than 40,000 Chinese out of work.

Washboards Are Used.

The Chinese had to content themselves with less serviceable materials of war. They carted great quantities of wooden beams and iron into the Woosung area and even requisitioned washboards with which to build shelter roofs and to buttress the sides of their trenches. Chinese troops went through villages on the outskirts of Shanghai, where usually most of this

ACTION TO BE ASKED ON VINSON NAVY BILL

Geneva Trend Leads Author to Believe House Should Vote on Building.

(Associated Press.)

Members of the House who want a bigger Navy yesterday began an effort to extract the $616,250,000 Vinson naval construction program from the pigeon-hole into which it was thrust in the economy drive.

Chairman Vinson, of the House naval committee, author of the bill, said he would try to get the measure before Congress soon. It would permit the construction of 120 new warships.

Vinson will ask his committee, which approved the construction program but recommended that further action be delayed, to let the bill come up for a vote after the tax and annual naval supply bills are out of the way.

The developments at Geneva were cited as responsible for the Georgia Democrat's decision. At the request of his party leaders, he had agreed to postpone the bill in the interests of economy and in the hope of greater harmony at Geneva. But yesterday he said:

"We already have a pretty good idea that the Geneva conference will be a failure. For that reason, I see no need for delaying action any further."

Vinson would not say that conditions in China had any effect upon his decision. Many members of Congress, however, believe the measure would have a much better chance of passage now than when it was sidetracked. That was before the Japanese went into Shanghai.

Authority Abuse Laid to Wilkerson

(Associated Press.)

An "absolute abuse of power" in the 1922 railway strike was charged to District Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday before a Senate committee as part of labor's protest against his elevation to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Donald H. Richread, Chicago attorney representing 21 railway unions, asserted before the Senate judiciary subcommittee that Wilkerson's injunction in the railway shopmen's strike had "operated to terrorize and paralyze" the labor organizations. He contended its language was so "vague" as to be open to interpretation as forbidding them to use their funds for any purpose and added that it was subsequently "modified."

Three years later, he said, Judge Wilkerson "attempted this same territorial assumption of power" in another case which ended in the United States Supreme Court holding a district court can not issue a process beyond its own district.

House Bodies Seek Beer Bill Accord

Several Measures Studied; Agreement on Form May Be Delayed.

(Associated Press.)

Executive committees of the House Republican and Democratic antiprohibition blocs attempted to agree yesterday on the form of a beer bill their groups will be asked to support. Several measures were considered, but Chairman Linthicum of the Democratic group, said it was unlikely an agreement would be obtained immediately.

Among those attending the discussions, in addition to Representative Linthicum (Democrat), Maryland, were Representatives O'Connor, of New York, and Cochran, of Missouri, Democrats, and William E. Hull, of Illinois, and Stafford, of Wisconsin, Republicans.

The two groups already have voted to support a constitutional amendment providing for State control of liquor.

Hospital Is Advocated For Women Veterans

(Associated Press.)

A woman member of Congress, Representative Florence P. Kahn, on the military affairs committee, is asking a veterans' hospital for "disabled women veterans of all wars."

She introduced a bill yesterday for a 250-bed hospital, to cost $1,000,000, in her own State, California, to treat women patients only. Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts, said yesterday that Administrator Hines of the Veterans' Administration was now considering a plan under which four women's hospitals will be placed in various parts of the country.

Gen. Crowder Improves; Hope Held for Recovery

Havana, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, who has been ill at his hotel here for several days, was "slightly stronger" today.

The illness of the 72-year-old soldier, whose service for the United States ranged from the Western plains to the World War, led friends to fear for his life early this week. Today, however, they said they hoped for his ultimate recovery.

Appointive SchoolBoard Is Branded Un-American

The present method of selecting members of the Board of Education, through Supreme Court appointment, was declared "un-American" yesterday by Representative Allard H. Gasque (Democrat), South Carolina, who reintroduced his elective school board bill.

The Gasque bill was changed only in one important feature. Under the new bill, any citizen over 21 living in the District, whether or not he maintained a legal residence elsewhere, would be qualified to vote for the board. The same provision was made in the old Zihlman bill, introduced some years ago.

JAPAN AND CHINA MASS MEN AS BATTLE TO FINISH NEARS

While the Chinese were massing every available military unit in the Woosung sector, word came from Canton that extensive preparations were going on to back up the nineteenth route army, which has borne the brunt of the fighting thus far.

These Canton advices said guns and ammunition had been shipped and that Gen. Chen Chi-Tang, commander in chief of the first army, had promised additional financial support for Gens. Tsai Ting-Kai and Chiang Kwang-Nai, the defenders of Shanghai, to whom he already has sent $125,000 in gold.

Patriotism Is Stirred.

Chinese declared that the valor displayed by the Nineteenth Army in holding its ground despite Japanese attacks from land, sea and air, had stirred patriotism throughout the country, and that the defenders might count on continued reinforcements and munitions.

Chambers of commerce throughout the country rallied to the government's support after word was received from Tokyo that the Japanese government had appropriated 40,000,000 yen (about $14,500,000) for the military campaign at Shanghai.

Interpreting this action as an indication of a prolonged struggle, the Shanghai chamber of commerce circularized similar organizations throughout the nation by telegraph, asking for funds.

Pledge Their Full Aid.

The National Associated Chambers of Commerce, consisting of 3,000 organizations throughout the country, pledged the whole-hearted aid of the entire business community for the national government's policy of armed resistance against the Japanese.

The guns at Chapei and at Woosung were quieted during the troop movement last night and this morning. Only an occasional machine gun burst indicated opposing armies were in the field.

Observers said the purpose of the Japanese apparently was to clear away the last trace of resistance at Woosung and then sweep over the entire 16-mile area from the forts to Chapei, where they might fall on the Chinese rear.

A private message received from Japan said the stubborn resistance put up by the Chinese at Chapei and Woosung had come as a complete surprise to the Japanese, as naval officers had had fullest confidence that the force of several thousand bluejackets, aided by guns of the warships and airplane bombers, would break the Chinese morale and finish the job assigned to them in short order.

Although the Shanghai International Settlement was convinced that the next big action would come at Woosung, there was considerable apprehension, and new sandbag barricades and barbed wire entanglements were erected by United States Marines, members of the Thirty-first U. S. Infantry and other foreign troops.

The curfew law was amended to keep all civilians off the streets after 9 p. m. Hitherto they have been allowed abroad until 10 p. m.

Pour Into Hospitals.

All yesterday wounded poured in from the battle area to the Chinese Red Cross hospitals in Shanghai, where more than 1,000 persons, half of them civilians, were suffering from war wounds. Staff doctors were worn out from incessant work.

Many of the wounded were brought in from a field dressing station at Chenju, a village on the outskirts of Shanghai. Most of them were bandaged with blood-soaked rags.

This correspondent made a trip from the Chenju Station to the Chinese General Hospital in Shanghai with a load of wounded. They suffered great pain as the vehicle bumped over the rough road through the Chinese lines, but they bore it in silence.

In the hospital itself the same courage was evident. A young officer talked cheerily with his doctors about the fighting in Chapei as they picked shrapnel out of his arm.

Among the wounded were women and children who had been permanently maimed. One young woman had lost a foot.

The French cruiser Waldeck-Rousseau brought in a battalion of French colonial infantry from Haiphong, French Indo-China. This battalion will reinforce the French troops already on duty within the French concession.

Map showing scene of heavy fighting at Woosung and Shanghai.

Also aboard the cruiser was Pierre Pasquier, Governor General of Indo-China, who, it was understood, was dispatched by the French government to investigate the Shanghai situation.

The Japanese command announced that vigorous protests would be filed with the Chinese authorities for the killing of the captain of a Japanese merchant vessel by Chinese soldiers. The captain was fired upon Tuesday, the Japanese said, after he had left his vessel, anchored in the Whangpoo, in a steam launch.

"Something May Happen."

Chinese civil authorities said peace proposals had emanated from Japanese sources in a "veiled fashion" last night. They said they were unaware of the exact source of these proposals, but expected further developments today.

Japanese naval officials, on the other hand, while reporting "everything quiet," said "something may happen today."

Reports published abroad that Chinese women soldiers had been killed at Woosung were described as "fairy tales" by both Japanese and Chinese authorities, who said no women were engaged in the military activities at Woosung or elsewhere.

Replies to Plane Protest.

Mayor Wu Teh-Chen of Shanghai notified Edwin S. Cunningham, United States consul general, today that the Chinese government could assume no responsibility for any Chinese attack on Japanese airplanes flying over the International Settlement.

The Chinese mayor handed the consul general a note in reply to a protest recently made by Mr. Cunningham against flights of military airplanes over the Settlement.

Japanese airplanes have no right to fly over the Settlement, the Chinese note said, and Chinese attacks on the planes were made in self-defense. Mayor Wu also asserted that China never had waived her sovereign rights to the air over the International Settlement and that the flight of Chinese airplanes over that area was not subject to interference.

Will Rogers Visits Garner at Capitol

(Associated Press.)

Will Rogers, the humorist, yesterday called on his old friend, Speaker Garner, at the Capitol. Entering the Texan's office, he invited a troop of representatives trailing him to have some of the Speaker's cigars. Passing the box around, he said: "All are invited, but the Republicans." Speaker Garner came in, hailed the Oklahoman and submitted to the photographers.

After a few exchanges, Speaker Garner went about his business and Mr. Rogers held a reception in the outer office, where he was greeted by many members of the House. Among some of the things he told them were:

"Keep your ships and soldiers out of China. The more you send, the more trouble you will likely have. I don't think we ought to get into that mess over there."

FEAR FOR AMERICAN CITIZENS IN WAR ZONE IS HEIGHTENED

equipped Japanese forces and the Chinese defenders has resulted frequently in shells dropping dangerously near the neutral zones. To this menace has been added the dangers of crossfiring in which the American forces on several occasions have narrowly escaped being hit. The acute nature of the situation has so disturbed the British Government that a suggestion was recently made in the House of Commons to evacuate all British subjects.

It was definitely announced here yesterday that no such measure is in the immediate contemplation of the State Department, although the rapid developments of the skirmishing and aerial bombardment might cause an immediate step to this effect.

The harbor of Shanghai contains at the present time, it was stated, enough bottoms to convey all Americans, either civilian or military, to safety. In addition to the American warships which are ready for this eventuality, there is a large number of merchant ships also available which could be pressed into service in an emergency.

Rapidly Becoming Worse.

Some anxiety has also been felt here due to the necessity of evacuating one police station at Shanghai. Furthermore, Mr. Cunningham announced in a cable to the State Department that the situation within the settlement was rapidly becoming more serious due to the frequency with which bombs were falling within the neutral district. Within the last 24 hours some 20 shells fell on the settlement and one of the shells slightly wounded an English woman.

The police station was closed and evacuated by the allied officers because the shelling in the vicinity, some 23 explosions within a few hours, had made their position untenable.

The spread of Communist propaganda has added a new menace to the neutral population of Shanghai. Even more serious messages of red risings have been reported from the interior, where a Catholic priest, Bishop John O'Shea, urged immediate relief to the beleaguered American missionaries in the City of Kanchow. A red army was marching upon the city, the bishop said in a telegram addressed to Walter A. Adams, the American Consul General at Hankow.

In Shanghai a few Communist circulars have been distributed, one advocating the uniting of Chinese policemen, soldiers and the masses and the seizure of arms from the Imperialists. Another handbill urged the convening of a general meeting of soldiers, laborers and peasants for the purpose of organizing their own government.

14 Missionaries in Zone.

Fourteen missionaries have been reported in the danger section of inner China, where the red movement is reported to be under way. Nine Catholic priests and five Protestant missionaries are in the City of Kanchow, and the American Cousuls General at Hankow and Canton have made urgent representations looking to the protection of these Americans.

The members of the Catholic missions at Kanchow are: Bishop John O'Shea and Father Gillicuddy, of Niagara University; Fathers Leo Cahill and John McLaughlin and Brothers Joseph Gately, Francis Moehringen, Francis Flaherty, George Erbe, Lawrence Curtis and Edward Young.

The Protestant missionaries are: Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Blasner, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bunting and C. E. Tweddell, of the China Inland Mission.

Some consolation was derived from the supplementary message of Consul General Adams that he had heard the telegraph office was still accepting telegrams for Kanchow, the postoffice was still functioning, and Gen. Ho Chen Chun had not heard of any attack on the city.

31ST WILL RELIEVE ZONE GUARDS TODAY

To Take Up Position in Most Vital Sector of Defense in Settlement.

Shanghai, China, Thursday, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—The United States Thirty-first Infantry will take over the most vital sector of defense of the International Settlement this afternoon at 4 o'clock when it is believed the big Japanese drive against Chinese troops in that area may be in progress.

The sector is on the northern border of the settlement and within speaking distance of the Chinese lines in Chapei. It has long been feared a successful Japanese attack might isolate the Chinese in Chapei and force them back into the settlement, where the foreign defenders are ordered to shoot before permitting armed Chinese to enter.

15 Shells Fall in Sector.

Fifteen Japanese shells fell within 50 yards of this sector yesterday. Nine of them exploded. The United States troops will relieve the American, Portuguese and Russian detachments of the Settlement Volunteer Corps by arrangement with the settlement authorities. Thereafter they will be responsible for guarding a spot where the most serious fighting occurred during the 1927 crisis.

Col. L. D. Gasser, commanding the Thirty-first, is enforcing the strictest discipline. He already has demoted 20 noncommissioned officers since arrival in Shanghai for minor infractions. However, discipline is high among the men and they are eager to assume their duties.

Six hundred French soldiers from Indo-China arrived on the flagship Waldeck-Rousseau, to aid in defense of foreign areas.

Will Seek to Avoid Clash.

In connection with the danger of Chinese retreating into the Settlement, the headquarters of the Nineteenth army in Chapei issued a statement saying that they would make every effort to avoid a clash with Settlement defenders, but that the fact that Japan is using the Settlement as a military base may make it necessary for them to retreat to the settlement in case of an overwhelming Japanese offensive.

"If we are forced to retreat in the direction of the Settlement, we will be caught within a circle of fire from four sides," the statement said. "The Japanese will attack us from three sides and on the fourth side we will have to face the combined forces of the world acting in conjunction with the invader.

"It is quite obvious that the Japanese are doing their utmost to draw the fire of foreign troops upon the Chinese."

Veterans Protest Fight On Military Officials

Resenting and deploring the sentiments expressed by the Federation of Citizens Associations and the Columbia Heights Citizens Association in protesting against military officers as District of Columbia officials, the executive committee of the Department of the District of Columbia, Disabled American Veterans of the World War last night called for a retraction by the citizens' groups.

The resolution requests the two groups to repudiate any intention to consider armed service in defense of the Nation as a bar to civilian employment in any capacity. It further points out that the Constitution of the United States, the general laws of the land and the citizen's oath of allegiance require good citizens to bear arms in defense of the country in times of emergency.

Knobs at White House Funereal, Says Garner

(Associated Press.)

The silver knobs on the outer doors of the White House executive offices yesterday reminded Speaker Garner of the fittings on a casket.

Called to a conference of House leaders at the White House, Garner spent several minutes in examining the knobs, bending over to look at them closely, and turning them to right and left.

As he finally entered, Garner said to one of the White House police officers nearby:

"Why, these knobs are the same kind that are used on caskets. Is some one expecting a funeral around here—say about next March 4?"

Garner has been widely mentioned as a presidential possibility.

HOOVER'S SECRETARY TO AID HEALTH BODY

George A. Hastings Loaned to White House Group; Strother Returning.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday loaned his administrative assistant—George A. Hastings—to the White House conference on child health and protection, to serve as its executive director during the next year.

Mr. Hastings' place at the Executive Mansion will be filled by its former occupant, French Strother, of Garden City, Long Island, whom Hastings succeeded. Mr. Strother has been writing in New York, but will resume his former duties next Friday.

The President's present assistant, a member of the American Association of Social Workers, and the American Public Health Association, will be in charge of disseminating some of the voluminous material gathered by experts of the White House child health conference.

He was recommended for the place by Secretary Wilbur as having "just the qualities needed." Mr. Wilbur asked that he be granted a year's leave of absence.

"In the liquidation of the White House conference on child health and protection," Mr. Wilbur said in a letter to the President, "we are endeavoring to spread the information gathered by the various experts and committees to the various States. So far we have been successful but our work is still incomplete.

"We need the services of some one familiar with organization, administration and existing legislation in health, educaton, recreaton and welfare, who has the confidence of those interested in these important fields."

In his letter of reply, the President praised Mr. Hastings' fitness for the position.

"I have spoken to Mr. Hastings on the subject," the President said, "and he has expressed his willingness to undertake the work which you outline. I believe you will find him ideal for this work. We, of course, could use him at the White House, but I am able to make other arrangements which will enable us to conduct our work in the meantime, and I know both Mr. Hastings and I are glad to cooperate with you."

HAITIAN FINANCIAL CONTROL DEBATED

State Department Defends Policy Attacked Before Senate Committee.

American supervision of Haitian finances was alternately attacked and defended at the two ends of Pennsylvania avenue yesterday. Before the Senate finance committee George Leger, a brother of the present Haitian foreign minister, described the "forcing" of $16,000,000 loans upon the Haitian people by the American State Department. The Undersecretary of State, William R. Castle, jr., went into the history of Haitian finances and American control there and revealed how it had accumulated a hitherto unprecedented surplus of $3,292,568.30 since it was established.

M. Leger is a cultured Haitian who has been educated in American schools and is one of the outstanding corporation lawyers in the Haitian capital. He made the trip especially at the suggestion of the committee, which has been investigating the resolution of Senator Hiram Johnson on the acquisition of foreign bonds by American financial institutions. He is returning to Haiti today. The testimony of M. Leger was characterized by severe criticism of the types of financial advisers sent to Haiti by the State Department.

Mismanagement Alleged.

The only exception made was in favor of the present administrator of finances there, who is an American, George de la Rue.

The State Department, in clarifying certain phases of the American financial control of the island republic, brought out the elimination of internal debt since the American financial administration was begun. It was also announced that Haiti has at the present time no floating debt and that foreign indebtedness has been reduced as of December 31, 1931, to $14,329,161.76.

The Haitian witness testified that the State Department had insisted on the flotation of a loan even in the face of opposition from his own government. He quoted a letter from the American charge d'affaires at Port-au-Prince which stated:

"The Department of State can not take into consideration any changes in the protocol, and authorization should be given immediately to the American financial adviser for the loan." This letter was dated January 18, 1922.

Higher Prices Are Cited.

In another letter the desire of the State Department was expressed in still more earnest terms:

"The State Department feels certain that the Haitian government is still of the opinion that the loan is necessary for the welfare of Haiti and it is earnestly hoped and urgently recommended that the Haitian government cause no further delay for the loan."

The State Department, in rebuttal of the Léger charges, made public the higher prices paid to the Haitian government for their financial undertakings by American bankers since the United States had a direction in their management. The previous financial loans made by the Negro republic had been contracted by French bankers, who on the first paid the Haitian government 86, another at 80 and a third at 72.3, less gratuities. The internal loans were made at a still more unfavorable return to the government.

Germany's industrial strength in time of war.

Matsudaira was loudly applauded by the gallery as he took his place on the speaking platform. The delegates remained politely silent. The stocky, bland little Japanese delegate glanced up at the galleries, crowded with women whose bright dresses provided the only touch of color to the otherwise somber proceedings, and smiled in appreciation.

Speaking in perfect English, he outlined Japan's aims in the limitation of armaments. When he said Japan was prepared to prohibit aerial bombardment there was a murmur in the galleries. A few onlookers smiled. Some, recalling the newspapers being sold outside describing the Japanese aerial bombardment taking place in Shanghai at that very moment, laughed.

Interruption Not Noticed.

Matsudaira did not deign to notice the interruption. There was only a momentary narrowing of his flashing eyes and he continued speaking, a bland smile on his otherwise inscrutable face. He urged patience and forbearance in the establishment of world peace.

"The question of disarmament is intimately related to the question of national security," he said, thus supporting the position taken by France. "National security can only be considered in connection with the peculiar circumstances of each nation's geographical position, political, financial and economic status. Particular attention should be directed to the armed strength of and political status of neighboring countries."

He said that notwithstanding the "unfortunate situation" in the Far East, Japan is just as eager as ever to cooperate for the arrangement of eventual limitation and reduction of armaments.

Italy's Promises Sweeping.

Grandi, smartly attired in the latest Bond street clothes, evoked murmurs of admiration from the women in the galleries. Flashing white teeth in his characteristic smile, occasionally running his fingers lightly over the pointed beard, Grandi, with short, dynamic gestures emphasizing every thought, went further than any of the previous representatives of England, United States, France and Germany, who preceded him on the platform, in the scope of his disarmament promises.

The first real excitement of the conference is expected tomorrow when Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet Russian delegate, speaks. He is expected by well-informed circles to attack the other powers for "weakness" and "timidity of their proposals," at the same time submitting the new Russian plan which is expected to ask an outright reduction of 50 per cent in military and naval strength of the great powers, 33 per cent for medium powers and 25 per cent for the weaker nations.

Litvinoff's pension (hotel or boarding house) is closely guarded following reports of a plot against his life.

Shidehara Is Recovering.

Physicians reported today that Baron Shidehara, who is 60 years old, was recovering slowly. He was confined to his bed and was running a slight temperature. His condition was complicated by a cold and bronchitis.

The press and the national leaders of Japan expressed horror and sorrow at the assassination of M. Inouye. Police, investigating to determine whether the principles of some such reactionary organization as the Black Dragon Society played a part in the killing, said they believed that Tadashi Konuma, the youth who shot the former minister, was suffering from a form of dementia.

He was anemic and jobless, they said, and they speculated that he acted alone without the backing of any responsible political element.

Police released Inajiro Terada, member of a reactionary group in whose home Konuma had lived, as they were convinced he was not connected with the assassination.

Readily Confesses Crime.

The youthful Konuma, readily confessing that he had committed the crime, said he had wished to avenge the bitter lot of peasants who, he declared, had suffered greatly as a result of the retrenchment policy carried on when M. Inouye was finance minister. Konuma was a wanderer who had lost successive jobs through illness or unfitness, the investigators said.

Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa announced he was considering a plan to send special envoys to the United States, Great Britain and France to clarify the Japanese Manchurian policy.

The men to discharge this task have been tentatively selected. They are Viscount Kentaro Kaneko, who would go to Washington; Baron Gonsuke Hayashi, who would be sent to London, and Viscount Kiku Jiro, who would present the Japanese explanation at Paris.

MILLS CONFIRMED AS TREASURY HEAD

(Associated Press.)

Ogden L. Mills, of New York, was approved by the Senate yesterday as Secretary of the Treasury, but he will not be able to assume the post formally for several days.

While there was no debate on the appointment and approval was given without a record vote, Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, objected to President Hoover being immediately notified. Until the President signs the papers the position technically is vacant.

Norris' objection delayed sending the papers to the White House for three days under Senate rules.

Mr. Mellon had not decided last night whether he would remain at the Treasury until Mills' confirmation reaches the President.

Mills yesterday was asked by the House ways and means committee to submit detailed figures on the possible revenue yields of proposed taxes on electricity, oil imports, gasoline, automobiles, radios and household gas. Further information was requested on present Treasury receipts and needs. The committee plans an exhaustive study of all revenue sources in order that the tax increase bill it is framing will return sufficient funds to balance the Federal budget by the end of the 1933 fiscal year.

Other Taxes Considered.

Acting Chairman Crisp announced increases in inheritance taxes and the levying of a gift tax were considered at yesterday's session. The committee is certain to include these, with increased income taxes, in its bill. It also is looking with more favor on a tax of two cents a gallon on foreign petroleum.

Sentiment for a general manufactures sales tax appeared stronger yesterday among the committee members. About $600,000,000 would be returned from a 1 per cent tax on the $60,000,000,000 annual value of American manufactured products.

This tax, however, does not meet with the general approval of the Democratic House leadership.

Ballantine Is Confirmed.

Arthur A. Ballantine, also of New York, and now Assistant Secretary, was confirmed to take Mills' place. His papers also were held up by Norris' objection. On behalf of Senator Long (Democrat), of Louisiana, Senator Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, told the Senate the former wished to be recorded as against Mills. Long was absent from the city.

Senator Norris criticized President Hoover for appointing Mellon as Ambassador to London. Mellon was confirmed last week.

Referring to the President's statement that because of existing world conditions "the greatest mind and statesman" was needed at London, Norris said he wondered what Charles G. Dawes thought about that.

Sympathizes With Mellon.

"Subsequent events," he added, "convinced me that President Hoover was a great humorist. Because our ambassadors, if you take from them the social activity, are only stool pigeons. The Secretary of State communicates to them to present a certain communication to a foreign government and he remains silent until he cables the answer home.

"One of the bright boys here acting as page, if not burdened with the social end, could perform equally as well as the greatest Secretary of the Treasury since Hamilton.

"Mellon has had the honor of having three Presidents serve under him and I can't help sympathizing with poor Andy when he is thus cast aside and pushed off his throne. The President has not treated him with respect in trying to get rid of him in this way."

Reaches No Conclusion.

Crisp said the committee discussed the manufacturers' sales tax, but reached no conclusion.

"It is a terrible job," the Georgia Democrat said. "We hope, however, to have the bill ready to submit to the House by March 1."

The committee made public a Treasury budget summary for the fiscal year 1932, submitted by newly named Undersecretary Ballantine.

It showed for the year beginning July 1 that a decline in the automobile, radio, telegraph, telephone, the theater and other businesses was anticipated in view of February estimates as compared to those in November of last year.

Below November Estimates.

Total expenditures for the next year were set at $4,113,000,000, with total receipts at $2,375,000,000, on the basis of February estimates and present tax laws. This is $321,000,000 below the estimates of revenues in November, 1931.

Less the $497,000,000 for statutory debt retirements, the summary showed $1,241,000,000 would be necessary to balance the budget. The report included a possible $150,000,000 from postal rate increases, which have been sidetracked by the committee in anticipation of its prospective revenue from the $786,000,000 administration program.

ALABAMA ELECTION FRAUD HELD SHOWN

Senate Report on Contest by Heflin Cites 50 Kinds of Violations.

(Associated Press.)

Charges of vote-buying and efforts by corporations to influence their employes were discounted yesterday in a report to the Senate elections subcommittee considering the Heflin-Bankhead contest, but testimony on other law violations was stressed.

Chairman Hastings, in a report on the recent testimony taken for the committee in Alabama, cited charges of 50 varieties of law violation in the election of Senator Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, which is being contested by former Senator Heflin. He said there seemed to be no dispute that voters were allowed to cast their ballots without appearing in person at the polling places, and reported the testimony showed it was the practice to pay the poll tax for others, though that is forbidden by law.

The report was based on evidence submitted to a commissioner for the committee by witnesses for the two contestants. It was submitted to attorneys for Heflin and Bankhead for their comment before being turned over to the committee.

Testimony on Vote-Buying.

Hastings said 14 witnesses had testified to the purchase of votes or the offer to purchase.

"I do not think," he said, however, "the testimony offered upon this point is sufficiently satisfactory to make it appear that the purchase of votes was carried on to such an extent as to seriously affect the election. There was no testimony connecting Mr. Bankhead with the purchase of votes."

Hastings said 17 witnesses testified that corporations had endeavored to influence votes of their employes, but he added he was "not greatly impressed with these charges."

Pointing out Alabama law that provides any person paying the poll tax for another shall be guilty of bribery, Hastings said "the testimony shows that it was not only permissible but it was the practice to pay the poll tax for other persons."

"An assessment was made on the various candidates to furnish sufficient money to pay the poll tax for persons who would not otherwise be authorized to vote," he added.

Absentee Voting Shown.

Eight witnesses testified, Hastings said, that managers in as many different polling places left with blank ballots and returned with them marked, thereby voting persons who did not personally appear.

"There seems to be no dispute on behalf of Mr. Bankhead that this method was followed," he commented.

Hastings characterized as "important" testimony by J. L. McLane, an assistant examiner of accounts for the State of Alabama, that the judge of probate for Houston County published a list of qualified voters carrying 530 names more than shown by poll-tax receipts.

Referring to charges that an absentee ballot had been cast for a dead man in Shelby County, Hastings said committee records showed the John W. Moore who testified to refute the charge had actually voted in Jefferson County.

Therefore, Hastings said, one of two things had happened, "an absentee ballot was cast for a dead man in Shelby County, or John W. Moore, an election officer, voted in two counties."

Lourdes Novena to End With Papal Benediction

At the closing service of the Lourdes Novena in the Church of the Immaculate Conception tonight, the Feast of Our Lady of Lourdes, the Papal Benediction will be given by the Rev. Thomas J. MRS. MASSIE CASE INVESTIGATED ANEW

More Than 50 Are Reported Questioned About Attack in Honolulu.

Honolulu, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Public interest aroused by the slaying of Joseph Kahahawai, Hawaiian, has resulted in a new inquiry into the attack by five men upon Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of a naval lieutenant, last September.

The attorney general's department is pursuing the investigation quietly at the request of Gov. Lawrence M Judd, while four white persons, including Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, and Lieut Thomas Massie, her husband, are held for trial on charges of killing the alleged attacker.

The governor withheld results of the inquiry, stating today that it was "not in the best interests of the public to discuss the investigation at this time."

Gangsters Are Quizzed.

Unofficial sources, however, reveal private police detectives have questioned more than 50 gangsters and underworld characters in connection with the assault.

Valuable information was said to have been given by some of those questioned. Four men of mixed blood are held for retrial.

The attitude of Territorial officials indicated the revelations may be reserved for the new hearing of the case. The first trial, in which Kahahawai was a defendant, resulted in the jury disagreeing, 6 to 6.

New evidence is sought principally to assist private prosecutors in both the Massie assault and Kahahawai slaying cases. The Massie case is being prosecuted by Eugene H. Beebe; the Kahahawai lynching by Barry S. Ulrich.

Outside Funds Raised.

The new investigation is under direction of Deputy Attorney General Harold Kay. He has been assisted by several private detectives, employed through funds raised by the Chamber of Commerce, and the police department's most experienced detectives.

The assignment of Kay to the investigation was understood to have been influenced by the interest Federal authorities in Washington took when the case led to disturbances in Honolulu.

John C. Kelley, who took office today as public prosecutor, a new office created by the Legislature to direct all prosecutions in an effort to strengthen Territorial criminal laws, announced as one of his first tasks the elimination of gangs from Honolulu's underworld. He generally is regarded in Honolulu as a vigorous criminal lawyer.

It was decided today to request the police commission to detail ten men to the prosecutor's office for the express purpose of dealing with the gang situation.

SECRETARY RAY LYMAN WILBUR.

DR. RAY LYMAN WILBUR, head of the miscellaneous assortment of governmental hodge-podge grouped under the title Department of Interior, is a university president on vacation. He has a job waiting for him at Stanford University should Cabinet tasks prove overarduous or Democrats realize 1932 aims.

Tall, angular, kindly of visage, and with something of that same rugged genuineness of character attributed to the Civil War President, some think he resembles, Dr. Wilbur is the second member of the Wilbur family to hold a Cabinet portfolio in the last decade.

When President Hoover in those early days of 1929 cast about for a man who would forward his own ideals in stamping out illiteracy and promoting child health, it was not unusual he thought first of an educator with a medical degree. Nor is it astounding he chose the lad who was a freshman at Stanford when he was a sophomore.

But the story runs that Stanford wanted Dr. Wilbur just as much as Mr. Hoover did. So a loan was negotiated, and Dr. Wilbur is on leave of absence from the university.

Presiding over his manifold Department of Interior bureaus, commissions and boards with all the dignity of a college professor, but with none of those pedantic qualities traditionally attributed to the teaching profession, he has made such a manifest success of his new job Stanford may have difficulty in getting him back.

To him has fallen the task of conserving the Nation's natural resources. His efforts to persuade oil operators they ought to close down some of their gushers and not drill too many new ones, have not been exactly a failure.

Dr. Wilbur was born in Boonesboro, Iowa, in 1875, just eight years after his brother, Curtis, who was destined to be Navy Secretary under President Harding. He has been an educator all of his life, excluding his Cabinet career and the months he spent as chief of the Conservation Division of the United States Food Administration in 1917.

DEATH STOPS TALES OF EDGAR WALLACE

Prolific Writer of Mystery Stories Succumbs to Pneumonia in California.

Beverly Hills, Calif., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Edgar Wallace died today leaving behind more books, plays and short stories than any half-dozen men of his generation. A victim of pneumonia at 56, he had written more than 150 books (he could not recall the exact number), between 1,300 and 1,400 short stories, and twenty plays.

When death came to the famous British writer of mystery tales, he had been sick only three days, an attack of influenza Sunday developing into double pneumonia Monday. Desperate efforts were made to prolong his life. Oxygen helped for a time, but even artificial aids failed and he died early this morning, soon after his wife had left London for his bedside.

The m[illegible] prolific writer of his time came to Hollywood last December and soon amazed the motion picture colony by the speed with which he turnd out plots for the screen.

Overwork Is Not Blamed.

In reply to a question as to whether death had been hastened by overwork, Dr. E. C. Fishbaugh, his physician, said such was not the case.

"On the contrary," said the physician, "he had not worked so hard here as was his custom. They (the motion picture folks) couldn't keep up with him."

Arriving in Hollywood on a Friday, Wallace conferred with studio officials learned their immediate needs and told them he would return Monday. He did—with a bulky manuscript of 60,000 words—turned out over the week-end.

"If you don't like that one," he said with a smile, "I'll have another tomorrow."

The writer was a puzzle to the Hollywood craftsmen, who could not understand how he was able to write so much in such a short time and "always ring the bell," they said.

Was to Direct Pictures.

Wallace believed that mystery stories could be shown on the screen just as the plots are shown in books, and had he lived he would have been permitted to attempt to demonstrate his plan. Last Friday he conferred with David O. Selznick, in charge of productions at Radio Pictures, and it was decided the writer would direct some of his plays.

Wallace could not say exactly how many books he had turned out. He told friends here that he had counted "up to 150, but I have thought of several since then I didn't count." It is a matter of record that millions of his books have been sold.

Soon after he came to Hollywood a newspaper reporter called him by telephone and asked for an interview.

"Come right out," was the invitation.

The reporter motored to Wallace's Beverly Hills home in 20 minutes. The author met him at the door with two sheets of typewritten copy.

Was Married Twice.

"What is this?" asked the reporter.

"That's the interview," said the Briton.

"But I wished to ask you about your impressions of Hollywood."

"That's what that is."

Wallace began his career by patterning after the man he most admired, Kipling, writing vigorous poetry of soldier life. This attracted attention of various journals throughout the world, with the result that Wallace had a ready sale for his material. Wallace's last book was "Man at the Carlton."

Hollywood was planning memorial services as word was awaited from Mrs. Wallace, who is on the Majestic sailing toward New York. It was regarded as certain that the body will be sent to New York and then to London.

Mr. Wallace's four children are in Switzerland. He was twice married, first in 1900 to Ivy Maud Caldecott in South Africa, and in 1921 to Ethel Violet King.

Cherbourg, France, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Mrs. Edgar Wallace is expected to debark here and return to London after losing her race to the bedside of her husband, but the liner Majestic was held outside the harbor by a heavy storm tonight.

Efforts to reach the Majestic were postponed until morning, when it was expected Mrs. Wallace would be able to land in time to catch the Paris express.

HOSPITALS QUIZZED IN PATIENT'S DEATH

Congress Member Seeks Light on Diagnosis on Auto Victim.

Officials of Emergency and Gallinger Hospitals and Twelfth Precinct police yesterday were questioned in the case of Joseph Sisk, 24 years old, by Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, acting chairman of the House District committee.

Injured in a Mount Rainier, Md., automobile accident, Sisk, a Baltimore newspaperman, was taken in a Twelfth Precinct patrol to Emergency Hospital, where he was pronounced drunk. He died later at Gallinger, where he was found suffering from fractured pelvis, fractured ribs, punctured lung, lung hemorrhages and a ruptured diaphragm.

Traffic Menace Cited.

"There seems to be some question as to his treatment while in the hospital, and I have been called upon by a number of people to look into the matter, with a view of asking the District committee to have an investigation," Representative Palmisano wrote Emergency Hospital officials.

"Before doing so I thought it advisable to ask for a full report from you."

At the same time, Representative Stephen W. Gambri (Democrat), Maryland, said he intended to look into charges that a traffic menace exists across the District line on Rhode Island avenue, scene of the accident in which Sisk, and a friend, Frederick Long, were injured.

Fifteen accidents in the space of a year are alleged to have taken place at the road end where paving between Washington Railway & Electric Co. tracks comes to a sudden stop.

Emergency's Own Quiz.

While Representative Palmisano was querying Emergency Hospital on the Sisk case, the institution was conducting its own investigation of the incident. An Emergency Hospital interne, who made the first diagnosis of the fatally injured man, was called before the executive board of the hospital.

The letter Representative Palmisano addressed to the commanding officer of the Twelfth Precinct asked for "a full report pertaining to this accident and the condition of the man at the time." Gallinger was asked simply for "a full report of the diagnosis of Joseph Sisk."

Maj. Miller Rites To Be Held Today

Retired Army Officer Will Be Buried at Arlington Cemetery.

Funeral services for Maj. William Anderson Miller, retired United States Army officer, who died Tuesday at Walter Reed Hospital, will be held this morning at 11 o'clock in the chapel at Fort Myer, Va. Interment, with full military honors, will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers at the services will include Capt. Robert G. Carter, Col. Henry C. Rizer, Maj. Gen. Eben Swift, Capt. Edward J. Dorn (Navy), and Col. Charles W. Taylor.

Maj. Miller was retired in 1891 for disability in line of duty. He was a member of the Order of Indian Wars of the United States, the Military Order of the Loyal Legion and the Army and Navy Club.

HURLEY WARNS U. S. NOT TO FREE ISLES

greater progress toward economic independence, political freedom would defeat its own purpose and invite revolution and anarchy.

The political and social institutions of the Filipino people are not yet developed to a point where the stability of an independent government would be reasonably assured.

The most essential steps toward economic independence are the establishment of stable trade relations and greater diversification of Philippine agriculture and industry.

Hurley charged that no suggestion has been advanced by any Filipino or American leader providing a satisfactory program for the economic future of the islands, and that every proposal so far is predicated on favored trade relations with the United States.

Charge Brings Challenge.

The Secretary's charges that the clamor of political leaders for independence is not the sentiment of many Filipinos who fear to express their views drew a sharp challenge from Manuel Roxas, Speaker of the insular House of Representatives and joint leader of the independence mission in Washington.

"The Secretary's statement," Roxas said, "is unbelievable and could not possibly be true."

He also denied Hurley's statement that money appropriated by the Legislature was used to spread independence sentiment in the islands.

Hurley testified that many Filipino leaders had come to him at night to express their true feelings about independence and said they could not utter them publicly without facing economic ruin and social ostracism which political leaders held above their heads.

Reply to Hurley.

Replying to Secretary Hurley's statement, the Philippine independence mission issued a statement saying Hurley failed to advance any plan for economic independence except restrictions on Philippine trade, "which, if imposed, would cripple Philippine economic development."

"His statement," it said, "that freedom of speech does not exist in the Philippine Islands and that there are many Filipinos opposed to independence who dare not state their opposition for fear of being destroyed socially and in their business activities is utterly lacking in foundation.

"This statement is not only unbelievable, but if it were true would be a reflection on the American Government and its administration in the Philippines."

Later, on the floor of the House, Representative Lozier (Democrat), Missouri, objected to the arguments advanced by Secretary Hurley against Philippine independence.

"Every argument he made to the committee today was made to the English Parliament before the United States fought for independence," Lozier said. "Every prophecy he made as to what would become of the Philippine people if they obtained independence was made 150 to 160 years ago with reference to the American people."

Health Report Reveals Increase in Influenza

(Associated Press.)

Public Health officials said yesterday 4,988 cases of influenza were reported for this week, compared with 2,553 last week.

The flareup "may not be significant," Assistant Surgeon General R. C. Williams said. The figure was no larger than last year's. Williams said the largest increases were in Rocky Mountain States, although there were noticeable increases in other territory.

Senator Shortridge Improving.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Shortridge, of California, was reported yesterday by his office and hospital to be "rapidly improving" from a recent abdominal operation.

Mrs. A. P. Kneipp Burial Set Today

Wife of Assistant U. S. Forester Was Active in Church Work.

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Pauline Kneipp will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Kneipp, who died in Garfield Hospital yesterday, was the wife of Leon F. Kneipp, assistant forester of the United States Forest Service.

She was born in Barksville, Ark. Since coming to Washington with her husband in 1901 she had been active in church and club work. She was a member of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church and of the Chevy Chase Women's Club. Her home is at 4831 Thirty-sixth street northwest.

Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, Robert F., and John A. Kneipp, and two brothers, Herman C. and Frederick H. Koschwitz.

Bank Bandits' Aid Holds Crowd Outside at Bay

Halleyville, Okla., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—A crowd of citizens that gathered in front of the Bank of Halleyville today as it was being robbed by two men were held at bay by a third bandit who leveled a machine gun at them from the rear seat of the automobile in which the robbers escaped.

The crowd made a move to enter the building, whereupon the machine gunner raised to a sitting position from the bottom of the car and ordered them back. Then the men who had entered the bank with drawn pistols emerged with the loot, about $2,000. Wielding the machine gun with one hand, the bandit dropped tacks behind the automobile with the other hand as the car sped away.

DEBATE IN SENATE ON DOLE APPLAUDED

debate centered was the La Follette-Costigan bill, appropriating $375,000,000 out of the Federal Treasury to be given outright to the States for relief purposes—that and the Democratic substitute bill, which provides for the lending of $375,000,000 to the States and the distribution among them of a similar sum for road construction.

Senator Fess said he was opposed to the La Follette-Costigan bill as a matter of principle. He said he also was opposed to the Democratic substitute, not on the grounds of principle, but because he did not think it was necessary.

Delay in Voting Seen.

Republican leaders had hoped that the Senate would vote on the legislation today. Late yesterday, however, it looked like there would be a delay.

In opening his argument, Senator Fess said that the chief question was whether the situation had reached that stage where it was twice married, for the Federal Government to take a hand. He expressed the opinion that it had not.

"There is not a city in the country that can't take care of its unemployed," he said.

Debate Becomes Heated.

The duel between Senators Fess and Borah became torrid when the latter insisted that the moral effect on a hungry citizen was in no way different, whether relief came from the State or from the Federal Government.

Senator Fess argued that there was a great deal of difference between a man receiving aid from his neighbors and receiving aid from the Federal Government.

Borah asked Fess what he would do if a community had carried on its relief work for two years and its funds became exhausted.

Fess Provokes Retort.

"I would send some one like the senator from Idaho to investigate," Fess replied.

"Meanwhile babies would die and mothers would starve," said Borah.

"In a civilized community?" Fess asked.

"I am not sure about civilization since I heard the senator," Borah replied sarcastically.

Fess said that Borah was changing the whole theory of American Government; that, instead of having the people support the government, he would have the government support the people.

Theory of Support.

"The theory that the people support the government," Borah said, "passed away with the Revolution."

Minority Leader Robinson interrupted the debate once to say that the Democratic substitute bill, lending $375,000,000 to the States instead of giving it to them, embodied the same principle as was embraced in the act creating the Reconstruction Corporation.

A number of amendments to the LaFollette-Costigan bill have been introduced, including one which was offered yesterday by Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska. This would tack on to the original bill the section of the substitute bill, providing $375,000,000 for highway construction.

Mrs. O'Laughlin Dies at Home Here

Mother of Publisher Dead After Lengthy Illness; Rites Tomorrow.

Mrs. Mary Susannah O'Laughlin died early yesterday at her residence, 3744 Jenifer street, as the result of a paralytic stroke. For many years a resident of Washington Mrs. O'Laughlin witnessed and participated in numerous movements connected with the development of the city. Ill health during the last five years curtailed her activities.

Born in Baltimore, Mrs. O'Laughlin was educated at St. Cecilia's Academy in that city. Her father, a native of Pennsylvania, was a veteran of the War with Mexico and her husband was a veteran of the Civil War.

Mrs. O'Laughlin is survived by a daughter, Jane Clipper, and a son, John Callan O'Laughlin, publisher of the Army and Navy Journal, who served in the A. E. F. in France.

A funeral mass will be celebrated by Father Ahern at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Interment, which will be private, will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI TO VISIT POPE TODAY

Guards to Raise Halberds in Salute as First Meeting of Kind Is Held.

Vatican City, Feb. 10 (U.P.).—The Swiss Guards at the boundary of Vatican State will raise their medieval halberds in salute tomorrow when, for the first time in history, the premier of Italy goes to the Vatican to be received by the Pope.

Premier Benito Mussolini, leader of Italy's Fascists, will be escorted to the private library of Pope Pius XI, to be received in audience on the third anniversary of the signing of the Lateran treaties, which ended the long quarrel between church and state in Italy.

The visit has been delayed repeatedly because of intermittent difficulties between the Holy See and the government, but the present schedule for Mussolini to call at the Vatican was believed to mark the end of the outstanding controversies which have so long existed in Italy.

Commendatore Camillo Seafini, of Vatican City, will meet Mussolini at the entrance to the papal state. He will wear the full regalia of governor, and the premier will wear the uniform of prime minister, adorned with decorations and a plumed hat. One of the decorations will be the collar of the golden spur, which Pope Pius recently conferred upon him.

3 SUSPECTS SEIZED AFTER 5-MILE CHASE

The two cars swung in and out of the short and winding drives through the park until they got straightened out on Military road.

Then the alleged bandits made a serious mistake. They turned into a short blind drive and the cruiser followed.

The trio piled out of their car, according to police, and as Sergt. Lewis drew close on foot, McKinney, the youngest of the trio, pulled an automatic pistol from an arm holster and attempted to shoot him. The gun jammed, however, and McKinney and his companions turned to run.

Then the police fired several shots into the ground and the three surrendered, it is said. In addition to the automatic pistol, McKinney had a special policeman's badge whe nhe was questioned at headquarters, police said.

Morningstar took the holdup and chase rather calmly. He said it was the first time he had been held up in nearly two months. Last time was special policeman's badge when he men made him drive all the way to Baltimore before they held him up.

Man Taken in Riedel Case.

William J. Callan, 27 years old, was arrested last night in connection with the shooting of Riedel. He was booked at the Tenth Precinct Station on a charge of investigation. Questioning by Detective Sergts. Ben Kuehling and James Collins, failed to elicit any information to connect him with the case.

Callan, who gave his address as Alexandria, Va., answers the general description of the goggled bandit who took Riedel's life; but the police have nothing else that would tend to show any connection of Callan with the case.

Firing of shots through a rear window of the gas appliance shop of B. A. Coe, at 1368 Park Road, which was reported to headquarters yesterday, but which occurred on Monday night, was believed to have been caused by BB shots.

Capt. Ira Sheetz, reported to Inspector Burke yesterday that his men had made an examination of the holes in the glass and expressed the belief that they were made by air rifle shot. No bullets were found in the interior of the place.

Backus "Out of Danger."

Backus, one of the victims of the mysterious sniper, was reported as "out of danger" by Emergency Hospital doctors.

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Riedel. The services were held at his home, 3209 Adams Mill road northwest. Burial was in Prospect Hill Cemetery.

Harry Yudelevit, of 1620 Allison street northwest, yesterday surrendered to police, who had been seeking him for a week in connection with the shooting, February 3, of Henry Abrams, who was wounded while resisting a robbery at Sixteenth and Buchanan streets northwest.

Yudelevit, police said, admitted knowing both Abrams and William P. Moses, who was sitting in the automobile with Abrams. After questioning Yudelevit was released, when Moses and Abrams failed to identify him as their assailant.

Film Contract Signed By Son of Lon Chaney

Hollywood, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Creighton Chaney, son of the late Lon Chaney, celebrated his twenty-fifth birthday anniversary today by consummation of a film contract which will set him on the path to a career on the screen.

He joins the roster of featured players at Radio Pictures studio. He will not be billed as "Lon Chaney, jr.," as originally planned, owing to his insistence on making his own way without capitalizing his father's fame as "the man of a thousand faces." He has not yet been assigned to a picture.

FILM TIME TABLES

Columbia—"Mata Hari," at 11:25 a. m., 1:25, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30 and 9:35 p. m.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL.

THOSE who attended the preview screening of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "Hell Divers," at Loew's Columbia last Tuesday midnight, witnessed the latest of the "with-the-cooperation-of-the-United-States-Navy" features, with the deck of the airplane carrier Saratoga as the scene of much of the action and a demonstration of the modus operandi of the last word in the Navy's floating and flying equipment as the obvious raison de'etre of the picture.

The fictional story threading the stirring scenes of the U. S. Navy at the serious business of fulfilling its purpose as the first line of defense was a purely secondary consideration. This is eminently as it should be, for Ramon Novarro has done it before and so have Jack Holt and Ralph Graves and numerous others.

The film, nevertheless, is intensely thrilling and contains many spectacular photographic shots that make the nerves tingle and the blood run cold. Some of the scenes above the clouds with the giant dirigibles Akron, Los Angeles and others in perfect alignment, with swarms of heavier-than-air craft swooping around, over, under, between and about them, are by all odds the finest of their kind that have ever been made.

Similarly the new system of bombing from diving planes is minutely demonstrated, as compared with the less effective device of dreadnaught broadside fire as a means of erasing troublesome enemy craft from the high seas.

It is notable in certain parts of the picture that extreme caution has been exercised not to divulge the precise workings of divers and sundry perfected methods and mechanisms that have been exclusively developed by the United States Navy.

Wallace Beery, supported by Clark Gable, Conrad Nagel, Cliff Edwards, Dorothy Jordan, Marjorie Rambeau, John Miljan and the whole Pacific fleet to boot, is the hero of the story, but why he should have been made a stern disciplinarian while on duty as the best Chief Petty Officer in the outfit, and the biggest sap in the world while off duty ashore is just a trifle incomprehensible. It is also just a little hard to take.

However, when "Hell Divers" is shown publicly, it is decidedly a picture not to be missed.

A new personality will be encountered on the stage of the National Theater when Florenz Ziegfeld opens his new musical production of "Hot Cha!" on Monday night. Tito Coral is a young Spanish tenor who has never been heard in the National Capital, to the best of my knowledge, except on phonograph records.

He was born and educated, as I understand it, in Madrid and was given the benefit of vocal instruction by his parents with a view to much more serious life work than the musical comedy stage. He was destined, according to the wishes of the parents, for the priesthood, they feeling that the consecration of his naturally beautiful voice to musical liturgy would be ideal.

The Fates, however, ruled otherwise and, while still in his middle teens, Tito found himself, by a strange combination of circumstances, on the professional stage in his native land. A tour of Central and South America followed, and in San Juan, Porto Rico, the erstwhile stamping ground of this column, he was induced by a phonograph company to sign a recording contract for work in New York.

It was thus that he came to the attention of Mr. Ziegfeld.

Speaking of the Ziegfeld world premiere, "Hot Cha!" is the work of Lew Brown, Ray Henderson and Mark Hellinger and numbers among its principals, in addition to Coral, such favorites as Bert Lahr, Buddy Rogers, Marjorie White, Revva Reyes, June Knight and many more, supported by a group of 75 of the loveliest of the Ziegfeld glorified beauties.

The seat sale opens this morning at 7 o'clock. Two box offices are in operation in order that prospective purchasers may be assured prompt attention. No mail or telephone orders will be accepted.

One of the noteworthy engagements of the year also will be played at the Shubert-Belasco Theater next week, likewise beginning Monday night, when Ethel Barrymore will be seen in a rewritten revival of Richard Brinsley Sheridan's classic comedy, "The School for Scandal."

Supporting Miss Barrymore, as Lady Teazle, are Walter Gilbert, McKay Morris, Charles H. Crooker-King, Beatrice Terry, Harry Plimmer, Ernest Rowan, Charles Romano, Anita Rothe, William Kershay, A. G. Andrews, Arthur Treaches and the star's youngest son, John Drew Colt.

The selection of "The School for Scandal" as Miss Barrymore's current play has been hailed everywhere with enthusiasm, for it means that playgoers will have an opportunity of seeing one of the greatest comedies of the English language played by our foremost actress and a company of distinguished artists.

For his traveltalk Sunday afternoon in the National Theater at 3:30 E. M. Newman has selected as his topic "London Life," a sharply contrasted recital in word, motion pictures and still views of the various strata of the world's largest city's social structure.

The personal and human side of this vast capital is said to be particularly stressed in this next to last in the series of five Newman talks on Sunday afternoons.

Rosamond May, the auburn-haired dancer, heads the cast of "Hollywood Honies" taking possession of the Gayety Theater for a week, beginning with the usual Sunday matinee. The star is supported by a stellar cast of singers, dancers and comedians—not to mention a paprika chorus.

As to the concerts and special events immediately in the offing, they are, chronologically, something like this:

This afternoon at 4:45, Hans Kindler will conduct the National Symphony Orchestra, of Washington, D. C., in its sixth symphony concert at Constitution Hall, with Percy Grainger, composer-pianist, as solo artist. The orchestra at this concert also will play for the first time in Washington, "Dirge," a composition by Mary Howe, well-known composer and musician.

In Constitution Hall tomorrow night at 8:15, the Right Hon. Winston Spencer Churchill, eminent British statesman and lecturer, will be heard in an address.

John Charles Thomas, barytone of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, is the artist announced for the fifth of Mrs. Wilson-Greene's Saturday evening series of concerts at Constitution Hall. Mr. Thomas will be assisted at the piano by Lester Hodges.

When the National Symphony, with Hans Kindler conducting, gives its seventh Sunday afternoon concert, February 14, at 4 o'clock, Yelly d'Aranyi, regarded as the greatest woman violinist in Europe today, will be the guest soloist. This is looked upon as a musical event of the first water.

Celeste Pelton, pianist, and Grace Powell, violinist, will be heard in a program at the Sunday Music Hour, Sunday afternoon at 5, at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets.

Ellery Walter will be the Community Institute speaker at Central High School Auditorium, Thirteenth and Clifton streets, Tuesday evening February 16. Mr. Walter is termed the "supreme adventurer" and will talk on "High Hats and Low Brows."

In the National Theater, Tuesday afternoon at 4:40, Vicente Escudero, greatest of all Spanish gypsy dancers, will be seen, assisted by two young feminine artistes, a pianist and guitarist. Escudero occupies an unique niche as a dancer of distinctive style and extraordinary natural talent.

Rose Ponselle, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co. will appear here at Constitution Hall next Wednesday afternoon at 4:30, as the fifth and final attraction of Mrs. Wilson-Greene's Philharmonic series of afternoon concerts.

A floor show consisting of five stellar acts, with Marty Rubin as vocalist and master of ceremonies, is this week diverting patrons of Walter Von Herbulis' Club Michel, No. 1 Thomas circle.

The attractions in the mosques of the motion picture for the new week will be, to all intents and purposes, as follows: Fox, Will Rogers and Jetta Goudal in "Business and Pleasure" and Fanchon & Marco's "Hacienda" Idea; Earle, Edward G. Robinson and Loretta Young in "The Hatchet Man" and the Three Sailors headlining the vaudeville bill; RKO-Keith's, Helen Twelvetrees, Charles Bickford, and Robert Armstrong in "Panama Flo" and Lillian Roth headlining the vaudeville; Palace, Buster Keaton and Jimmy Durante in "The Passionate Plumber" and Joe Cook in his Vaudeville Revue; Rialto, Jean Harlow, Marie Prevost, and Mae Clarke in "Three Wise Girls;" Metropolitan, John Gilbert and Lois Moran in "West of Broadway;" Columbia, Greta Garbo and Ramon Novarro in "Mata Hari," second week.

Jean Harlow, the original platinum blonde and one of the most talked-of screen and stage performers of the current year, will be seen in person at Loew's Palace Theater within the next few weeks. At the moment the actual playing date has not been set. It is anticipated that her appearance will precede that of Lionel Barrymore.

Whew! Let's go places and hear and see things!

Fireman Hurt as Trolley Fails to Make Curve

The rear trucks of a Washington Railway & Electric Co. street car failed to make the left turn at Massachusetts avenue and North Capitol street yesterday morning. A member of the District Fire Department, passenger on the car, was injured and an automobile truck slightly damaged.

Private Fred Earnshaw, 37 years old, of 231 G street northwest, the fireman, suffered torn ligaments in his back when he was thrown against a guard rail in the street car. He was treated at the police and fire clinic. When the rear trucks of the street car left the track, the car collided with a truck of the Senate restaurant, operated by John J. Mayo, colored, 21 years old, of 905 Westminster street northwest.

LARGE PART OF U. S. HAS SPRING WARMTH

Many Records Shattered as Temperatures Mount in East and South.

Kansas City, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Spring fever was in the air today.

Temperatures soared in the Central States and eastward to heights that stirred thoughts of truant visits to the creek bank, the golf course, or a slumber in the warm sun.

Shirt sleeves blossomed out in St. Louis, where the mercury went to 82 degrees at 2 p. m.

Cooler in Southwest.

It was a few degrees cooler today at points such as Oklahoma City, Okla., and Shreveport, La., which had readings in the 80's yesterday, but the Weather Bureau reported the "heat wave" was giving the East a treat.

A rise in temperature of 20 degrees or more in the 24 hours ending at 7 a. m. today was experienced in Missouri, most of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, western Pennsylvania and New York. The gains were extended this afternoon.

Zephyrs from the Southwest pushed the mercury to 60 in Chicago, 35 degrees above normal.

February Record Set.

A February record of 72.8 was established at Indianapolis; Louisville had a maximum of 77.9; Pittsburgh, Pa., reported 64; Kansas City enjoyed sunshine and a 75 degree record, and Independence, Kans., reported 81 degrees.

It was growing colder in Montana and Wyoming, but at Denver the mercury pushed above 60 today.

In contrast, Bismarck, N. Dak., had zero weather this morning and a snowstorm put spring to flight in Utah.

The Weather Bureau explained that an area of low barometric pressure over the Canadian Rockies had been shunting off cold weather from the North.

Many Perish in Cold Which Grips Europe

London, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Snow and bitter cold swept over most of Europe today, and numerous deaths were reported from several points.

In Roumania eleven men and women in a wagon were found frozen to death and their horses also perished when they became stuck in a snowdrift on a country road. All the members of two families were reported to have frozen in a Bessarabian village and the Danube was ice for several miles. In northeastern France three persons died and the snows interrupted shipping and train service.

School of Religion Opens Tonight.

The second annual Lenten adult school of religion, conducted at the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, will open its sessions at 7 o'clock this evening, with four study groups and an assembly.

Filibuster Seen as Action Is Halted on 'Rum Cruises'

(Associated Press.)

What had the appearances of a well-concealed filibuster yesterday delayed indefinitely further House action on a bill designed to keep foreign vessels from engaging in "voyages to nowhere."

Under the parliamentary situation the House was considering legislation presented by its merchant marine committee. It spent nearly five hours debating a measure to amend the 1927 radio act, staying in session so late it was impossible to hold the members for consideration of the "voyages to nowhere" bill.

Chairman Davis of the merchant marine committee said afterward he understood "some of the New York delegation were very strongly opposed to the bill," which would keep foreign ships from leaving American ports, traveling a few score miles out, and returning to the city they left.

Few New York members, however, consumed time on the radio measure. Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, said that so far as he knew there was no filibuster.

Davis promised he would attempt to bring the bill before the House by unanimous consent. One objection, however, could prevent consideration.

THE MAN WHO KNOWS

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry, whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travels, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power. Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

CONGRESS IS INVITED TO WITNESS PARADE

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

An invitation to attend the Washington's Birthday celebration, to be held in Alexandria in celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, was extended to Congress yesterday by Representative Woodrum, of Roanoke, Va. The invitation was extended on behalf of the George Washington Birthday Association of Alexandria, which has charge of the celebration.

A special reviewing stand to accommodate members of Congress and their families will be erected on North Washington street, which comprises a part of the Mount Vernon Memorial boulevard, which will be officially opened to traffic February 22.

The George Washington Birthday Association, which will have charge of the Washington's Birthday celebration and parade, yesterday issued, through Harry F. Kennedy, chairman of the finance committee, an appeal to the citizens of Alexandria for funds with which to carry out the elaborate plans which have been made.

Dr. Jan Skalicky, counselor of the Czechoslovakian Legation, will be the speaker at the Fidac meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary, to be held in Gadsby's Tavern, at 8 o'clock this evening. Dr. Skalicky will be accompanied by his wife, who is a noted singer and who will render several native songs, in costume.

The initial broadcast in connection with the parade of February 22, to be staged by the George Washington Birthday Association in Alexandria, will take place this evening at 6 o'clock over Station WMAL, in Washington.

Miss Ella Amelia Standiford died on Tuesday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. Lyle Gillis, 133 Rose Crest avenue, and the funeral will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow evening at Wheatley's funeral home, 809 King street, Alexandria. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, pastor of the Del Ray Methodist Episcopal Church South. Burial will be in Union Cemetery.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Gillis and Mrs. M. L. Dinwiddie, of Alexandria, and a brother, Harry Standiford, of Washington.

Return to God Held World's Vital Need

Bishop Freeman Declares Economic Recovery Not So Important.

Recognition of Divine power and a spiritual uplift rather than mere economic recovery were declared yesterday by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, to be the great need of the world.

Speaking on "The National Significance of Lent" over a Nation-wide Columbia radio network from the Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral, Bishop Freeman cited the waste of human life in the World War and in the present fighting in China as an illustration of the lack of spiritual faith predominating throughout the world. "Nothing is so cheap and wasted as human life today," he said. "We wasted 10,000,000 lives in the World War and now more lives are being sacrificed in the fighting in the Far East. Life has become cheaper than machinery."

Bishop Freeman urged that during this Lenten season the American people turn to self-recovery through recognition of the utter supremacy of God, and through prayer. "We are witnessing today not only a great economic depression," he said, "but the greatest soul hunger in our Nation's history."

1,000 Colored Children In Capitol Pilgrimage

Approximately 1,000 colored school children gathered yesterday in the caucus room in the House Office Building in connection with the annual celebration of Negro history week, sponsored by the Association for Study of Negro Life and History, Dr. Carter G. Woodson, director, to meet Representative Oscar DePriest, of Illinois.

Other members of Congress who witnessed the exercises were Representative Henry T. Rainey and Representative W. E. Hull, of Illinois; Representative U. S. Guyer, of Kansas, and Representative Frank Murphy, of Ohio.

Elective School Board To Be Debated Tonight

Representative Allard H. Gasque, of South Carolina, will take the affirmative on the question "Shall members of the District Board of Education be elected by the citizens of the city?" in a debate tonight at the Langley Junior High School.

The House member, who is on the District committee, and who has sponsored a bill on the subject he defends, will be opposed by Robert J. Cottrell, executive secretary of the Board of Trade. The discussion has been arranged by the Parent-Teacher Association of the Langley School.

Capitol Heights Treasury Lacks $3 of Having Money

Payment of taxes in Capitol Heights, Md., has been so slow that the town now has a deficit of $3, and municipal employes can not be paid until back taxes amounting to about $2,000 are collected.

The deficit was announced at the regular meeting of the town council, when an appropriation of $8 was made for the repair of Sixty-first street. There was at this time only $5 in the treasury. Drafts on the town funds, payable when taxes are collected, will be given to employes of the community. These drafts, which will bear no interest, may be used in payment of taxes.

George Finger, president of the council, said that he would accept one of the drafts in payment for postal cards which the town will use to notify voters of the approaching general registration. By the charter of the town this must be made every ten years. Voters will be registered in the fire house from 7 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock at night on March 21 and 28. Registration officers are Harry Evans, Mr. Finger and George Smith, but Frank Lawrence has been appointed to fill Mr. Smith's place while he is ill.

Numerous complaints about the condition of roads in the town were made to the council. It was reported that ruts a foot deep have existed on Lawrence avenue for four years, making the street impassable for autos. The condition of Baltimore avenue also was criticized. Robert S. Sillers said there had been a pond of stagnant water near his house for three years and Andrew Johnson told the council he had been advised by his doctor to move to a more healthful community.

Fairfax Chamber to Study Basic Utility Service Rate

The public utilities committee of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce was instructed yesterday at a meeting held at Baileys Cross Roads to investigate electric and telephone rates throughout the county.

It was pointed out that rates in Washington have dropped considerably during the past year and existing charges in the county are entirely too high. The committee was instructed to ascertain whether it would be possible to establish a basic rate which would eliminate telephone toll charges within Fairfax County.

A bill before the State Legislature, which would allow citizens of the county to decide by a referendum vote whether the State constitution should be amended to permit cities and towns to assess abutting property owners for street improvements.

Several road problems were discussed among which was the possible elimination of dangerous curves on the Columbia Pike. It was announced that six floats would be entered by the Chamber in the bicentennial parade in Alexandria, February 22.

Clarendon Masons Feted in Richmond

150 From Arlington Are Attending Sessions of Grand Lodge.

With more than 400 Masons from all sections of the State in attendance, Richmond Lodge, No. 10, entertained as their guests the officers and members of Columbia Lodge, No. 285, A. F. and A. M., of Clarendon, at a meeting Tuesday night in the Grand Lodge hall at Richmond, Va.

The meeting marked the approach of the opening session of the Grand Lodge at which time Harry K. Green, of Arlington County, will be elevated to the office of grand master of Masons in Virginia.

Headed by H. Bruce Green, master, who presided, the officers and members of Columbia Lodge, acting under authority of the grand working committee and under immediate supervision of Right Worshipful Alfred C. Cosdon, conferred the master Mason's degree. After conferring of the degree and the reception, a banquet was spread in the dining hall adjoining the lodge room. More than 150 Masons from Arlington County are in Richmond attending the sessions which end today.

Maryland Man Injured In Auto-Bus Collision

A Bowie, Md., man was seriously injured yesterday when the automobile he was driving collided with a bus of the Nevin line at First and D streets northeast. Elbert T. Johnson, 62 years old, is in Providence Hospital with severe head injuries and deep lacerations about his head and hands.

No one on the bus, which was going south on First street, was injured. William Howard Ward, 26 years old, of Baltimore, driver of the bus, was booked at the First Precinct Station on a charge of reckless driving. He was later released in custody of his attorney.

$2,500 Fire in Cherrydale.

Fire of unknown origin threatened the home of H. H. Wilson, Fairfield street, Cherrydale, yesterday afternoon causing damage estimated at $2,500. The damage was said to be partly covered by insurance. No one was at home at the time.

French Family of 6 Murdered.

Moirax, France, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—All the members of a family six, including a 77-year-old grandmother and a 4-months-old baby, were found dead in their farmhouse near here tonight. Police said they had been murdered.

Kidnaping of Woman In Annapolis Is Hoax

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Mrs. Esther Sands, 25, reported kidnaped yesterday after her disappearance from her disordered home here, was back today. Mrs. Sands was arrested in Baltimore in company with a man who admitted they had run away from her husband, Charles Sands, and left the home in disorder in an effort to lead police into a belief of foul play.

Both the woman and her companion were released by officers. They said there was no charge which could be placed against them. Mrs. Sands said she had no desire to return to her husband.

ECONOMY WILL HALT SCHOOL BUDGET RISE

Prince Georges Plans to Keep Expense Down in 450-Pupil Gain.

Although an anticipated increased enrollment of 450 in Prince Georges County schools would normally raise the school budget about $21,000, the school board has announced that it will attempt to hold the 1932 budget to the same figure as in 1931.

This decision was reached at a conference between the board and the board of county commissioners. Eight economy measures were outlined to hold the 1932 expenses to the $498,340 sum asked for 1931, but it was decided not to cut the salaries of teachers.

Where Savings Will Be Made.

A saving of $8,000 is expected through the decision to employ no additional teachers, except where more will be necessary to prevent part-time attendance. It is thought that $2,000 more will be saved through reducing the teaching force in schools where the attendance has decreased.

No further bus service will be provided, except where it will save the expense of an additional teacher, with an anticipated economy of $2,000. Fuel costs will be reduced by $1,000, repairs and maintenance by $2,000, and repairs and replacement of school equipment by $2,000.

By extreme economy it is hoped to be able to reduce the current year's deficit by $3,500, and a saving of $1,500 will be made by reducing the allowance for summer school attendance, text books and material of instruction.

Average Teacher Salary.

The average salary of a teacher in the county schools is $1,160 per year, and the county stands sixteenth in the 23 counties in Maryland in salaries paid to high school instructors. It is sixth in the amounts paid to graded school teachers. On these facts the joint meeting faced its decision not to cut the salaries of the teaching staff.

Normally, under the enrollment expected for next year, the school budget would be $519,985. By holding it to last year's amount of $498,340, an increase of 3 cents in the school tax rate will be avoided. Actually, there will be a decrease in the school rate, as the assessed value of property in the county has increased by about $1,000,000. Under the reduced budget the average cost per year per pupil will be about $45, compared with $47 last year, and $50 in 1928.

Prince Georges Firemen Will Aid Rescue Squad

The volunteer fire companies of Prince Georges County will attempt to raise funds for the aid of the county rescue squad, it was decided at the regular meeting of the county association last night, after a report that the squad was "just about flat" financially.

T. Weston Scott, chairman of the banquet committee, announced that Gov. Albert C. Ritchie would be unable to attend the dinner at College Park on March 5, due to presidential campaign speech in South Carolina the day before. A suggestion to hold the field day separate from the annual convention was also discussed at last night's meeting.

Braden Addresses Clarendon Group

County Manage Requests Citizens' Cooperation in Government.

Speaking at a mass meeting held in Clarendon last night under the auspices of the Clarendon Citizens Association, County Manager Roy S. Braden declared that Arlington County has great opportunities under its new form of government but too much must not be expected at once.

"This is not a one-man government," he said. "It will require the whole-hearted cooperation of all the citizens to make it the success it should be. There are still many laws which are inadequate under the new form of government and should be amended, but we must go slowly and see to it that those amendments are just what is needed to bring about the best results."

In conclusion Mr. Braden asked the citizens to forget the feeling of sections.

Dr. Frank T. Stone, president, presided. Music was furnished by the Washington-Lee High School Band.

GRANDI'S PLAIN SPEECH.

The only address thus far made at the Geneva disarmament conference which really invigorates the spirit of disarmament is that of Signor Grandi, Italy's foreign minister. In his speech yesterday he presented with convincing force the reasoning that calls for reduction of armaments, and he supported his case by offering in behalf of Italy to carry his proposals into effect. He reminded the conference that the disarmament of Germany was justified by the victorious powers on the ground that it was a first step toward general disarmament, to which they pledged themselves.

Signor Grandi pointed out that between 1925 and 1930, when the powers were concluding the Locarno pact, the Kellogg treaty and the general arbitration treaty, the world's expenditures for armaments expanded from $3,497,000,000 to $4,128,000,000. Peace and security agreements had not reduced competition in armaments. The reason for this, in his opinion, was the fear that armed force would not always be employed on the side of justice. Countries living under the threat of force could not be sure that their rights would be respected. The disarming of Germany was for the purpose of making it impossible for Germany to carry on a war of aggression. "This was done," said Mr. Grandi, "precisely with a view to the future international organization of peace then under consideration."

Instead of demanding security as a necessary prerequisite of disarmament, the Italian foreign minister insisted that without disarmament there could be no security. A fresh armament race is in sight, notwithstanding the making of peace pacts. This increase of armaments makes for insecurity, in spite of all agreements looking toward the preservation of peace by renunciation of war and otherwise.

By reminding the powers of Geneva of their pledge to work for reduction of armaments, and by pledging Italy's cooperation, Mr. Grandi has brought the conference face to face with its plain duty. If its deliberations are not to end in a humiliating exposure of insincerity the conference must grapple with its problem in the spirit proposed by Mr. Grandi; that is, it must scrap the idea that it can attain universal security while at the same time building up extravagant and threatening war machines.

SPENDING AIDS ROCHESTER.

A spending campaign in Rochester and Monroe County, N. Y., has led that section out of the chasm of depression. An intensive ten-day campaign, in which every home and business establishment of the district was solicited, ended in citizens' pledges to spend $6,026,351 to create jobs and restore normal purchasing power. The movement was started by a small group of industrialists who had watched numerous unsuccessful schemes to overcome business adversity.

An army of 1,550 voluntary workers under the direction of the Rochester Community Chest found after three days' work that the total aimed at was too low. Homeowners able to employ labor for repairs, average citizens waiting for the upturn before spending and small businesses subscribed the full amount on the fourth day. They doubled it the tenth day, and before the final meeting it had been tripled. The enthusiasm with which the movement was carried forward was reminiscent of the Liberty loan drive.

The practical value of the campaign is being carefully checked by adding machines and a corps of bookkeepers. Spending got under way before the enthusiasm had a chance to cool, and many pledges were fulfilled the first day. The checking bureau found that others followed rapidly. Today, although the pledged sum has by no means been spent, business men report a definite upward trend in trade and employment has increased. One of the most valuable results has been the spirit of confidence throughout the community. This is especially marked in the case of the man in modest circumstances. He seems to have thrown off his fear of losing his job and is making work for some one else by making necessary purchases.

The results of the experiment have been so encouraging that optimism has spread into other western New York towns outside of Monroe County. Letters from all parts of the United States pour in in such numbers that about half of the time of the committee which sponsored and directed the movement is spent in answering questions. These are mostly from cities contemplating a similar experiment. As yet complete figures are not available, but the sponsors at Rochester state that the important thing is to do something that enables every citizen, big and little, to help point his community back toward normal activity. "It has worked here," they say, "and should succeed with you."

A HARD-WORKING PRESIDENT.

Being President of the United States is the most arduous job in the world. More than one man who entered the White House with a strong and vigorous constitution has left it broken in health and with a distracted nervous system. In times like the present, when the President is taking upon his shoulders unprecedented burdens, it becomes absolutely necessary for him to conserve his energy.

Visitors to Washington who wish to see the President and shake his hand seldom realize that they are numbered among thousands who seek the same privilege. They know, of course, that the President is a busy man, but they are inclined to think of their reception at the White House as an exception to the rule. From the President's point of view, however, White House receptions have become an onerous routine that interferes with his more important functions.

Some subordinate officials in the Department of State and other branches of the Government are virtually inaccessible to the public. Yet the President is exposed to private interviews, handshaking orgies, receptions, &c., with an astonishing lack of reservation. Congressmen send a vast host of visitors to see the President with a view to enhancing their own claims to prestige in Washington. Publicity seekers swarm about the White House in a constant stream, knowing that if they succeed in presenting their schemes to the President those schemes make good "copy" for the newspapers. Hundreds of job seekers and others soliciting favors for their friends impose upon the President's time.

Furthermore, the President has interested himself in the economic conditions of the country more than any other individual in the United States. He has kept in close touch with conditions ever since the depression began. His thought and energy have been spent in devising means of relieving the people without fastening upon the United States any uneconomic panaceas and without venturing into the quagmire of socialism. The struggles of President Hoover with the forces of depression are a dramatic chapter in American history.

It becomes necessary for the President to devote still more time to business matters. It is humanly impossible for him to spend several hours per day greeting and entertaining visitors and yet keep abreast of the problems that are pressing upon him for solution. Mr. Hoover has taken the wiser course in curtailing his social contacts. His decision will not be popular with visiting delegations, but it gives assurance to the whole country that the President is giving himself wholly to the tasks imposed upon him.

TAXES VS. THE DOLE.

There is a vital connection between the statement of Undersecretary Ogden L. Mills before the ways and means committee of the House and the petition of the American Federation of Labor executives presented at the White House. The committee has discovered that it must raise $455,000,000 more than was heretofore considered necessary in its forthcoming tax program. In the face of such an emergency for the Government, the demands of labor unions or any other organizations for relief funds direct from the Federal Treasury take on a hollow sound.

It is apparent that drastic tax measures must be enacted to balance the budget in the next two years. Estimates of revenue presented to Congress in November have been considerably reduced because business has continued on a downward trend. Congress may find it necessary to levy a general sales tax or other extensive imposts to counteract the rapidly rising deficit. It is absolutely necessary that the tax measures adopted shall provide for a balancing of the budget within the near future.

Taxes on the wealthy will not be sufficient to meet this demand, no matter how high the rates are boosted. The measures to be adopted by the ways and means committee will undoubtedly reach into the pockets of the man of moderate income. The burden of stemming the deficit will be felt throughout the country. Business, too, may suffer as a result of the higher demands of the Government.

In the face of this situation, it is madness to consider appropriating hundreds of millions from the Federal Treasury for charity. The Government has no magic process by which it can obtain money from the people. Whatever funds are required for relief work can be raised by private institutions, municipal and State governments just as easily as through Federal taxation.

The demand for a Federal relief appropriation has been based upon the ignorant error that the common people would get something for nothing. Now it is apparent that any appropriation for relief would have to come directly out of the pockets of the average man. When taxpayers and prospective taxpayers realize this they will raise a vehement protest against the La Follette dole bill. In the meantime the Senate should be impressed with the dangers of inaugurating a new orgy of spending when the tax increase, without any dole, has become so onerous.

CHINA'S AMERICAN AIRMAN.

The commander in chief of the Chinese air forces, known as Gen. Chang Hui-chang, is none other than Bert Hall, the American ace and soldier of fortune. He is a native of Kentucky and his home is now at Higginsville, Mo. During the World War as a member of the Lafayette Escadrille he shot down twenty enemy planes, receiving official credit for nine. Hall was one of the original organizers of the Lafayette Escadrille. Today he and Bill Thaw are the only survivors of the original seven who organized the squadron.

Hall's career as aviation's first soldier of fortune started before the great war. He went to Turkey, where Abdul Hamid was fighting the Bulgarians. He became the Turkish air force at $100 a day. His French mechanic, Andre Pierce, served as observer on flights over the lines. When the Turks cut Hall's pay in half he met two Bulgarian agents and agreed to serve them for $100. After a short time the Bulgars, too, cut his pay to $50, but when he made plans to fly away he and Pierce were caught, thrown in jail, and ordered to be shot the next morning with seven criminals. Pierce managed to escape, and with the money they had saved he bribed officials and bought Hall's release.

Among Hall's daring exploits during the World War was the planting of spies in Germany by plane and then returning for them after they had obtained the necessary information. Frequently he would drop a man in the morning and return for him in the evening. Once he carried over a secret service worker who in reality was a German agent. When he called for this man Hall was met with machine gun fire, and he barely escaped.

Now in his late forties, Bert Hall has been a war-time aviator for more than twenty years. The present conflict finds him in the thick of it. In 1928 he arranged with the Chinese to train aviators and see that they obtained planes. Upon his arrival he found the machines in use out of date and practically useless, so he obtained a commission to buy aircraft. He conveyed a number of fine airplanes from Paris to China.

A letter received here last summer by Lieut. John J. Niles, who knew Hall in France, said that "Gen. Chang" had taken seven of his best pilots shortly before and deserted the Nanking government to become head of the air corps of the Canton government. Now that Chinese forces are united to oppose Japan, "Gen. Chang" heads the aviation corps of China.

Vermont will be pictured at the 1933 World Fair as the "Switzerland of America." The State should stage wrestling matches to represent arms conferences at Geneva.

The Chinese boycott against Japan is likened to United States gang racketeering. That explains why Japan is in China—checking up income tax returns.

George Washington has been blamed by a violator of a traffic ordinance who could not find a place to park. Well, George did lay out the Capital.

Gambling is declared to be prevalent in the District. One of its most common forms is trying to locate a job without congressional influence.

The Trade Commission has cited ammunition makers for unfair methods of competition. Probably for selling to both gangsters and police.

MODERN CITIES

From the New York Evening Post.

Three students of Harvard University have reported the results of an intensive and extensive survey of the architectural trend in the American city. They think they have discovered a tendency toward the self-contained "city within a city" which may fundamentally affect the future of metropolitan living.

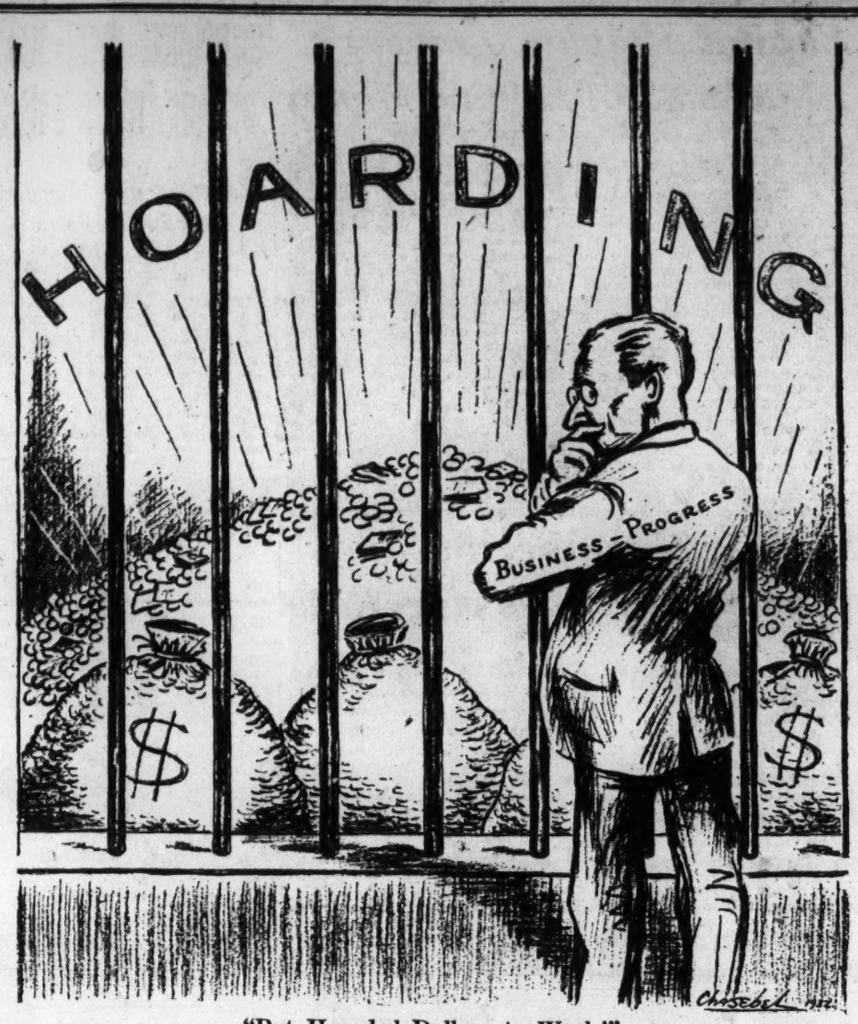
In New York, Chicago, Cleveland and elsewhere there are already great buildings and groups of buildings which supply their inhabitants with all they need for comfort and convenience, for work and play, for good living and easy access to all the complex activities of civilization. Stores and offices are to be found beneath the same roof with apartments and hotel rooms, and under them are direct connections with fast transportation.

This arrangement has been made possible principally by the development of skyscraper construction and by all the discoveries which permit fuel, light, power and water to be delivered through pipes and wires wherever they are needed. One electric cable carries light to a thousand rooms, another supplies them all with telephone communications, a third carries the power to operate the machinery of modern living. Far away from the centers of the cities are the power plants, the reservoirs, the mines and factories which make it possible to build and maintain an "indoor city."

But another tendency seems to oppose this concentration and has been credited with the ability to "decentralize" the cities. High-speed transportation makes it possible for those to live far away from their work who prefer to do so. Pipes, wires and rails provide the suburbs and more distant places with nearly every convenience available in mid-city. There are added advantages in better air, greater quiet and more space and privacy for agreeable living.

These students of Harvard seem to have allowed a little too much importance to a few architectural experiments, impressive in their scale and in the rather luxurious living which they represent. An argument on the other side is the great suburban area which surrounds every city and steadily extends farther afield. Another is the purely residential community which may lie 30 miles from the town where its leading citizens are engaged in business.

There appears to be a double trend affecting the growth of the modern city. It stands for two types of people and their differing tastes. Some like to live downtown, and architecture, transportation and commerce are catering expertly to their preferences. A far greater number still prefer to live beyond the city limits. The same factors, moreover, which have produced the "indoor city" are making it easy to live somewhere else than in the luxurious rabbit warrens at the city's center.



"Put Hoarded Dollars to Work!"

POST HASTE.

Gov. Roosevelt is busy figuring out from the Democratic committee statement how it is that it will be more beneficial for him to have an uninstructed convention rather than to go to Chicago with a majority already pledged.

Senator Hull says the Hoover credit plan is only "first aid." Wouldn't you hate to think of this country as in the incurable ward having a leg cut off and a blood transfusion?

Since China has demonstrated fighting ability and has a force at hand more than sufficient to preserve order at Shanghai, it would seem that a truce might contemplate the retirement of the Japanese for 20 miles rather than demanding such action by the Chinese army.

The cry that there is not enough money in circulation makes us wonder what it was we were using three years ago when business was booming, no one complaining of a cash shortage, and yet there was a billion less loose change about than there is today.

The truth of the situation is, of course, that it isn't cash that is lacking, but credit. The fractional part of the Nation's business that is done with cash is so small the average person does not realize the actual facts.

And what are the best financial minds of the country doing in this situation? Preparing to inflate the currency with free silver or greenbacks? No, they are aiding the return of a normal flow of 98 per cent credit, not adding unnecessarily to the 2 per cent cash.

The Japanese have appropriated $14,500,000 for military purposes. From the figures possibly they are right in claiming the little affair in China is not war. According to Representative Ruth Owen that would only support a world war 14½ minutes.

Just as well for the President to cut out the handshaking now. By the time Sol Bloom's and George Washington's visitors get coming good Mr. Hoover wouldn't have time for anything else.

With all this talk about the Federal budget Mister Taxpayer should not overlook the fact that local taxes have increased in much greater ratio in the last ten years and today bulk larger than State and Federal taxes combined.

Japan at Geneva proposes the abondonment of air bombardments. If she can induce the Chinese to agree she might be allowed to put the policy in effect immediately at Shanghai. PAUL HUDSON.

STRANGE WINTER.

Well, I don't know,
Long years ago
Winter provided boyhood
With its snow
And guaranteed
A freezing temperature
Which made the joys of skating
Fairly sure.

Who got a sleigh
On Christmas Day
Could plan to use it
Almost until May.
The ice was thick
On pond and pool,
And youngsters took
Their skates to school.

Strange winters these
That seldom freeze;
Designed, perhaps,
The old to please,
But not, I'd say,
So very nice
For boys with skates
Who wait for ice.

There Is No Surplus of Soup in the Kitchen If Diners Haven't Enough

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A YOUTH from the mountains of North Carolina, driving a rattletrap truck with a home-made body, crosses a bridge on his way out of Florida. His cargo is oranges, uncrated and ungraded, piled in the truck body like corn or coal.

It is late afternoon and he is told that 89 trucks with similar loads have preceded him across the bridge.

He bought the oranges from the grower and paid for them at the rate of 75 cents for a "field crate," which holds approximately two bushels. He will sell them back home at $1 a bushel and thus make a fair profit.

Trucks are not the only vehicles hauling these uncrated "field run" oranges. On railroad sidings, in big towns and small, ordinary freight cars serve as temporary warehouses from which the golden fruit is sold to retailers or consumers—by the bushel or the wagon load.

Yet, despite this prodigal distribution in the Southeast, untold thousands of tons of Florida oranges will rot on the ground for want of a market.

And in the North—in the richest section of this richest of nations—millions of people will deny themselves a morning glass of orange juice because the cost is beyond their means.

In Georgia, this year as last, luscious peaches will be fed to hogs or thrown into rivers or left on the trees to fall and rot on the ground. And in California the quantity of peaches unpicked and wasted will be greater than the total crop of Georgia's eight million trees.

Last year California peach growers pulled up 600,000 trees. This year they have agreed to pull up 700,000 more.

Last year, despite Federal aid, wine bricks and home fermentation, over 400,000 tons of the finest California grapes rotted unpicked on the vines.

The same shameful story is true of grape fruit, of apples, of strawberries, of everything that grows in the ground.

Is there in truth a surplus?

Is there a surplus while millions of people—millions of undernourished children—long in vain for the "luxuries" fed to hogs?

It is a hard commentary on America's boasted efficiency that fruit in the orchard "isn't worth picking" while the retail price is so high that millions can't afford it.

The fault, you say, is in the cost of transportation.

Leave the Army Alone.

Hartford Courant.

The United States Army is, with the exception of Germany, India and two Latin-American countries, the smallest in the world in respect to the population of the country. Its authorized strength is approximately 137,000 men, enlisted and commissioned, which is less than the active armies of Jugoslavia, Poland or Czechoslovakia. Yet the territory that it is called upon to protect is larger than that of any other great power with the exception of the British Empire. It numbers less than half the total of American casualties during the World War, while the weekly average of killed and wounded for all the armies during the four years was almost exactly equal to the size of the present regular army.

But even this small force would be measurably reduced in size and infinitely in efficiency by the terms of the appropriation bill for 1933 that has just been completed by the House subcommittee on War Department appropriations. According to the bill, 8,000 enlisted men and 2,000 commissioned officers would be dropped from the rolls; the Citizens' Military Training Camps would be suspended; the Reserve and the National Guard would find their activities greatly curtailed; the training of the regulars would be reduced, and all salary raises and promotions would be forbidden. Desperately small as it is today to face any national emergency, the Army projected by the bill would be even less of a protection, while the second line of defense would be more seriously affected.

Killing the Goose.

Detroit News.

A tax expert in Congress says it is an American tendency to kill the goose that lays the golden egg. Maybe we're just trying to get at the wishbone to make a wish.

Smith Is "Receptive."

Cincinnati Enquirer.

By announcing he is willing to lead the Democratic party again if nominated, Alfred E. Smith tells us nothing we did not already know. Nevertheless, his candid statement must be interpreted as a powerful factor making for a heated Democratic convention. Because they appeal to many of the same groups, Smith and Roosevelt are incompatible aspirants in the race.

Mr. Smith is certain to have a substantial and vociferous following at Chicago—enough probably to prevent the nomination of any one he does not wish nominated, and not enough to secure the nomination for himself. This does not mean that Smith's strength is certain to be used against Roosevelt, but it does increase the prospects of the dark horses, Baker, Cox, Ritchie, Garner and possibly Gov. Cross of Connecticut.

Madison Square Again.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The anti-Roosevelt forces, while no longer leaderless, face a big handicap in the early lead piled up for the New York governor. But their chances of forcing him out of the race or of deadlocking the convention at Chicago are vastly improved. And if the tug-of-war staged at Madison Square Garden in 1924 is repeated in Chicago, the prospects for Messrs. Ritchie, Baker, Garner and other lesser candidates will be materially brighter.

How to Win.

Macon Telegraph.

Back in the old days the presidential candidates went after the saloon vote, or the antisaloon vote, or the labor vote, or the this and that vote, but this year the candidate who walks off with the Wendel heir vote will ride in the next inaugural parade.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Musicians Frozen Out by Big Radio Chains—Demands Regulation in the Public Interest.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to say what I believe to be a timely word in behalf of our musicians. American musicians are in a bad fix. Before the depression came tens of thousands of them had been thrown out of work by the "talking movies" and other mechanical reproductions; they have also suffered by the decline of the legitimate theater; besides they have to compete with thousands of alien musicians who come into this country in spite of the contract labor law.

An official of the American Federation of Musicians recently testified before a congressional committee that more than 80 per cent of the membership are out of employment. And yet, at this very moment, they are sitting idly by in the face of a development which bodes neither them nor the public any good. I refer to radio and to the part music necessarily has in radio programs. The people own the air for radio purposes, and Congress in the Federal radio act of 1924 legislated ostensibly for the control of radio "in the public interest;" and yet this novel utility, which means so much materially and culturally to our people, is fast being monopolized.

Broadcasting, already under the control of a few great companies, is centered in a few large cities from which the programs are "chained" throughout the country to such stations as can pay the price. Local industries, advertisers, and activities are in effect denied the air, and local musicians and others are deprived of employment. A single New York orchestra by chain broadcast takes the place of the many local orchestras of equally good or better talent. Of course, a local advertiser will be permitted to ride along for a few seconds on a general broadcast program if he has the price. Such a development is detrimental to the "public interest" which it was the declared purpose of Congress to protect.

MUSIC LOVER.

Senator La Follette and His Fellow Socialists Holding Up Real Relief Measures.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Allow me to compliment The Post for the editorial, "Friend of the Poor," in which Senator La Follette's reckless waste of the taxpayers' money is assailed. The editorial brings out the fact that La Follette and other men of his caliber are in reality doing the unemployed untold harm. They have tried to obstruct the passage of every practical measure to end the depression that has been introduced in every session of Congress since the depression started in 1929.

Senator La Follette and his fellow Socialists have taken every opportunity to line up with the Democrats to lower the tariff rates on industrial products entering this country from Europe. All of which adds to the business uncertainty and prolongs the depression. Now he is urging the Government to pay a dole which would amount to about $43 to each person who is unemployed. What would the unemployed do after that was spent? Mr. La Follette does not say. Should the La Follette-Costigan relief bill be adopted the efforts of the States and private welfare agencies to relieve the unemployed would slacken, then the poor would be as bad, if not worse off than before.

If Mr La Follette and his fellow Socialists really want to help the cause of the poor man, they should cease playing politics or resign from the Senate (I am in favor of the latter), for as long as they are able to obstruct any practical measures to aid the country, business will remain slack and people will continue to hoard their money, until a majority of conservative Republicans regain control of both Houses of Congress.

Americans Against Commitments Designed to Bolster Up Old World Militarism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The editorial, "The Disarmament Game," makes another straight hit in your effective opposition to the delusive and abortive League of Nations.

If we omit a scant contingent of socialistic propagandists, the League-of-Nations pacifists of the United States form a fine body of citizens. Insofar as they strive to inculcate the idea of peace on earth the great mass of Americans are in sympathy with them. Where they fall short as American citizens is in failing to consider things as they are.

The American ideal has always been that of peace, but I trust the American electorate will always stand in opposition when, in the name of peace, it is proposed that we take part in the operation of an institution set up outside of America and devoted to the regulation of Old World militarism. Mighty Little Good Music via Radio. A Fan Gives Up Trying.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Morning, noon or night, it makes no difference, when a lover of real music turns the dials, trying to get other than music whch reminds one of the African jungles, he is unsuccessful nine out of ten times. It's just a conglomeration of jazz and very little of classical and semiclassical music. Can't we have those masters of music, those great composers, Lehar, Strauss, Schubert, Gounod, Tschaikowsky, Nevin and others, who left us music which is charming and beautiful, as well as entertaining?

A glimpse of the crowds at the Municipal Opera gives one an idea of how much people take to good music. Then there are many samples of really entertaining music in the overtures and operas which a music lover can enjoy to his heart's content, but which seldom come via the radio. I have given up trying.

A LOVER OF GOOD MUSIC.

RAILWAYS TO SLASH SMALL-LOAD RATES

Western Roads Plan Move to Regain Lost Business From Trucks.

Chicago, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Western railroads are going courtin' to regain a love they once scorned, the odd lot traffic they lost to the trucks.

On March 15, they will offer small cargo shippers of the Western Trunk Line territory bouquets of conciliation in the form of lower rates, less red tape of classifications, speedier service and more flexible methods.

Their plan is to bring back some of the "parcel" business that railroad men call "L. C. L." (less than carload) which in recent years has been slipping to the highways at an alarming rate and adding to the financial worries of railroad executives.

To File New Tariffs.

Final preparations are now making to file new tariffs with the Interstate Commerce Commission. The territory embraces Wisconsin, Minnesota, both Dakotas, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, Colorado and the Chicago district in Illinois.

It will be an experiment scheduled to last only until January 27, 1933, and the trunk lines committee, when it approved the plan at a recent meeting prefaced its instructions to rail traffic men with a parenthetical statement that it was intended to meet "truck competition."

Under the plan, shippers who comply with certain weight requirements will be permitted to load any kind of freight, regardless of present classifications, the sole provision being that they load it themselves and have the consignee unload it at the destination.

Example of Reductions.

Although the new tariffs have not been completed as yet, the following example has been worked out by one of the committee's rate experts:

Under present rates, dry goods is considered first class freight and the less than carload rate per 100 pounds between Kansas City and Chicago is $1.29. Under the new rates, if the shipper sends a minmum of 12,000 pounds he will be given a rate of $1.12. Upward from 25,000 pounds the rate will be 88 cents and 40,000 pounds or more will be 54 cents.

Whether this step is one of a series planned by the Nation's rails to regain the truck business and increase their dwindling tariffs, officials here would not say. They said, however, that Eastern railroads contemplated a similar move.

Charges Answered By Radio Nominee

Brown Denies Lobbying Among Senators for Confirmation.

(Associated Press.)

Thad H. Brown, of Columbus, Ohio, denied yesterday before a Senate committee considering his nomination to the Radio Commission, that he was backed by interests wishing to obtain certain broadcasting licenses.

Brown, at present general counsel of the commission, denied to the Senate interstate commerce committee he had "lobbied" among senators for confirmation, that he had been indorsed by any radio stations, or that he had promised promotion to any commission employes if he got the job.

Brown was questioned about a newspaper assertion that he was threatened with suit while Secretary of State of Ohio for recovery of some $69,000 in interest that was alleged to have been lost through slow deposit of funds from automobile tag sales. Brown said he changed the system whereby such funds were deposited weekly in county banks and that the banks had voluntarily returned to the State $55,000 in interest rather than have a controversy.

Raftery Files as Ready To Run for Presidency

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Thomas Raftery, of New York, wants his name placed on the Republican presidential preference primary ballot in Nebraska April 12. He wrote Secretary of State Frank Marsh asking that his name be placed on the ballot, and sent a pamphlet which contained his photograph and listed him as "The Irish-American candidate."

Raftery said he was opposed to naval conferences and disarmament treaties. Before his entry can be given a place on the ballot, petitions must be filed in his behalf and signed by at least 100 voters in each of the five congressional districts of the State.

Minister's Wife Wins Divorce Decree in Reno

Minden, Nev., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The Rev. Ulysses Grant Warren, prominent churchman of New York and Philadelphia, lost to his wife, Edith Laylor Warren, in their contested divorce case today. Judge Clark J. Guild granted the decree to Mrs. Warren on her complaint charging nonsupport and extreme cruelty. Dr. Warren had contested the action on grounds of desertion.

Mrs. Warren is a cousin of Mrs. W. B. Storey, of Chicago, wife of the president of the Santa Fe Railroad. In a suit filed in Chicago recently Dr. Warren charged the Storeys with having alienated his wife's affections.

World Bank's Support To Latins to Be 'Moral'

Basel, Switzerland, Feb. 10 (A.P.). The monetary department of the Bank for International Settlements, studying financial conditions in South America, let it be known today that the central banks of the South American countries will receive moral support rather than material assistance from the bank in their efforts to maintain the gold standard.

Contrary to reports in banking circles, it was said, there is no question for the moment of the central banks of South America joining the world bank.

"Mugwump" Editor on Probation.

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—A ruling by the administrative council of the University of Tennessee that the current issue of the Mugwump, university humorous magazine, contained obscene articles has led to its editor, Norman Smith, of Nashville, being placed on probation.

FOES FAIL IN FIGHT ON BRITISH TARIFF

Opposition Is Smothered in Parliament and Bill Is Read First Time.

London, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The British government pressed on today with its measure leading to a general 10 per cent tariff, flattening the opposition from the Labor side in the House of Commons.

A Labor proposal to limit the operation of the tariff to one year was rejected, 345 to 62. Another proposal to exempt foodstuffs from the proposed duties was beaten by a vote of 285 to 65.

In the House of Lords, Viscount Snowden, of Ickornshaw, in his first speech since elevation to a scarlet and ermine robe and a coronet, declared himself still an unrepentant free trader.

Predicts Disaster.

The former Labor chancellor of the exchequer said a general 10 per cent import duty would be "disastrous to the economic and industrial life and to the prosperity of the country." The House of Lords, usually three-fourths empty during debate, was packed to hear him explain why nonetheless he remained a member of the government with whose protectionist measures he was in such sharp disagreement.

The viscount is lord privy seal, but he is one of those who agreed to remain in the cabinet while accepting the privilege of holding to their own belief on the tariff.

Referring scornfully to assertions that such an arrangement violated all precedent, he said that "if mankind always had remained the slave of precedent we would still be living in caves eating shellfish."

Given First Reading.

After the proposed Labor amendments had been disposed of in the House of Commons, the tariff bill in "dummy" form was introduced by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, and formally given its first reading.

Its exact contents still were unknown and the publication of the full text, which is expected tomorrow or Friday, was anxiously awaited.

Until this text is available it is not known what, if any, commodities will be exempt from the general tariff, other than those already announced, which include wheat and cotton, two of the major imports from the United States.

Germany's Credits Put at $60,000,000

U. S. Total in Loans Fixed at $12,000,000 in Study by Bankers.

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Bankers who are questioning the advisability of forming a special committee to study the status of short-term credits of German states and municipalities, today estimated the total of such credits at $60,000,000.

Approximately one-fifth of this total, or $12,000,000, represents credits extended by American banks. Henrik R. Jolles, vice president of the National City Co., has been made chairman of a provisional committee which is considering whether it would be advisable for the banks to establish a permanent organization, with representation in Berlin.

The existing standstill credit agreement, it was explained, does not cover loans made to states and cities of that country.

Former Klan Chieftain Adds to Retrial Plea

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana, who is serving a life sentence for murder, today filed additional statements with the Indiana Supreme Court in support of his contention that he was denied a fair trial in his murder trial at Noblesville in 1925.

He asked the court to grant him a new trial on a writ of error coram nobis, the agency through which he could be retried if he convinced the court that through fear of personal violence he was unable to testify and prove his own innocence.

State College Teachers Charged With Atheism

Lubbock, Tex., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Four members of the faculty of Texas Technological College, a State institution, were designated today by the Rev. R. C. Campbell, Baptist pastor, as being "guilty of teaching atheism and infidelity to students."

At a conference with President Paul W. Horn, the minister reiterated accusation he had made from his pulpit. Names of the professors were withheld pending an investigation by President Horn. The university head said students and the accused professors would be given a hearing.

FRENCH REPARATION DATA DENY CLAIMS

Paris Says Germany Has Paid 20 Instead of 67 Billion Marks.

Paris, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—A comprehensive analysis of German reparations payments, designed to refute German claims recently published here, was issued by the French government tonight.

Based on reparations commission documents and World Bank figures, the statement said Germany has paid the allies 20,769,900,000 gold reichsmarks instead of 67,673,000,000 reichsmarks as set forth by the Reich here. (The current quotation of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York lists the reichsmark at .23695.)

(In figures released in New York a month ago Germany set forth she had paid the allied governments 53,900,000,000 reichsmarks, of which sum it was asserted France had received 20,000,000,000 reichsmarks.)

Vast Difference Claimed.

These figures represent a difference of almost 47,000,000,000 gold reichsmarks. The government's communique, which sets the German, French and reparations commission figures side by side, was considered here to be the most exhaustive study of payments, both in cash and in kind, since the World War.

France claimed that from the total paid she had received 8,199,700,000 reichsmarks and that after deducting from this legally authorized sums for military occupation, &c., she had left only 5,213,200,000 reichsmarks for actual rehabilitation of the war-damaged area. This cost was placed at about 103,000,000,000 francs, compared with 31,200,000,000 francs available.

Salient differences between the German and French figures lay in the pre-Dawes plan of evaluations of ceded property and in the inclusion of items not recognized by the Reparations Commission.

Military Disarmament.

The German figures showed 8,500,000,000 gold marks paid for "military disarmament and the sunken fleet at Scapa Flow" and 3,500,000,000 reichsmarks for "industrial disarmament."

The French reply asserted that these items are not represented by payments ever received by the allies. Other items which they refuse to recognize were 1,200,000,000 reichsmarks for work done by prisoners of war, the cost of certain interallied commissions and the aid given refugees.

The two countries are nearest to agreement on the amount paid under the Young plan, the difference there being 3,000,000 reichsmarks. The calculations were brought up to July 1, 1931, when the moratorium on payments began.

Columbia River Flow Dammed.

Wenatchee, Wash., Feb. 10 (A.P.). For the second time in history, flow of the Columbia River was completely stopped today. All gates of the Rock Island dam were closed to permit engineers to inspect the tailrace. Hundreds of amateur gold seekers and fishermen swarmed the river bed below the dam. In the early '70s the river was dammed for a day when an earthquake shook loose tons of rock from a huge cliff near Entiat.

Plane Crash Kills U. S. Army Officer.

AIRPLANE 'DOGFIGHT' STAGED OVER HAWAII

100 Machines of Army and Navy Meet in Combat; Decision Awaited.

Honolulu, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The angry roar of powerful motors disturbed the quiet of Hawaii's coast today as attacking and defending planes met in a "dogfight" over the sea west of Oahu Island as part of the joint Army and Navy maneuvers.

Only machine gun fire was lacking. More than 100 planes wheeled, dived and circled in a semblance of a desperate battle that began when "enemy" blue fliers tried to break through the cordon of Army scouts of the black forces patrolling the island's borders. There were no actual losses and results on paper awaited the umpires' decisions.

Meanwhile the attacking blue fleet apparently was clearing the way for landing troops. Black observers on Lanai Island reported a large body of blue ships passing.

Black observation planes reported a blue transport escorting fourteen destroyers and light cruisers was sighted 25 miles east of Koko Head, this island.

While the enemy closed in, defenders were active. Fifteen Army bombers, each carrying 2,000 pounds of bombs, and protected by pursuit and attack squadrons, attacked the aircraft carriers Saratoga and Lexington.

As this was going on, squadron 9 of the Marine Corps planes from the Lexington, slipped through and raided coast artillery posts. They attacked Diamond Head guns first, but were shelled by 4-inch anti-aircraft guns as they passed over the city.

Body of Editor, Found On Rails, Causes Probe

Hattiesburg, Miss., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The body of Hansel Batten, 23, sports editor of the Hattiesburg American, was found on a railway track here today under circumstances that gave rise to questions among authorities as to the manner in which he met death.

Members of a freight train crew came upon the body. They expressed the opinion an early morning passenger train had passed over it. Dr. F. T. Bower, who examined the body, said he found the eyes closed, which, he said, would be unusual if young Batten was run down by the train. He said the victim's eyes usually remained open in cases of sudden and violent death.

U. S. Not to Hear Pope In His Radio Address

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—American radio listeners will not hear the broadcast by Pope Pius XI from Vatican City on Friday, the tenth anniversary of his coronation, it was announced today.

It originally was planned to rebroadcast the program on a Nationwide hookup in the United States, but engineers connected with National Broadcasting Co. and HVJ, the Vatican station, found atmospheric conditions on short-wave channels over the Atlantic at the early hour when the broadcasting will be done precluded hope of good reception.

Conservative Is Winner In Hampshire Election

London, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Conservatives in the House of Commons have retained their seat in the by-election of the new forest and Christ Church division of Hampshire, which was necessitated by the elevation of Col. Wilfred Ashley to the peerage.

The Conservative, Maj. J. D. Mills, was elected, it was announced today, the vote being 23,327 as against 5,135 for the Independent Labor party candidate, Dr. G. A. Smith.

Knoxville Lawyer Tells Candidacy for Governor

Knoxville, Tenn. Feb. 10 (A.P.).—J. Arthur Atchley, Knoxville attorney and a member of the State Legislature, today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor in the primary August 4.

MAN AND GIRL HELD ON MINE-RELIEF TRIP

New York Playwright One of Pair Taken at Parley of Strikers.

Pineville, Ky., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—A group of New York writers and Liberals who arrived here today with three truck loads of food for striking coal miners were warned by both city and county authorities against making a "demonstration" out of the distribution.

A short while later Harold Hickerson, New York playwright, and Doris Parks, secretary of the Tennessee-Kentucky Striking Miners Relief Committee, who accompanied the group to Bell County, were arrested while addressing a mass meeting of strikers on the outskirts of Pineville.

They were ordered jailed by County Attorney Walter B. Smith, who said specific charges would be placed against them after he had a chance to study their cases tomorrow. The arrests were made by sheriff's officers, who broke up the meeting.

Seized While Addressing Group.

The man and woman were addressing the meeting while Waldo Frank, chairman of the committee of writers, and Malcolm Cowley, Edmund Wilson, Polly Boyden, and several others were conferring with the county attorney in regard to distributing the food to miners in the county.

Mr. Smith informed them they were welcome to distribute all the food they wished to miners in the mining communities of the county, but warned them that any attempt to hold a mass meeting or demonstration would be broken up.

Previously city authorities had stopped the three trucks at the city limits, informing the drivers that they would not permit any distribution of food in Pineville.

Denies Miners Hungry.

"There is no hunger among miners in Pineville; there are no mines in Pineville," Mayor J. M. Brooks told Waldo Frank, chairman of the committee.

"You are welcome, so far as we are concerned, to distribute food among the mining communities, but we will not stand for any kind of public meeting here."

The writers and the trucks loaded with food came from Knoxville, Tenn., after a five-hour trip. Several hundred miners had gathered here earlier in the day ostensibly to attend a mass meeting that had been called by placards posted over the county, but no attempt was made to hold the meeting here.

Three Youths Arrested.

In a raid on a house where officers reported seizure of Communistic literature three youths who gave their names as Robert Blevins, 21; Columbus Malone, 18, and Charles Waddell, 19, were arrested. They denied knowledge of the literature and said they had been told to go to the house to get food.

The southeastern coal fields, where the National Miners Union called a strike January 1, were reported quiet today, save for Knox County. A mine-worker giving the name of Harry Sims was shot through the abdomen in the Brush Creek field there today. Sims claimed he was shot without provocation.

Mine guards reported Arlie Miller, a mine guard, shot him when he pointed a pistol at "Red" Davis, another guard. Miller was released in $3,000 bond pending a hearing.

Mrs. Knute Rockne Improves.

Rochester, Minn., Feb. 10 (A.P.). Mrs. Knute Rockne was pronounced slightly better today after what physicians described as "not a very good night." They said she was "more comfortable" but would not be out of danger for three or four days. The widow of the Notre Dame coach submitted to a major operation late last week.

Army Recruiting Reports False.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Feb. 10 (A.P.). So seriously have the people here taken rumors that the United States Army was recruiting for service in the Far East that Col. George L. Byroade, commander in Porto Rico, issued a formal statement today declaring the reports to be false.

President Hoover Attends Luncheon Given by Secretary Stimson for Ambassador Mellon; Wedding Dinner at White House.

THE PRESIDENT WAS THE honor guest at luncheon yesterday of the Secretary of State, Mr. Henry L. Stimson, in his home, Woodley, when he gave a farewell luncheon to the new American Ambassador to England, Mr. Andrew W. Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury. The other guests were Vice President Curtis and the new ambassador's former colleagues in the Cabinet.

President and Mrs. Hoover had a few personal friends dining with them last evening in celebration of the thirty-third anniversary of their wedding, which took place in California on the eve of their departure for China. They had no other celebration for the occasion.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams were the guests of honor at a dinner given last evening by the chief coordinator of the Navy, Rear Admiral Thomas T. Craven, and Mrs. Craven. The other guests were Representative and Mrs. Fred A. Britten, the Major General Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Ben H. Fuller; the chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair, United States Navy, Rear Admiral George Rock, and Mrs. Rock; the adjutant general of the Navy, Rear Admiral Orin G. Murfin, and Mrs. Murfin; Rear Admiral nd Mrs. Ridley McLean, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Charles P. Kindleberger and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Dion Williams.

Mme. Claudel and Mme. Debuchi, honorary members of the board of the Association of Work for Poor Churches, are sponsoring the lecture to be given next Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the Mayflower, by Miss Janet Richards, for the benefit of the association.

Also the lady managers of the association, Mrs. Pierce Butler, Mrs. William S. Benson, Mrs. J. Davis Brodhead, Mrs. Paul Henry Bastedo, Mrs. John Cropper, Mrs. Henry Flather, Mrs. Walter M. H. Gordon, Mrs. James A. Gannon, Mrs. William Goodyear Johnson, Mrs. Henry L. E. Johnson, Frau Rudolph Leitner, Miss Margaret Laughran, Mrs. Henry Lyne, Mrs. Frank McIntyre, Mrs. David K. Sands and Miss Isabelle C. Wells.

The Swiss Minister and Mme. Peter will entertain at dinner this evening in the Legation.

Egyptian Envoy to Give Archaeological Dinner.

The Egyptian Minister, Sesostris Sidarouss Pasha, will entertain the Archeological Society of Washington at the legation this evening in honor of the twelfth birthday anniversary of his highness, Prince Farooq, heir to the throne of Egypt. Dr. George S. Duncan, professor of Egyptology at the American University, will be the speaker of the evening and will give a lecture with illustrations on "Egypt, the Cradle of Civilization."

Following the lecture there will be a buffet supper and a reception. Prince Farooq, though still only a boy, is a fluent linguist, with French and English at his command besides his native Arabic. He is a keen student and already is interested in the problems his father, King Fuad I, is occupied with daily. The prince especially has interested himself in the new and growing Boy Scout movement and has his own company of Scouts. He is also an ardent sportsman and plays polo with considerable skill.

Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary entertained at dinner last evening in the Chinese room at the Mayflower, when they had a company of 26. Among the guests were Mr. Charles Fite Waters, the American sculptor, who is here from his home in Paris to do the statue of Gen. Pershing for France. Mrs. Waters was with him.

Mrs. James E. Watson, wife of the senator from Indiana, will receive this afternoon from 4 until 6 o'clock in their home, on Connecticut avenue. Assisting Mrs. Watson will be Mrs. Edward E. THE TIRE THAT TAUGHT THRIFT TO MILLIONS

NOW, at the lowest prices ever known, you can enjoy Firestone Extra Values.

This is possible only because Firestone concentrate their entire world-wide resources in building complete lines of quality tires, tubes, batteries, brake lining, spark plugs and accessories. These are for sale through Firestone Service Stores and Service Dealers.

Firestone do not manufacture tires under special-brand names for mail-order houses and others to distribute. Special-brand tires are made without the manufacturer's name. They are sold without his guarantee or responsibility for service.

Firestone manufacture complete lines of tires for their Service Stores and Service Dealers. Each line is designated by tread design and name. The quality and construction of each Firestone line excel that of special-brand mail-order tires sold at the same prices.

Call on the Firestone Service Dealer in your community. He will show you sections cut from Firestone Tires, special-brand mail-order tires and others. See the Extra Values you get in Firestone Tires at prices no higher than special-brand lines.

GUM-DIPPED CORDS

The Firestone patented Gum-Dipping process transforms the cotton cords into a strong, tough, sinewy unit. Liquid rubber penetrates every cord and coats every fiber, guarding against internal friction and heat, greatly increasing the strength of the cord body, and giving longer tire life.

TWO EXTRA CORD PLIES UNDER THE TREAD

This is a patented construction, and the two extra cord plies are so placed that you get 56% stronger bond between tread and cord body, and 26% greater protection against punctures and blowouts. It sets a new standard for tire performance on high speed cars.

Quiet, Safe, Long-Wearing Non-Skid Tread

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

IF DR. J. R. BRINKLEY, goat gland specialist, is deserting his broadcasting station, XER, at Villa Acuna, in Mexico, to run for Governor of Kansas, as recently reported, it is not indicated in a letter which appears over his name in the current issue of the National Broadcast Reporter. It is addressed to the editor and reads, in part:

"Listen, son, when I say we have 75,000 watts at Station XER, in Mexico, we have, and then some, and we are going to put 150,000 out there.

"Brother, there are 75,000 good, fat watts in that antenna at XER, 100 per cent modulated, and we are knocking a hole right through Washington, D. C."

Brinkley surely is doing ust that, and if he is using 75,000 watts, as he claims, XER is the most powerful station broadcasting regularly on the North American continent. If Brinkley steps XER up to 150,000 watts, it will be one of the highest powered stations in the world.

This situation embarrasses the Federal Radio Commission, who thought they had finished with Brinkley when they closed his station in Kansas, because of complaints from the American Medical Association and others.

The goat gland specialist, reported to be doing a $650,000 business annually, lost no time erecting a station in Mexico. Since then he has been relaying his programs from Kansas to Villa Acuna and sending them back into the United States from across the Mexican border.

From early morning until late at night the networks will pay tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln on the 123d anniversary of his birth tomorrow.

President Hoover, speaking from the Lincoln room of the White House, will deliver an address in connection with the annual Lincoln Day dinner of the National Republican Club (WRC, WMAL, 10:30 p. m.). Gen. James G. Harbord will preside.

For the eleventh consecutive time Edgar White Burrill will present his dramatic reading of Ida M. Tarbell's "He Knew Lincoln" (WRC, 3 p. m.).

Lieut. Col. Ulysses S. Grant 3d, U. S. A., will stand before a microphone in the pit of Ford's Theater, in Tenth street, now a national museum, and will broadcast a word picture of all the Lincoln mementoes and objects of interest for WMAL listeners, tomorrow, 2 p. m.

COMPLAINANTS against the kind of music which they declare is dominating the air may find some food for thought in the fact that Paul Whiteman, described in a press release as "the music master" has just discovered a singer "who made music with a comb and a piece of tissue paper until he found he had a voice."

According to the press release, this former comb and tissue paper artist has been given a three-year contract calling for a total income of approximately $100,000. If that is true, how it must dash the hopes of artists who have spent years of hard work in preparation of a legitimate musical career.

The broadcasting company, giving its usual alibi, doubtless would insist that in offering this former comb and tissue paper artist that it was endeavoring to give the public what it wanted. But does the public really want this sort of thing? If so, why the unprecedented wave of criticism that is now prevailing against radio programs? And why are listeners in desperation even appealing to Congress to clean up the air?

The February meeting of the Washington section of the Institute of Radio Engineers will be held tonight at the Continental Hotel, North Capitol street, between D and E.

The usual informal dinner will be served at 6:30, and at 8 o'clock E. G. Lapham, of the Bureau of Standards, will present a paper on "Piezo Oscillators Developed for Use in Standard Frequency Transmissions." All persons interested in technical radio matters, whether members of the Institute of Radio Engineers or not, are invited to attend.

ANYONE who had ever been in Munich, and could picture the setting, must have enjoyed the concert of the zither players from the Bavarian Capital last Sunday. To a person who had never heard more than two or three zithers played together at one time, the volume of sound produced by 100 zithers was hardly believable.

Yet there was a sweetness of tone and the offering proved a decided novelty. Not the least interesting feature of this performance was the appearance of the Winter Brothers, prize-winning Bavarian yodelers.

The transatlantic radio reception last Sunday during this concert proved almost as clear as that of a local broadcasting station.

Mrs. Francis Parkinson Keyes, writer, world traveler and wife of United States Senator Keyes, of New Hampshire, will begin a series of programs, "With a Senator's Wife in Washington" over WRC shortly. Mrs. Keyes will comment on Washington society.

A radio version of "Peer Gynt," starring Mrs. Richard Mansfield, known on the stage as Beatrice Cameron, will be transmitted from Station WTIC, Hartford, Conn., 9:30 o'clock, tomorrow night.

COLONEL Stoopnagle's latest invention is a vest-proof bullet, which will penetrate anything but a vest, thus making it unnecessary for policemen to wear bullet-proof vests in the future.

Jane Corbett INTERPRETS the MODE

New York, Feb. 10.

WHAT has happened to the formal evening gown?

Well, many things have happened to it. For one thing, there has been a growing disinclination among elegant women to dress too formally and strikingly in public. For another, the informal evening gown, at one time called the "Sunday night frock," developed to such an extent that it became the most comfortable, appropriate, and logical type of gown to wear any night, especially in public.

Many a fashionist and couturiere has suggested that the waning popularity of the formal evening gown is due to the oft-mentioned depression, but I fail to see the connection, when an informal evening frock costs quite as much and very often much more than an elaborate one!

Whatever the reason, there are far fewer formal evening gowns on display in the salons of the Parisian couturieres than ever before and far fewer demands for this type of wearing apparel, while the demand has increased for "Sunday night" frocks, or anything else that this type of gown happens to be called at the time.

Actually, I think it is due to the fact that so many daytime affairs continue right through the evening. And many an informal evening gown is an afternoon frock with its jacket or coat or bolero removed!

* * * *

Want to see a modern version of the bustle? Look at it in the frock I sketch for you today. This is a Bruyere model, the Parisienne couturiere who has a flare for the slightly theatrical and who is consequently patronized by lovely ladies of the stage and screen, as well as elegantes who can carry garments like this black faille gown with charm and grace.

Au revoir.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

THIS IS NOT LOVE.

DEAR Frances McDonald:

I've been going steady with a chap for four years. Been through everything with him and for him. He's of a different religion and a different nationality. Four months ago I went on a party with another young man, and after several occasions together we admitted we fell hard for each other. I knew my steady had many faults, but I overlooked them as I loved him. Accidentally both men met one day, right away there was a spat. That night the chap told me he was married. He didn't tell me at first because he thought it would only be for one or two nights he would see me. He has been suffering since he realized how we felt toward each other. Told me to call him all kinds of names, &c., but I couldn't. I love him. He hasn't been living with his wife for two years. They separated because of financial reasons. He has been to her, previous to meeting me, and asked her for a reconciliation, but she told him she was getting along all right without him. Recently he went to her and asked for a divorce. She agreed until she saw her attorney. Then she decided against it. Unbeknown to him she wrote to me, asking me to see him and tell him she was withdrawing her promise to him. She knew where to reach him, but she wrote to me instead. Wanted to dig it in, I suppose. She cares nothing for him, she implies, except for the money which he makes. We love each other very much. Last week he came back again. He is a traveling man. I showed him the letter. He was baffled, as things were agreed on when he left. He hasn't given up hope. I saw him for two weeks while he was in this territory. He is 34 and I am 25 years of age, so we're old enough to know our minds and hearts. What shall I do—live in hope that I may some day marry him, or marry my steady, who at the present time is urging me, as he doesn't want me to go away and leave him again. Would I be happily married to my steady, loving the other man, while he knows I do? My steady seems like a brother to me. Thank you very much for the advice I am waiting for.

JACQUELINE.

You do not love either of these men. One is attractive to you. The other is a habit with you. But if you loved either you would not be callously wondering which to take and which to leave. One might thus consider a fur coat or a new car. But the matter of mating is a bit different. A woman in love, even temporarily, sees only one man. She may come to her senses later on and return to a previous love, but while the hectic aberration lasts she is not calmly going over her prospects with a weather eye. Some women even love two men at once. And suffer proportionately. But you are not suffering nor even perturbed. You are a bit baffled that your program has been interrupted, your schedule of dates interfered with. But you are about as emotionally upset as a chocolate soda. We are not urging that you become upset. We are just beseeching you to refrain from matrimony until your emotions justify that adventure. Which, of course, you won't.

What is your problem? Trot it out and see it in the light of day. Ask opinions before leaping in the dark. Offer opinions to others. You need not sign your name.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

Gives Variety to Wardrobe.

Any little girl would adore this cute jumper model for classroom. It delights in the fact that it offers such smart variety to the wardrobe.

A Yankee blue tweed-like thin woolen material with plain yellow beige cotton broadcloth blouse made the original. The belt is patent leather.

The pattern also provides for the cunning hat which is made of the woolen fabric.

Now this little jumper dress may also be worn with a Persian red woolen blouse a plain blue woolen blouse and perhaps still another of rose linen.

Style No. 187 is designed in sizes 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 8 requires 2⅛ yards of 39-inch material for dress and hat, with 1⅜ yards of 35-inch material for blouse.

It also cuts in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36 and 38 inches bust.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Address Fashion Dept., The Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-third street, New York City.

Prepares a Valentine Supper Menu.

HERE we are upon the threshold of another fish-dish day. So tonight must we accomplish our Friday menu, for a week-end is upon us again. Nor is it only a week-end of which we must be a-thinking, for Valentine's day, with its holiday attire as to menu, will be with us three days hence and as it falls on a Sunday, we must prepare for its advent today.

So now for a Valentine's Sunday supper menu as well as "fresh feesh" for tomorrow.

Nancy Carey.

VALENTINE SUPPER MENU.

Fresh Strawberries
Creamed Chicken and Mushrooms in Patty Cases
Diced Red Beets
Rolled Shredded Lettuce
Watercress Sandwiches
Valentine Special
(Cut thin sponge cake heart shape, top with raspberry ice and garnish with whipped cream.)
Nuts Mints
Coffee

FRIDAY'S DINNER.

Consomme Saltines
Salmon Pie
Diced Buttered Turnips
Beet and Carrot Salad
Preserved Fruit
Buttermilk Cookies
Coffee

Salmon Pie.

2 cups salmon, flaked
2 cups white sauce, thick
Hot mashed potatoes, made very soft with milk
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cupful cream
Lemon juice to taste
3 teaspoonfuls onion juice.

Mix the salmon, white sauce, cream, lemon juice, onion juice and salt and pepper. Line a baking dish with mashed potatoes, put the salmon in and pipe a border around the edge with the mashed potatoes, and fill center with designs. Or the potato may be smoothed over the top and dotted with butter. Bake in medium oven until nicely browned.

Beet and Carrot Salad.

1 cup raw carrots, grated
1 cup celery, chopped very fine
¼ green pepper, chopped very fine
½ cup cooked cold beets, chopped very fine.

Toss the ingredients together with the tines of a fork, being careful not to mash the finely chopped beets. Add mayonnaise dressing to the salad in sufficient quantity to moisten and then chill the whole. Arrange on crisp lettuce leaves, and serve garnished with paprika and mayonnaise.

Buttermilk Cookies.

1 cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup buttermilk (or sour milk)
½ cup shortening
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon soda
Flour to make a soft dough.

Cream shortening and add sugar gradually. Add the well-beaten egg, then the soda dissolved in the buttermilk, the salt and sufficient flour to make a soft dough. Chill, roll to one-fourth inch in thickness and bake on greased tin in a moderate oven (375 degrees) until nicely browned.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

I HAVE been growing white narcissus for several years. So often these bulbs, which are growing in a bed facing the south, are a disappointment due to the fact that the flowers blast. My bulbs are the alba plena variety.

MRS. RICHARD S.

As these are the latest of all the narcissus family the buds are sometimes burned by the warm spring sunshine. Again, violent changes in temperature may be responsible for the condition you describe. Narcissus should in any case have plenty of moisture. A slight shading with a cheesecloth screen may prevent the sun from drying the flowers. Some growers cut the scapes with a pair of scissors. This is a tedious job. However, if the expanding petals have not sufficient energy to burst the tough outer skin it is worth trying, for if left uncut the condensing moisture inside will surely cause decay.

When shall I transplant some perennial poppies? I simply never succeed with these plants.

CORA H. L.

Never attempt to transplant any popies unless they are perfectly dormant. The only practical time to transplant them is in late July or early August.

Is there any way to prevent the crowns of delphiniums from decaying?

MRS. FRED S. L.

A shoveful of coal ashes placed over the crowns after real cold weather sets in will prevent decay. Slugs sometimes are responsible for this decay. When they are, the ashes will act as a preventive. A poison bait is also effective. To make such a bait mix a quantity of bran and molasses. When the mixture is the consistency of a mash add some arsenate as a poison. This mixture should be spread about the crowns of the plants. Some loose straw scattered over the poison will prevent the birds from eating it.

Please explain what is meant by a half hardy annual. So many of the catalogs list plants in this manner.

MRS. LENA S. K.

A half-hardy annual is a plant which is native to some locality or country having a longer growing season than our own. Such plants, if grown from seed, must be started in hotbeds or in flats in the house so that they have a long start over seed sown in the open.

Please tell me why the leaves of my begonias are so pale.

MRS. HENRY McC.

Your begonias are likely suffering from too much water or from lack of food. Try giving the plants a little stimulation in the form of liquid manure or bonemeal. Also give them less water.

Please tell me of a good ground-cover plant to grow in a place where grass refuses to grow, due to too much shade.

MRS. WILLIAM C. L.

Japanese spurge is the very best ground-cover plant we have for such a location. Myrtle or English ivy does very well in some places. I should suggest planting rooted cuttings directly in permanent places which you want to cover. The plants will then attain the same height and rapidly fill the desired space. Be sure to pinch the tops out of the shoots the year after planting. This will cause the stalks to send out side shoots.

Culbertson on Contract

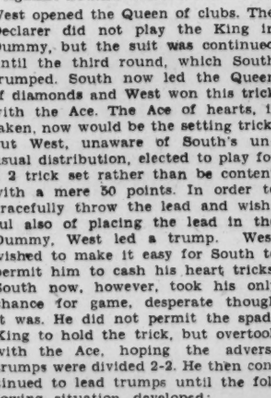
VANISHING PROFITS.

THE moral of this story is that when you can see the trick which will defeat the contract waiting only for you to lead the card, it is just as well to take it unless you are convinced beyond peradventure of a doubt that you will get it later anyhow. Sometimes even the surest tricks have a way of disappearing through the application of the squeeze and it is always better to be safe, content with a small profit, than to reach after a greater one, only to find it vanish into thin air.

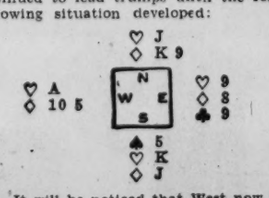
South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Against South's ambitious contract, West opened the Queen of clubs. The Declarer did not play the King in Dummy, but the suit was continued until the third round, which South trumped. South now led the Queen of diamonds and West won this trick with the Ace. The Ace of hearts, if taken, now would be the setting trick, but West, unaware of South's unusual distribution, elected to play for a 2 trick set rather than be content with a mere 50 points. In order to gracefully throw the lead and wishful also of placing the lead in the Dummy, West led a trump. West wished to make it easy for South to permit him to cash his heart tricks. South now, however, took his only chance for game, desperate though it was. He did not permit the spade King to hold the trick, but overtook with the Ace, hoping the adverse trumps were divided 2-2. He then continued to lead trumps until the following situation developed:



It will be noticed that West now is hopelessly squeezed. To discard the Ace of hearts would establish the King in the closed hand, while to discard a diamond will permit South to overtake with the King.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: What is the approach Principle?

Answer: The Approach Principle is that notrump should not be bid until all probability of making game in a suit bid has been abandoned.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11:35 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:20 p. m., and from 10:30 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:25 a. m. and from 2:30 p. m. to 3:50 p. m.

Nonbusiness activities, such as travel, sports and social functions, will receive a major benefit from astrological influences on February 11. Young women, so far heart-whole, may meet their "Fate" in an unexpected manner and quarter. Idealistic love affairs for the very young, short lived and sweet.

The child born on this February 11 possesses will-power, courage and patience to force itself into those positions in life for which it has aspirations. It will be able to hold its own as a debater or entertainer. It will be somewhat fond of show, rather selfish, and careful with money matters.

Born February 11, your disposition is such that you see life in a bright and sunny light.

You are able to do work on a large and royal scale, but are no good for the details of an enterprise. You are made for generalship, but not for drudging hard work. You have strong ambitions, and have proved that everything comes to those who go to fetch it. An important person, for the sake of success, believes in you, and that is yourself. You are no modest violet hiding behind a stone.

You have a very strong love nature, and if you be a woman the saying "Man's love is of his life a thing apart; 'tis woman's whole existence," applies to you. You must have somebody or something on whom to lavish your affections. A marriage founded on anything but real love on your part will lead to unhappiness.

Successful people born February 11:

Benjamin F. Sands, naval officer.
Washington Gladden, clergyman.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

MIGRAINE CONSTITUTION.

THE treatment of migraine is in a highly unsatisfactory state. A sufferer from it hears of a treatment that has cured some one else, tries it faithfully, and fails to be benefited. Soon he hears of another that has proved successful with somebody, tries that, and again meets with disappointment. After a number of such experiences he loses faith and is loath to try anything else, regardless of what he hears.

The reason is that migraine is not a disease. It is only a collection of symptoms and, as such, may be brought about by any one of several causes. Furthermore, the causes are usually states, conditions, or habits, and not diseases. A great many periodic sufferers from migraine have noted that when they are seriously sick with a definite disease they are apt to escape attacks of migraine, but the proneness to attacks of headache returns with convalescence.

Dr. Eli Grimes believes strongly that migraine is dependent on a state. People who are addicted to the migraine habit he speaks of as having "migraine instability." They have a makeup which has been called "migraine constitution;" that migrane constitution, or instability, is a combination of physical and personality qualifications which marks the person who has attacks of migraine. Men of broad experience have been reported to be able to pick out migrainous people by their complexions, their expressions, and their reactions of different kinds.

Dr. Grimes says that the man or woman who has migraine instability has attacks only when subjected to stress. The special task of the patient and his physician is to find what experiences and stresses, spring his trap and put him in bed with sick headache.

In 75 per cent of all cases of migraine the diagnosis is obvious and the physician is free to put all of his thought on discovering the stresses which are especially provocative to that patient and, having discovered them, of figuring ways to avoid them. In some cases, in women, the periodic distribution of the headaches suggest that some lack of ductless gland balance is responsible. In such cases the physician may give ductless gland preparations, and otherwise seek to establish endocrine balance.

In some cases the digestive system is at fault. In others it has been established that certain foods supply the stress which causes the attack. Eating chocolate is the offense in some instances. In fact, in some cases there is considerable kinship between migraine and hay fever.

In some cases there seems to be a relationship to epilepsy. When we know what it is that sets off an attack of epilepsy we may have the stress that sets off some kinds of migraine.

REACH A COMPROMISE.

A writes: I just read your article about white spots on the nails. You say it is all because of manicuring, fever, infection, X-ray, &c.

I want to tell you respectfully that you are "all wet." I know, because I never had a manicure in my life and I have never had the other causes you mention. I am now 45 and remember having white spots on my nails since I was 7 years old.

The people who took care of me as a child considered these spots a sign of healthy nails. At school I know I was uphappy when there were no spots on my nails, as it was a sign of good luck, according to the children.

The actual reason for white spots is that the Lord allows the nails to detach themselves from the skin to allow air underneath. We would be too imbecile to do this ourselves, so the Lord attends to it. It is little air-pouches that form to keep nails healthy, and these make the white spots. They are not so awfully ugly, so why worry, especially when it is universal?

It may be the work of cells underneath, as you say, but it is not a destroying work—far from it. If it is the work of cells, they act as blowers of air.

REPLY.

You may have had neither manicuring, fever, nor infection, and I doubt if nearly everybody has had one of the three. However, I am positive you can not deny the "&c." I am glad to have you say you regard white nails as desirable. So many people take them seriously. You go too far in one direction and they in the other. A compromise agreement that they are neither desirable nor undesirable would be about right.

Women to Hear Jeannette Rankin

First of Sex Elected to Congress to Address Foundation.

The Susan B. Anthony Foundation will give a dinner in hono- of the 112th birthday aniversary of Susan B. Anthony at the Women's University Club, 1634 I street northwest, Monday night, at 6:30 o'clock.

Miss Jeannette Rankin, the first woman elected to Congress; Miss Janet Richards and Mrs. Emma Maddox Funck, of Baltimore, Md., will be the principal speakers. Miss Rankin will talk on "Personal Experiences of the Only Woman Who Had an Opportunity to Vote for the Susan B. Anthony Amendment."

Reminiscences of the celebration given Miss Anthony on her eighty-sixth birthday in Baltimore in 1906, will be given by Mrs. Funck.

Bicentennial Chairman Will Address Grange

J. Alex Shriver, of Belair, Md., chairman of the Maryland bicentennial committee, and C. C. Magruder, chairman of the Prince Georges County committee, will explain the program of the celebration to members of Pomona Grange at its meeting at College Park, Md., Saturday.

The student grange of the university will act as hosts to the county grange. These speakers and Raymond W. Bellamy, Federal director of unemployment for the State, will appear on the afternoon program, starting at 2 o'clock. Others on this program are Miss Edna Souder, soloist, and members of the student grange who will render songs and recitations.

Al Jolson Recovers.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Al Jolson, blackface comedian, who suffered a slight attack of influenza following his arrival here Sunday, had completely recovered today. He appeared in "The Wonder Bar" last night after his illness had prevented him showing up at Monday night's opening.

ROOSEVELT REGIME INQUIRY IS SOUGHT

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The Republican majority of the New York State Senate, in a surprise move tonight, introduced and passed a resolution calling for a legislative investigation of all departments of the Democratic administration of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The resolution was introduced in the Senate within a few minutes after that House had adopted the governor's budget bill from which the Republican finance committees had sheared $21,000,000 of expenditures. The resolution declared the investigation justified in that it "might reveal that further reductions could be made in the cost of government."

Under its provisions, the heads of the eighteen State departments operating under the administration of the governor, together with any employe of a department or any other person believed to have information, could be brought before the committee. Since the committee would not be required to report until the next session of the Legislature, its inquiry could be continued through the summer and fall.

This fact would allow for the conduct of the investigation during the time when the move to nominate Gov. Roosevelt for the Presidency would be progressing toward the convention stage. Coincidentally, it would run into the preconvention campaigns to select a State ticket.

The Senate also passed three new revenue measures, one increasing the gasolene tax from 2 to 3 cents a gallon, another doubling the present 2 cents a share stock transfer levy, and the third raising the income tax 50 per cent on last year's incomes and doubling it next year. A proposal for heavy imposts on trucks and buses was carried over.

REDISCOUNT BASE REVISION TO AID CREDIT IS HOOVER AIM

President Hoover's financial advisers anticipate that the more flexible rediscount arrangement may curtail sharply the emergency credit demands upon the R. F. C.

Hoover Launches Program.

At a White House breakfast yesterday morning President Hoover took his first step to enlist nonpartisan congressional support for this most sweeping of all his suggestions for checking the deflationary forces which have been at work in banking and finance for the last eighteen months.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Mills, Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, joined the President in his discussion of the plan with Senators Watson, Robinson, Glass, Walcott, Townsend and Bulkley.

Two hours after this conference ended the same administrative group conferred with leaders of the House, including Representatives Garner, Snell, Steagall, Strong, Luce and Beedy.

Text of Statement.

Following is the text of the joint statement issued last night at the office of Senator Glass, in behlaf of both Democratic and Republican spokesmen for the banking committee of the two houses:

"A bill will be introduced into the Senate by Senator Glass and by Representative Steagall in the House of Representatives which will improve the facilities of the Federal Reserve system for the benefit of commerce, industry and agriculture, and provide means for meeting the needs of member banks in exceptional circumstances.

"The bill will include three proposals, the first two of which will improve the facilities of access of the member banks to the Reserve banks by providing for the advancement of funds by the Federal Reserve Banks to member banks that have no further eligible or acceptable paper, upon the security of sound assets not now technically eligible for discount.

Benefits of Plan.

"Member banks may obtain these advances under safeguards, either upon the indorsement of other member banks, or, in unusual cases, without such indorsement.

"This provision will prove valuable in cases where, by reason of diminished business or other causes, the bank does not have an adequate supply of paper technically eligible for discount, though having other sound and adequate security. Moreover, many banks which have no immediate need for the use of these provisions would have increased confidence in meeting their customers' needs freely, by reason of the knowledge of the existence of these facilities.

"The third provision is for the purpose of giving greater effectiveness to the gold reserves of the Federal Reserve System, by releasing for use large amounts of gold which might temporarily be tied up as collateral for notes in excess of the 40 per cent required by law.

"The Federal Reserve act contemplated a 40 per cent gold reserve against note issues. Owing to the present unusual circumstances the amount actually held is now far in excess of 40 per cent.

Effect of Amendment.

"The proposed amendment would, when the Federal Reserve Board deems it desirable in the public interest, have the effect of making all of the assets acquired by the reserve banks under the present provisions of law, available for not to exceed one year as collateral for Federal Reserve notes, in addition to the 40 per cent gold reserve, thus making the excess gold serviceable.

"This provision will have the effect of giving greater flexibility to Federal Reserve operations. It will make the system's large supply of gold more useful as a basis for credit. It will at once increase the system's free gold by nearly $1,000,000,000.

"This proposed legislation is not intended to displace the bill now before the banking and currency committee for permanent modifications of the banking law."

The statement was signed by Carter Glass (Democrat), Virginia; Henry B. Steagall (Democrat), Alabama; F. C. Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, and J. P. Strong (Republican), Kansas.

Senator Glass last night said the joint statement did not conform in one particular to the agreement he consented to at the White House.

Instead of making "all the assets acquired by the Reserve Banks under the present provisions of law" available as collateral for Federal Reserve notes, he said it should have said "making obligations of the United States Government acquired by the Reserve Banks" available as collateral.

whether he will support Roosevelt.

Alfred E. Smith, Tammany's "Happy Warrior," has his following, too, but it is not an organized bloc. So far not a Tammany chieftain has publicly commented upon the 1928 standard bearer's announcement he would run again if nominated.

The third bloc is the one which swears allegiance to Mayor James J. Walker.

The mayor looms large on the Tammany horizon. He heads an army of 130,000 city employes and controls extensive Tammany patronage. He will have much to say about which presidential aspirant is to get a large percentage of New York City's votes in the convention.

Walker Foe of Governor.

Walker and Roosevelt have been at swords' points since the investigation of the Walker government began. Some indication of the feeling between them was seen in the mayor's failure to greet the governor as he filed past him at the funeral of John R. Voorhis, Tammany grand sachem, Monday.

Likewise, it is no secret that Walker and Smith are no longer close political friends. An intimate acquaintance of the mayor said the only thing Smith and Walker have had in common recently has been their mutual desire to keep Roosevelt from "sewing up" the nomination before the convention.

It is considered unlikely that Walker will throw the support of his Tammony followers to Smith. But whom he will back is still as uncertain as whom Smith favors, if he fails to win support for himself.

The mayor refused to comment today on a report that in the event of a Smith-Roosevelt deadlock at the convention, the Tammany delegates would advance him as a vice presidential candidate, to run with a presidential aspirant from the West or South.

Name of Davis Appears.

The speculation was given little credence in political circles here.

Another report was that John W. Davis might be put up as a compromise New York candidate if the convention should become deadlocked.

It was said the real significance of the Walker report was that he is attempting to keep as firm a grip as possible on the New York City delegates, with the idea of not pledging their support to any candidate until the convention—or shortly before.

Tammany Hall exists officially only in the Borough of Manhattan and technically controls only 22 of the 48 New York City delegates, but in the past the leaders in the four other boroughs generally have followed Tammany's lead.

This time, however, the Democratic leader in the Bronx is Edward J. Flynn, Roosevelt's secretary of State, and it is considered likely the six Bronx votes will go to the governor on the first ballot, regardless of Tammany's position.

McCoey Leans to Roosevelt.

In Brooklyn, which has 18 delegates, John H. McCoey, who has been a witness before the Hofstadter committee, is the Democratic leader. He has not committed himself. His friends say he "leans toward Roosevelt," but it is still uncertain which way those 18 votes will go.

Tammany's attitude on the nomination question is likely to be influenced to some extent by whether the governor summarily orders the removal of Sheriff James M. Farley, a Tammany leader, in accordance with the demand of the Hofstadter committee. Roosevelt's decision is expected within a few days.

Meanwhile, Tammany is in the unusual position of being a divided house, but the Tammany tiger is an astute political animal and old time observers have said that while its fur may bristle now June may find it purring.

this patriotic service to the young people of the metropolitan area of the National Capital."

Senator Capper's indorsement of The Post Washington Essay Contest portrays with what attention the members of Congress are following the progress of the contest. As a matter of fact, many boys and girls in congressional households are competing in the contest as well as Senate and House pages.

Contestants are reminded that arrangements have been made by The Post Essay Editor to handle the essays no matter in what numbers they may arrive. However, the Essay Editor declared yesterday that contestants were advised to submit their essays as soon as possible so they may be sorted and classified as to age groups for the consideration of the judges.

In response to several queries it is announced that any phase of Washington's life may be selected by contestants as topics for their essays.

The chief rules for the essays are these:

All essays must be written in ink or typewritten on one side of the paper only.

No essay containing more than 500 words will be considered in the contest, although essays containing less than 500 words will not be disqualified in any sense of the word.

All essays must be signed with the full names, ages, addresses and schools of the senders and be countersigned with the names of parents, teachers or other guardians of those submitting them in the contest.

The matter contained in the essays must be original and not copied from any book or reference unless credit is given by quotation marks for excerpts or short paragraphs pertinent to the themes of the essays.

Among the new essays received yesterday were those from the following boys and girls:

Blanche E. Sejen, 11, 906 Longfellow street northwest; Helen Claire Faye, 10, 1609 Lawrence street northeast; Helen Ray, 18, the Cordova Apartment; Lucille Richards, 10, 1603 Kearney street northeast; Evelyn Duvall, 9, Mount Vernon, Va.; Elizabeth Anne Elkins, 10, 5209 Kansas avenue northwest.

New applications for Washington booklets were turned in yesterday from:

might be necessary to restore Wilson Normal School to a condition of safety, he said allowance would be made for "emergencies" and the committee undoubtedly would go into the Wilson Normal School matter.

He said committee members had been flooded with requests of individuals and organizations asking to be heard on the merits of proposals that would violate rules laid down yesterday by the committee. New school houses, parks and streets, not provided for in the bill, have been urgently requested, he said.

"Although we don't want to operate in an arbitrary manner, we know before we go into these matters that we can't provide for them, however meritorious they are," he said.

"Those who seek them will save their own time and ours too, if they do not come before us. Not that we intend to bar any one that wants to be heard. We will hear anyone who has some matter to present."

Mr. Holaday indicated he would question Dr. George S. Wilson, director of the Board of Public Welfare, on the operations of the board in the Riley case, when welfare appropriation items are considered. He also intends to question District engineer officials on the recent reorganization of the District Engineer's Office.

Commissioners Luther H. Reichelderfer and Herbert B. Crosby, the District tax assessor, the District auditor and representatives of the engineer's office, were again in executive conference with the committee yesterday.

During preliminary discussion, District appropriations over a period of years were closely scrutinized. Testimony developed that the District budget has increased about $11,000,000 in the past 10 years, an average of a little more than $1,000,000 a year.

WHY DIDN'T YOU BUY GILLETTE BLADES, DEAR?
THE MAN SAID THOSE WERE JUST AS GOOD
PLEASE DON'T GO THERE AGAIN. ETHEL, YOU CAN'T TRUST A STORE THAT SUBSTITUTES!
The blade we are talking about is made by the new management under a new process. Do not confuse it with the former "new" Gillette blade

SURELY none can begrudge a store clerk the little extra cash he makes by "switching" customers from demanded products to others that would not sell. He really means no offense and the commissions or PMs help support his family. So please don't be annoyed and don't blame him—he needs the money.

We have a special reason of great importance for calling your attention to substitution as it applies to us. It has never been a major problem to our company but—it might prevent you from trying the phenomenal Gillette blade now in your dealer's hands. This blade is of such extraordinary quality it would be a real disappointment if you were deprived of your opportunity to give it a trial.

Today's Gillette is a spectacular achievement in blade making. Beyond doubt it is the sharpest, smoothest-shaving blade we have ever produced. We urge you to prove this yourself on our money-back guarantee. Let's ask for the Gillette blade and get it—this once for sure. Be charitable with the clerk if he attempts to "switch" you—but be firm and get a revelation in shaving comfort.

"THE OLD-FASHIONED DOCTOR. (World Needs Old-Fashioned Family Doctor, Says Professor."—Headline.)

HERE'S to the old-fashioned family doctor!

* * * *

He was always reachable and could be seen without appointments, letters of introduction or bank references.

* * * *

He would take your temperature without taking your pedigree and look at your tongue without having his mind on your pocketbook.

* * * *

ALL YOU HAD TO DO TO SEE HIM WAS TO RING THE FRONT DOOR-BELL.

* * * *

There was something homelike about his office and a complete absence of any atmosphere that would suggest you were about to be initiated into the mysteries of a secret society with only two black balls necessary to reject.

* * * *

There was at least one comfortable chair in the reception room.

* * * *

There was no card index and elaborate filing cabinet to enable the doctor to recall his patients and remember what he had told them on the previous visit.

* * * *

HE knew his patients and didn't have to "brush up" on identity and diagnosis before granting an audience.

* * * *

He wasn't much to look at, but there was something about his appearance and manner that never left a patient wondering whether he was a doctor or a financial expert.

He never conveyed the idea, while feeling your pulse, that he was really trying to appraise your financial condition.

* * * *

He didn't know all the germs by their first names, but this was compensated for by the fact he could generally get at your trouble without first ordering your tonsils out.

* * * *

He somehow seemed to help you without a blood count, electrocardiograph, X-ray photographs and additional laboratory experiments, the bill for which made you sicker than even your best friends suspected.

* * * *

He would give you an idea what he thought was the matter with you on the first visit and without elaborate hocuspocus, mysterious conferences and an air of alarming profundity.

* * * *

He never seemed in a hurry to get you out one door so he could let the next customer in another.

* * * *

He was wrong on many a diagnosis and in error in numerous treatments, but he always made you feel he was in there trying.

* * * *

YOU could reach him in the middle of the night without a search warrant and a letter from the President, and he would walk miles across country with a barn lantern to treat an emergency case.

* * * *

He gave a diagnosis in language the patient could understand, never went by the rule "When in doubt, operate," and felt a little guilty if he charged more than $2 for an office visit.

* * * *

After four or five visits you might not always feel better, but you still felt solvent.

U. S. 2-MAN SLED WINS IN RECORD RUN AT OLYMPICS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

SPORTS as an antidote for the crime wave is the prescription of no less an authority than Edward P. Mulrooney, police commissioner of New York, an authority based on 30 years of police experience in Manhattan and a youth spent on the city streets and in public schools of New York.

"Crime today is, for the most part, a problem of the youthful offender," says Commissioner Mulrooney, "and when you interest our youth in vigorous, manly sport, when you teach him to play fair, to harden him and rough him up a bit, you are building up the strongest kind of a bulwark against delinquency and crime."

Mr. Mulrooney at the same time could have pointed out that exhaustive surveys have testified to the fact that the average age of the criminal is becoming lower each year.

A consuming interest in sports can most certainly be recommended to divert the minds of youth from the temptations engendered by the highly colorful accounts of lawlessness and banditry, and the undeniable evil influence of the recent flood of gangster pictures which have painted the hoodlums as heroes of a sort, when they didn't turn out to be modern Robin Hoods, an identity that falsely absolved them of their sins.

The boy in sports finds the competition too keen, the fun too great, to be annoyed by the gnawings of temptation. The direction of youth's energies into sports channels has now been facilitated by the convenience of stadiums and other recreational fields and the task of those responsible for the welfare is but a tithe of what it was a decade ago.

More and better athletic fields, more gymnasiums and the teaching of athletics on the playgrounds and in elementary schools unquestionably is one of the best means of taking hold of the delinquent boy and aiding him before he becomes a criminal. Such an attack on crime is far better than the expenditure of greater sums of money for the reclamation and rehabilitation of the person already turned criminal.

One of the winter features of the Bicentennial sports program which is gathering force daily will be the District of Columbia Amateur Athletic Union boxing championships tentatively slated for March 30, 31 and April 1 at new Ritchie Coliseum at College Park which Curley Byrd, athletic director of the University of Maryland, has graciously proffered.

The District amateur boxing championships bid fair to be one of the outstanding events of the winter season, as outlined by Champ Pickens, Bicentennial sports director, who was host to his advisory committee of the five Washington sports editors at the regular weekly luncheon yesterday at the Harrington Hotel. Mr. Pickens has been in conference with Winfree Johnson, secretary of the local A. A. U., relative to the staging of the event under Bicentennial auspices.

More than 100 entries are expected to participate in the event which will require three days to stage. The field will be drawn from the various clubs sponsoring boxing teams with a likelihood that local college squads also will enter. It will provide, too, an opportunity for aspiring but unattached amateur boxers to try their luck in organized competition. The winners of the District titles will qualify for the national tournament, a stepping stone to the Olympic Team trials.

The opening sports event of the Bicentennial athletic program will be The Post's annual District of Columbia basket ball championships at Tech High under the A. A. U. sanction starting March 1, eight days after the official celebration of the celebration of Washington's 200th anniversary.

The tournament for the past six years has never failed to attract capacity crowds when the competition became warm and the teams sifted into the quarter-finals. It has raised the caliber of play and has definitely established champions in the several weight and age classes for both boys and girls.

The tourney has done much to prevent the "jumping" of star players from team to team and explode the mythical title claims of clubs which refused to meet the chief contenders in their class.

Eleven Eastern Court Players Given Letters

With the entire school lending a noisy presence, Eastern High's champion basket ball team was honored yesterday at an assembly and eleven of its regulars rewarded with letters by Coach Charlie Guyon, who bid good-by to his basket ball coaching duties at the same time.

Yost Acquits Football of 21 Deaths

Traces 23 Fatalities Charged to Game to Other Sources.

12 Fatally Hurt on Defense, 7 Offense, Probe Shows.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Fielding H. Yost, athletic director at the University of Michigan, who has just completed an investigation into each of the 43 deaths charged against football last fall, disclosed today that only 22 of the fatalities actually resulted from playing the game.

He has presented a report on his findings to E. K. Hall, chairman of the Football Rules committee, which will open its annual meeting at Hanover, N. H., Friday.

Yost said he learned that one boy reported to have died from football injuries is alive and enjoying good health. Another who was reported dead was found never to have existed.

Traces Six Deaths To Infections.

Of the 21 reported deaths which Yost refuses to charge against football, two were caused by pneumonia, one by infantile paralysis, one by kidney disease, six by infections, one by appendicitis, one by typhoid fever and one by heart disease. One boy was injured fatally while wrestling and another was struck by a truck. One small boy kicked at a soccer ball, missed and fell on his back while playing in the street. Three boys who did not play football, died from unknown causes.

"It is proper," Yost's report says, "that football should be cleared of responsibility for the deaths improperly charged against it. At the same time it is also fitting that football take stock of itself and see what risks may be eliminated and what safeguards may be raised to prevent death."

The 22 deaths which did result from football injuries were from the following causes: Fracture of cervical vertebrae (broken neck), eight; cerebral hemorrhage, four; peritonitis, four; coronary embolism (blood clot), by Oliver, Ann Arbor, Mich; skull fracture, ruptured spleen and brain concussion, one each. Two deaths were from unknown causes.

Defense Most Dangerous.

The investigation showed twelve players were injured fatally while playing on the defense, and seven on the offense. In three cases time of the injury was unknown. Seven of those fatally injured were college students, seven were in high schools and eight were "sandlot," or unorganized players.

Yost drew these conclusions from the study:

"That the number of fatal injuries is in inverse proportion to the degree of coaching, training and medical supervision exercised.

"That apparently it is more dangerous to play on the defense than on the offense.

"That the most frequent cause of death is fracture of cervical vertebrae.

"That fatal injuries occur principally as the result of players being struck on the neck, head or abdomen by the hard fiber of thigh guards."

Recommends Four Safety Measures.

Yost offered four suggestions to make the game safer:

"All equipment should be designed not only for the protection of the wearer, but also with consideration for the safety of the opponent.

"Players should be impressed with the great importance of giving immediate attention to cuts, scratches, abrasions and other avenues of infection.

"Great attention should be paid by officials to improper use of knees and hands.

Dempsey Says Comeback Trail Is Fun, But Isn't "Kidding Self"

CLEVELAND, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey is having a lot of fun on the comeback trail, but he "isn't kidding himself."

Arriving here today for his bout tomorrow night with K. O. Christner, Akron, the former heavyweight champion is hopeful but not seriously concerned whether he reaches again the throne he lost to Gene Tunney in 1926.

He could go ten rounds, "but not at top speed," he admitted. "I'm hoping that I'll be able to challenge the best of them by summer, but I'm not kidding myself or the public until I'm sure I'll be able to go the distance without breathing spells."

The old adventure is gone, but he's getting a new thrill.

"One-night stands, taking on all comers and building for something bigger," he said. "It's fun hopping about from place to place; that's the life I like."

Fidgety, as always, the old mauler appeared a little proud of a slight cut over his eye received Monday night at Milwaukee in bouts with two opponents.

"That's my badge," he grinned. "If you're a fighter, you got to have something to show for it."

LEWIS FACES ROEBUCK TONIGHT

Strangler and Indian in Feature Bout at Auditorium.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

TONIGHT is rassling night in this quaint little hamlet of senators and snipers, and the rassling populace, now fourteen days out on the sea of wrestlingless, is stirring uneasily today prior to transporting themselves in droves to the Washington Auditorium, where Matchmaker Joe Turner has coralled a choice collection of the beefy boys of the bruising practice of bone-bending.

It has leaked out several times during the last ten days that tonight's card is headed by Ed ("Strangler") Lewis, and that is still the case. The old strangler, who actually is younger than many of his contemporaries, has been signed by Turner to meet the toughest grappler he has been induced to tangle with since he came over to the Curley interests, Tiny Roebuck.

The meeting brings together two of the strongest men ever to enter the mat game. Neither needs much of an introduction. Lewis' name has dominated wrestling since the war. He made the error three years ago of bucking the N. B. A. when that body began to sit in on the rassling seances and consequently has been shunted to the bush league rassling centers since then.

Lewis Remains As Crusher.

But he is still the same old cranium crusher, 39 years old, and one of the few authentic "college" wrestlers. He was champion before the newspaper boys began putting quotation marks around the word. He weighs 235 and meets Sandor Szabo tomorrow night in Philadelphia.

Roebuck has been bowling over really good wrestlers for the last two months, and accomplished no small victory Tuesday night by beating Szabo in New York. Szabo easily defeated the Indian here two months ago, Roebuck's last appearance here. Big Tiny is near 250 in weight now, as strong as ever. One of his recent victims was Hans Steinke, a strictly Madison Square Garden wrestler, who is not used to being thrown.

Lewis will have to go in good form, both from a physical and showmanship angle, to offset two tried and trusted show stealers who also are on the bill, in preliminary roles. The spotlight pilferers are Fritz Kley, a hipshifting acrobat who has invaded the three ringed circus of wrestling, and Fred Grobmeier, a six-foot-four string bean supporter who is credited with the invention of a gruesome hold known as the figure four scissors.

Kley to Meet Canadian.

Kley meets Jean LeDoux, a bar'l chested French-Canadian, and Grobmeier wraps his devil-fish tentacles around the John Maxos, a tough Greek who looks a lot like Ray Steele, and seems about as good. Sammy Stein, who kayoed himself three weeks ago by missing Jim Londos during a flying tackle, and landing on the unremitting cement around the Madison Square Garden ring, makes his first appearance here in nearly a year, against Alex Aberg, a newcomer.

Matros Kirilenko, who comes out in a leopard skin, and undresses in the ring, opens the show at 8:30 o'clock, aided and abetted by one Alois Kautski.

The indisputable cost of the show has forced the management to take in the "Women free" sign for the evening.

Washington Golf Club Abandons Tournament

The board of governors of the Washington Golf and Country Club, at a meeting held at the clubhouse last night, voted to abandon this year the usual spring invitation golf tournament. This event has been an annual fixture with the club ever since it was inaugurated many years ago, but owing to the existing depression it was decided that it would be wise to avoid the expense which an invitation tournament involves. Hereafter the club will hold these competitions on alternate years.

Mrs. W. E. Hall, Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely, and Mrs. R. N. Sutton, representing the women's golf committee of the club, appeared before the board and presented plans for women's golf events during the approaching season.

Columbus U. Names Judge Ring Judge

Joe Judge, genial Washington baseball club captain and first baseman, will live up to his name Saturday night when Columbus University's boxing representatives file into action against fisticuffers of Springfield College at the Strand Theater.

When the curtain rings up at 8:30 o'clock Judge and Leonard Walsh, assistant athletic director at George Washington University, are to serve as judges of the bouts. Goldie Ahearn, referee, casts the third vote.

Washingtonians desirous of witnessing Columbus' boxing and basket ball events may do so through purchase of athletic books. They are on sale at Goldie Ahearn's, Vic's Sport Shop and Spalding's.

VINES TO WED PASADENA GIRL

National Tennis King to Marry Verle Low Next June.

PASADENA, Calif., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Engagement of Miss Verle Low to Ellsworth Vines, jr., her friend of junior college days, but national singles tennis champion to the sports world, was announced late today by Mrs. Laura B. Low. The wedding will take place some time in June.

The announcement was made at a Valentine bridge tea in honor of Miss Low at her home here. Vines and Miss Low met more than three years ago as students of Pasadena Junior College from which both were graduated. Each is 20 years old.

The name of Vines, the Nation's chief hope in the 1932 Davis Cup matches, was scarcely known beyond the confines of Pasadena then, although he was active in city net tournaments.

Fiancee Follower Of Tennis.

Miss Low is a close follower of tennis, but does not play tournament tennis. Vines is employed in the bookkeeping department of a Los Angeles stock and bond firm.

Vines will be a junior in the school of business administration, University of Southern California, when he returns to resume studies in the fall after the coming summer tennis campaign. He is a member of Sigma Nu Fraternity.

Cronin With Firemen Against Eagles Sunday

One of the deadliest pot shot exponents in this vicinity will cast his lot with Columbia Engine Company's basket ball team Sunday night when Skinker Eagles are opposed at Bolling Field Armory.

Earl (Humpty) Cronin, formerly a standout with St. John's Cadets, will be shooting from a guard when play starts at 8:30. Most dangerous in the pinches, Cronin has engineered many an upset through the medium of sensational last minute tosses. A preliminary duel is to get under way at 7:30 o'clock.

High, College Frosh Fives in 4 Tilts Today

Free of their high school series chores, Western, Tech, Business and Central step out into college yearling competition this afternoon in four games which loom as features of the week's scholastic court card.

Western seems to have picked the toughest competition of the day, meeting George Washington University's potent freshman five at Western. Tech tangles with the Catholic University freshmen at Tech, and Central will attempt to send the Maryland freshmen down to their second loss in two years, at Maryland.

Novos Meets McShea In Nursery 4-Rounder

Gabe Novos, sensational Filipino flyweight, who astounded local boxing fans with his punching when he flattened Young Dempsey recently at Portner's Arena, returns next Tuesday night to meet Young Kid Mc Shea, Camp Meade flyweight, in one of the four-round sets in support of the Antol Kocis-Billy Landers melee, the proceeds of which go to the Alexandria Day Nursery.

Billy Essinger, who stopped Jack Lamar in the fourth round after he was taking all the worst of it from Mike Uraine's protege at Portner's, will be tossed back again against the same Lamar.

Two other four-round preliminaries will be announced shortly.

10th Straight Annexed by Maryland

Eastern Shore Five Outclassed; Berger, Vincent Star.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S Basket Ball Team defeated Washington College, of Chestertown, Md., last night, 36-16, with such ridiculous ease and acumen that it was barely a contest and made it difficult to believe that the little Eastern Shore school with 60 male students has beaten Maryland four out of the last six times.

It was the tenth straight time that Maryland has trooped off the floor with more points than its opponents this year. But the ease with which it riddled and crumpled the visiting club almost took the bubbles out of the nectar of victory over the team which wished Maryland godspeed to the Southern Conference championship last year by beating them 33-32.

Both clubs used the same style of play but the similarity stopped there. Maryland's manpower once more stunning and unstoppable, as its long arm and sturdily built tossers made thrilling and successful assaults on the enemy basket and checked the majority of the thrusts of the visitors. Maryland led 17-7 at the half.

Vincent Shoots 4 Goals.

Rufus Vincent gave Maryland an 8-0 lead at the very start of the game, banging in four goals with startling suddenness, a shock from which Washington never recovered. Removed before the half was over, Vincent turned the spotlight over to Bozie Berger and a gentleman composed entirely of arms and legs known appropriately as "Spider" Chase. Berger gave an exhibition of shooting, winging them in one-handedly, two-handedly, from the side, middle, afar and near. With half the perriod gone Maryland led 31-12, and a crowd of 2,000 was stirring uneasily in their benches.

Koons New President Of Congressional Club

John C. Koons was last night elected president of the Congressional Country Club at a meeting of the board of governors. Albert Walker and M. F. Calnan were elected secretary and treasurer, respectively, and the following chairmen of committees were announced: E. F. Colladay, finance; Henry J. Richardson, greens; Martin Rittenhouse, house, and Dr. Bruce L. Taylor, golf.

Soccer Game Sunday To Aid Injured Player

Proceeds derived from the Rockville-British United, Capital City League soccer game, to be played at Rockville Sunday, will go toward helping defray the medical expenses of Phil Harman. Harman broke his leg while playing full back for Rockville in a game several weeks ago. The British United team occupies third place in the league and Rockville fourth.

NEW STEWARD-MANAGER.

Edward A. St. Jean, who has been connected with the Vanderbilt Hotel Fort Monroe, has been appointed steward-manager at the Columbia Country Club and will assume his new duties next Monday. He succeeds W. M. Kochenderfer, who has held the position during the last two years.

TAKOMA-S. S. WINS.

Takoma Silver Spring, with three games left of its race in the Montgomery County High School basket ball series, journeyed over to Hyattsville yesterday and handed the Prince Georges County champions a 26-14 lacing.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

THE Washington Women's Duckpin Association will go into its annual huddle Friday night at 8 o'clock at the Arcadia for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year. Other important business now on the calendar will also be discussed. All members are urged to attend.

Kann's rolled its way to a new record in the Business Men's League at Convention Hall when it toppled 628 pins in a single game. It also had a 1,722 game. Astor Clarke's 163 tied the individual game record, and he continued his good work for a set of 372, which Beavers equaled.

Marquette's 617 game and 1,662 set topped the team scoring in the Knights of Columbus League at Convention Hall. Reynolds' 368 set and Larry Fitzgerald's 143 game were high.

Bill Miller's 355 set was high as Chestnut Farms took all three from Hecht in the King Pin Business Men's League last night. In another match in the same league the Five Greeks took the odd one from the First Americans. Jim Tompros was high with a 144 game and 378 set.

A 1,619 set and 560 game, rolled by Anderson's Cafe, copped the team award in Section 2, North of Washington League at Silver Spring. Jack Rudder, of Independent Oil, tickled the maples for a 139 game, while Jack Houston, of Swann's Service, totaled 352 for his three games.

Deal's Service took the odd one from Georgetown Recreation in a District Ladies' League engagement rolled on the latter's alleys. Evelyn Ream's 338 set, and Miss Heil's 129 game took the individual prizes. 541, Deal's first game, was high for the teams.

Cold Storage, present leader of the Arcade-Sunshine loop, won the first three games of a six-game home-and-home match with Elite, at Arcadia. Denenberg, of Cold Storage, rolled a high game of 116 and set of 328.

Gus Fredericks hung up a new individual set mark of 406 in the Nautical League at Columbia. Gus' best game was 151. Drifters No. 2 had a 581 game and 1,657 set to its credit.

Farnum's Bowling Shoes forfeited to Judd & Detweiler in a National Capital League match supposed to have been rolled at Lucky Strike.

"Two Box" Moore, rolling a three-game total of 340, and Belt, with a 135 game, topped the individual scoring in the Amos n' Andy loop at Lucky Strike.

The Winter Olympics' Thrill Event

Speeding over the ice at a speed which reaches 70 miles an hour, the two-man bobsleds have provided the sensations of the Lake Placid Olympic carnival. Above is pictured an American sled going over the famed "White Face" curve, a solid sheet of steep-banked ice which requires nervy maneuvering to keep the sled on the course. The American team scored a thrilling victory in the two-man event yesterday.

BLISS AGAIN THREATENS IN A. A. U.

Strongest Team in 6 Years; Play Marine Five Tomorrow.

ELIMINATED in the quarter-final round last year and in the semi-final the year before, Bliss Electrical School is looking forward to the impending A. A. U. basket ball tournament to be staged in the Tech High School Gymnasium, under the auspices of The Post, hopeful of obtaining its first tournament championship.

The teams that defeated Bliss in the 1930 and 1931 tournaments eventually won the unlimited title. Last season it was the Potomac Boat Club Scholastics who triumphed by a 4-point margin. The year before that it was an all-star aggregation playing under the Woodlothian banner, and the score in that instance was also close.

For six years now Bliss has been represented in the tournament, but never has its prospects been so bright for victory as they are this year. The present team is, in the opinion of Coach Norman Almony, the best turned out by the school since he assumed control of athletics six years ago.

Course Handicaps Team.

"We are handicapped in sports because the course prescribed by the school requires only one year of study. Consequently, each year means beginning anew with green material. This year, however, I was fortunate in getting a group of players well drilled in the fundamentals of the game and they have been quick to adapt themselves to the style of play embodied in my theory of the game. There is no doubt about it, Bliss has the best team it has had in many years and we have high hopes of winning the A. A. U. title."

Almony's words are not idle ones. A glance at the team's record for the year bears out the fact that the Engineers are powerful. Led by Johnny Burke and Capt. Charley Minneci, they have won ten of eleven non-conference games, and lead the Washington Collegiate Conference title-chase with four victories and no defeats.

Seek to Avenge Lone Defeat.

The Quantico Marines chalked up the only victory scored over Bliss this season in a game played at Quantico. They won by 10 points, but the Electricians have high hopes of avenging this when the two teams meet again tomorrow night at Silver Spring.

Bliss also looks like the winner of the conference race as it has only two games remaining on its schedule, both of which are with teams it has previously beaten. The first defeat Benjamin Franklin ever suffered in conference competition since the league was inaugurated a few years ago, was administered by Bliss this season.

Government League Fives to Meet Tonight

Business managers of the ten teams entered in the Government Basketball League will hold a meeting tonight at 8 p. m., in the Vic Sport Shop for the purpose of drawing up the schedule for the second half of play.

U. S. Hockey Team Routs Germans, 8-0

Olympic Arena, Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 10.—The U. S. Olympic Hockey Team tonight scored its second victory over the German team, and its fourth in the Olympic round-robin hockey tournament, by a score of 8-0. Beaten only by the tournament leading Canadians, the American team outclassed the Germans in the start and scored in every period.

Garrison, Bent and Chase led a bombardment that the Germans resisted stoutly until the final frame, when the Yankee pucksters found their opponents net four times.

C. U. BEATEN BY VIRGINIA FIVE, 37-32

White's Brilliant Shots Futile; Cardinals Battle to End.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Feb. 10. In the last home game save one, Virginia's quint won from Catholic University here tonight, 37 to 32, after an exciting second period battle, featured by the brilliant shooting of Eddie White, a guard, who rang up a total of six baskets. Half were from midfloor, and one or two from the side lines.

The contest was a nip and tuck struggle for the first ten minutes, during which time the score was tied four times. Then a spectacular basket by Sheary from midfloor gave Catholic a 2-point lead. Led by Capt. Lem Mayo, who shot two goals in rapid succession, the Cavaliers launched a drive which brought the score at half time to 21 to 14.

Sheary's three baskets in the first half were from near midfloor and the rooters called on the home players to watch No. 14.

Two baskets by Harrison, Virginia center, on the 30 seconds after intermission, gave Virginia a 9-point lead, and it looked like a runaway. Catholic was not through, however, and in eight minutes had come within three points of knotting the count. Star performers in this barrage of baskets were Spinelli, Gaither, Cannicaro and White.

Defensive Play Tightens.

Here the defense of both teams tightened and the points registered were far between. Delafield contributed a one-pointer, but White followed with a spectacular shot. Two minutes later Catholic was only one point behind, with six minutes to go. Coach Tebell's wards then started a final drive and in the next three minutes Virginia was leading by nine points. The spectators began leaving their seats, but halted as Sheary and White registered baskets in the final minutes.

Each team registered the same number of baskets, but the Cavaliers were more successful from the charity mark. Ten free tosses were missed by Catholic. White was high-point man, with sixteen.

TINY ROEBUCK WINS.

LABOR VS. BETHESDA.

Labor Department's basket ball team will meet the crack Bethesda Firemen tonight at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School at 8:30 o'clock. The Firemen have won nine and lost four this year.

FIRST HALF ENDED.

The first half of the Government League schedule was automatically ended last night when the game between Fort Myer and Interior Department was cancelled. The soldiers were obliged to play a Third Corps Area game.

DREYFUSS WILL FILED.

Pittsbufgh, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The will of Barney Dreyfuss, late owner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was filed for probate today. The estate is estimated at "$400,000 or more," but is expected to total several million dollars.

12,000 Watch Young Swiss Defeated

Bobbers Gamble With Turns; Swede Wins Ski Running Race.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 10 (A.P.).—A flash of almost unbelievable speed, gave Hubert Stevens, brawny, iron-armed woodsman, the Olympic two-man bob sled championship today, and the United States its fifth Olympic triumph, and 12,000 persons strewn about the rocky sides of Mount Van Hoevenburg the thrill of a lifetime.

Eclipsing everything that has ever been done before on a bob run, accomplishing what he thought himself was impossible, Stevens twice flashed down through the vertical curves and lightning straightaways of the mile and a half chute under two minutes, to make up the 4.28 seconds he spotted Reto Capadrutt yesterday and beat the Swiss youngster for the title by 1.54 seconds.

There seemed little chance to defeat Capadrutt unless an accident stopped the mad surge of the young Swiss sophomore from the University of Zurich, when the twelve drivers of eight nations took their sleds and brakemen to the top of the lofty mountain just after dawn to add the final two heats today to the two raced yesterday.

Reto Breaks Record In First Slide.

And when Reto, second down the slide today, found the track blazing fast where yesterday Stevens, leading off, ploughed out the snow for the rest of the field, what little hope there had been died. Down came the Swiss, his white, rope-steered sled glistening in the bright winter light, hammering through the curves, taking impossible chances, riding high and wide and furious, to zoom across the finish line in 2 minutes, 3.52 seconds, breaking the record Stevens set at 2:04.27 late yesterday.

Stevens, a 220-pound giant of a man, one of the four brothers who promised their mother on her death bed that they'd never ride the suicidal slide together, shook his head and started up the mountain with his brother Curtis, the youngest and biggest of the four. They take Curtis down on the back of the bobsled at just such times as this. They boast he can pack a 200-pound deer under his arm as if it were a sirloin steak.

When he bobs a sled—heaves forward to increase its speed—they insist he can leap it clear off the ground.

Thousands Line Mountainside.

By the time Stevens took the track for his first run the field had been distanced, although they all tried today the trick of heating the sled runners with blow torches, a trick that gave Hubert his 2:04:27 mark yesterday. The competition was Capadrutt and Stevens, and chiefly Capadrutt.

They came down—and the thousands lining the precipitous mountainside, grouping at the deadly curves, heard with little hope the amplifiers over their heads carrying word of what was happening on the parts of the slide they could not see.

"They're off"—and a pause.
"Coming into Eyrie."
"Taking the curve."
"They're out, 29 seconds flat."
Another pause.
"Coming into Whiteface."
"Taking the curve."
"They're bobbing hard. Going like a streak; 51 1-5 seconds."

Take Curves in Record Time.

Then came Cliffside in 1:07 2-5, fastest time ever made to that point; Shady Corner in 1:27 3-5, keeping it up, and Zig-Zag in 1:48 flat, something unheard of. The crowds at the curves gasped at the flat bullet, two hunched figures heaving madly, flashed in and out of walled ice turns, hitting 65 and 70 miles an hour, flown past in the flash of an eye, the runners screaming as they snatched at the ice.

"They're down." The speakers called and the throngs, still breathless, waited the time. It was 1:59.69, breaking two minutes for the first time in the history of two-man bobbing, a feat that to these daredevils who ride the skeletons of oak and steel was like Paavo Nurmi running a mile in three minutes flat. The four-man bobs, with twice the weight and momentum, seldom get under 1:55.

In that one ride the Stevens boys caught Capadrutt and made up all but half a second of the total time that decided the championship. The rest was a matter of course, once down safely at that terrific speed. The Stevens boys went back and smashed that record with a run of 1:57.68, while game little Capadrutt, straining, gambling with death on the top of every wall, made a final desperate descent in 1:59.67. But the championship was gone.

Defending Champions Place Third.

Stevens' total time for the four runs was 8 minutes 14.74 seconds and Capadrutt's 8:16.28. Jack Heaton and Robert Minton, defending the

GREAT STRETCH RUN GIVES SINGLE STAR HIALEAH PURSE

Aged Mare Up To Win by A Nod

With Jockey Mills' Help, Stages Stirring Finish.

Tombereau Second and Salisbury, Choice, Third.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 10 (A. P.).—The popular Apprentice Jockey Hank Mills, returning to the saddle after a five-day suspension for rough riding, came right back into the spotlight here today when he piloted Joe Edwards' Single Star to a nose victory in the featured Peters Purse, a dash of 6 furlongs. Tombereau was second by a length over Salisbury, the favorite. Single Star paid $5.50 and her time was 1:11 3-5.

Single Star, an 8-year-old mare, was perfectly rated by little Mills. Tombereau had the most early foot and opened up a lead of several lengths in the run for positions along the back stretch. Mills had Single Star going easily in second position, while Ellice followed a couple of lengths back.

Single Star Gains Steadily At End.

Salisbury was outrun in fourth position. Turning into the stretch Mills went to work on Single Star and the elderly daughter of Out the Way—Teetotal crept up on Tombereau slowly, but surely. It took all horse and rider could do to get up in the last jump to win. Salisbury closed ground through the stretch, but his bid came too late.

New Orleans, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Prose and Poetry, 5-year-old son of Omar Khayyam from Eddie Haughton's barn, got up in the final strides to take the mile feature at the Fair Grounds today.

Episcopal High Five Beaten by G. U. Preps

Georgetown Prep got back on the winning band wagon yesterday, after being yanked off the day before by Central, by defeating Episcopal High, 18 to 12, at Garrett Park. It gave the winners a record of fourteen victories and four setbacks for the year.

Stressing defensive play, the game was close at all times, although Georgetown Prep never was behind. The score at the half was 10 to 5.

Marines Beaten, 28-26, By Griffith Consumers

Quantico, Va., Feb. 10.—The triumphant return home of the Quantico Marines, after their rsuccessful Southern trip, was marred by a fighting Griffith-Consumer quintet, of Washington, which upset the dope by winning a 28-25 decision over the Devil Dogs here tonight.

The sterling work of Tom Peck and Bob Lilly, Griff forwards, was chiefly responsible for the downfall of the Marines.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLUE ARAB, $33.90, $8.20, $2.90; EL PUMA, $3.20, $2.30; SANSARICA, $2.10.

BLUE ARAB broke fast, was taken in hand and raced under stout restraint to top of home stretch, easily disposed of MAKE SPEED rounding the far turn and had a bit in reserve at end. El PUMA, on the outside of the leaders all the way, lost lot of ground at top of home stretch, where he made a wide turn. SANSARICA broke well, but was unable to keep up with pacemakers. MAKE SPEED tired badly.

SECOND RACE—Two and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:58. Winner, Willis Sharpe Kilmer's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MINT DRIFT, $4.30, $3.10, $2.60; LADY BRACADALE, $2.90, $2.80; OSWEGO PRINCESS, $52.80.

MINT DRIFT, hard ridden from the start, hung on with good courage in final drive and just lasted long enough. LADY BRACADALE broke in front and was a keen factor all the way. She was carried over to inside when OSWEGO PRINCESS swerved across a sixteenth from start. OSWEGO PRINCESS, fractious at the post, was taken to the extreme outside and did not break from the stalls. She closed with rare courage.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOSAFABO, $7.80, $6.40, $4.30; PARTIES, $10.90, $6.30; PHANTOM ROCK, $11.60.

BOSAFABO moved up stoutly rounding the far turn and went to outside of leaders entering home stretch, shook off LA GOLONDRINA and HIEOVER and had enough in reserve at end to stall off challenge from PARTIES. Latter closed full of courage. She finished strongly and was wearing winner down. PHANTOM ROCK was a forward contender all the way.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:55. Off at 4:00½. Winner, Mrs. V. M. Duncan's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GLENSIDE, $6.60, $3.20, $2.60; PLEASE, $3.80, $2.90; KNOWLTON, $2.50.

GLENSIDE hung on with great courage after carrying KNOWLTON along at a fast pace from the start. He just lasted long enough to stall off PLEASE. Robertson reserved the latter in early stages, trailed in back of the leaders to stretch turn, where he was taken to outside. He was gradually wearing the winner down and would have won in another stride. KNOWLTON broke in motion and hugged the rail the entire trip. He faltered right at the end.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SINGLE STAR, $5.50, $2.90, $2.10; TOMBEREAU, $3.90, $2.30; SALISBURY $2.30.

SINGLE STAR was reserved off the pace and responded with a good effort when put to a drive in last fifty yards. She was up just in time. TOMBEREAU, hustled along from the start, was never given a breathing spell. He tired badly when challenged. SALISBURY broke slowly and was outrun first half mile. He finished full of courage and was going the strongest of lot at finish.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:59. Off at 5:03½. Winner, L. D. Oldham's b. g. (5), by High Cloud—Miss Blue. Trained by A. J. Prack. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $100. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:48, 1:12 3-5, 1:39 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLUE CLOUD, $4.90, $2.70, $2.50; BLUCH DINEEN, $5.70, $4.30; ALGARA, $4.80.

BLUE CLOUD went to the front with a rush soon after the start and, after opening up an easy lead, raced well in hand until final furlong. He drew away again when Leyland shook him up. BLUCH DINEEN trailed the leader all the way, made several efforts to get to the front, but BLUE CLOUD always held him safe. ALGARA outlasted PRINCE DALE in stretch drive.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:31. Off at 5:32. Winner, Mrs. S. Carlano's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PARTISAN, $16.90, $6.00, $3.70; BRUSH, $6.70, $3.90; LION HEARTED, $2.60.

PARTISAN sprinted to the front in first half mile, opened up commanding lead after leaving back stretch and never was menaced. BRUSH, slow to begin, as usual, improved position steadily after six furlongs and closed very fast on outside through stretch. LION HEARTED was poorly ridden, but after getting clear last quarter mile, closed powerfully through final furlong. PRINCE TOY raced well up with pace until entering stretch, then tired. PLUTARCH showed a flash of early speed.

Boots and Saddle's
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
—Hialeah Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 10.—Hialeah Park paid a thoughtful tribute to the memory of Thomas A. Edison, a pioneer in the pursuit of recreation in Florida, by naming the feature handicap for the inventor on its program tomorrow. Racing had no place in the life of the wizard, but Florida occupied a large portion of his being, and this remembrance will be well received by the citizens of the country of palms.

Six fast sprinters have been named for the Edison Handicap at 6 furlongs. VANDERPOOL, top weight, should win the sprint, which carries a purse of $1,500. The Campfire colt has lost some of his consistency and was beaten by a neck by Brown Wisdom in his last race in 1:11 1-5. PANETIAN, which set a new record in his last race of 1:10 2-5, is dangerous, but he adds five pounds to his impost, and VANDERPOOL is believed to have the edge on him in class. DON LEON should be as good as third.

FIRST RACE—Opening the card is the dash for 3-year-old maiden fillies. After racing through their 2-year-old form without finding any field they could beat, there is not much to be said of any of them now. CHIEF'S CAMILLE came close twice in the Tropical Park session, and is picked to beat LADY ARA and KITTY BRUCE, which showed less. CHIEF'S CAMILLE was second to Pop Gaffney at Tropical Park.

SECOND RACE—SWAGGER STICK, easy winner Tuesday, should repeat. DRY RIDGE, a recent winner, may prove troublesome and will be the contender. DOME ran well the other day and may get third money. This race is 3 furlongs, the longest route for juveniles so far this year.

THIRD RACE—CAPTAIN ED looks best. He was second to James River Tuesday, in front of Love Offering, which race showed a big improvement on recent form. POLYAGMOUS has had enough racing to flash some form and is rated the contender. He could win easily on his best form. BROOKSIE is getting ready for brackets and should be in the money.

FOURTH RACE—MY SIS should repeat. She won easily at the same distance Saturday. STAR LASSIE seems the only danger. She was second to Batty the other day. CHICAGO GIRL is in best form and will be close to these.

SIXTH RACE—DOUBLE HEART was never in better condition and is selected for the sixth race. He beat JACK CAMPBELL last time out and the latter is the chief contender in this race. CLEAN PLAY appears best of the others.

SEVENTH RACE—DRESS SHIP is selected. He was third to Negopoli last out and can beat this kind. MONTANARO, a beaten favorite, appears the chief contender. OATEN'S last race was good and he has a chance.

MARYLAND U. LOSES TWO DATES

Harvard Nine, Syracuse Lacrossers Cancel Games.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S baseball and lacrosse teams will have to forego two choice encounters this spring, it was revealed yesterday, when both Harvard and Syracuse decided not to send, respectively, their baseball team and soccer twelve to College Park. Cancellation of other games in this sector was given as the reason for the action of Harvard and Syracuse.

Maryland was willing to bring Harvard's ball club down from Cambridge for this game alone, scheduled for April 5, but Crimson officials have decided not to invade the South this year. Syracuse officials asked for cancellation of the lacrosse game, scheduled April 16, on the grounds of shortage of athletic funds at the school. A Maryland-Syracuse game for 1933 was arranged.

With the Syracuse game off, Maryland is endeavoring to change the dates of the Old Liner's trip to Georgia and Georgia Tech from late in March to the middle of April.

St. John's Defeats Devitt Five, 35 to 29

With Tommy Breen and Fred Scheele showing the way, St. John's triumphed over Devitt Prep, 35-29, in a spirited game played at St. John's yesterday. Breen popped the ball through the hoop for 14 points, and Scheele was just a step behind with 13.

U. S. SLEDDERS WIN WITH RECORD RUN

Olympic title for the United States, were third with 8:29.15, almost 15 seconds back of the winner. Lieut. Papana's Roumanian team finished fourth; Hans Kilian, of Germany, fifth; Count Rossi de Montelera, of Italy, sixth; Werner Huth, of Germany, seventh; Agostino Lafranchi, Italy, eighth; Max Houben, Belgium, ninth; Christian Hansez, Belgium, tenth; Louis Balsan, France, eleventh; and Hugo Weinstengel, Austria, twelfth.

Stevens' conquest completely overshadowed the triumph of Sweden in the 18 kilometers ski running race, which also formed half of the combined running and jumping event that ends tomorrow on the tall Intervales Olympic jump. Sven Utterstrom, world champion at 50 kilometers, raced home first in 1 hour 23 minutes 7 seconds, dethroning Johann Grottumsbraaten, of Norway, 1928 Olympic title holder.

Swede and Finns Trail Winner.

Axel Vikstrom, also of Sweden, was second, followed by two Finns, Veli Saarinen and Martti Lippalainen, with Aroe Rustadstuen, of Norway, leading the former champion, Grottumsbraaten, to the wire with fifth place.

The United States skiers finished down the list, the first, Olle Zetterstrom, coming home in twenty-third place in 1:38:26.

Sonja Henie, woman's figure skating champion of the world, dazzled a crowd of 3,000 in the arena tonight with the brilliance of her free skating. She completed the defense of her Olympic title.

Supposed to be skating in a class by herself as she swirled about the ice in a tight-fitting costume of white satin velvet, a rabbit's foot pinned to her shoulder above the Norwegian emblem. The crowd gave her an ovation.

Today's victories added to the already large margin the United States holds in the unofficial point score, lifting the total to 72. Canada has 33 points, Sweden 20, Norway 17, Austria 10, Finland 10, Switzerland 5, Germany 4, Roumania 3 and Italy 1.

STOCK SELLING NIPS EARLY PRICE RALLY

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Persistent selling of a few prominent issues undermined an advance in the stock market today. Net changes for the general run of shares were fractional, with many leaders showing small gains, but weak spots proved so strategically placed that the composite price represented a minute loss.

Early declines turned into moderate advances when covering in Union Pacific, preliminary to tomorrow's dividend meeting, prompted an orderly withdrawal of shorts elsewhere, and by early afternoon the list was well sprinkled with gains of 1 to 2 points.

However, omission of Eastman Kodak's extra dividend of 75 cents, although not entirely unexpected, discouraged the rally and quotations sagged slowly to the close.

Rails Finish Higher.

Rails finished generally higher and the industrials, on the average, were virtually unchanged with a few exceptions. Enough utilities sagged to give that group a somewhat heavy appearance. Several preferred stocks of various classifications hardened appreciably, but there was no uniformity to the trend among senior equities. Volume increased to 1,302,548 shares, with a large percentage of the turnover centering in a handful of issues.

Auburn bumped along erratically, recovering a large loss and then dipping again, to close about 3 lower. Eastman broke nearly 6 which meant a new low since the ten for one split-up a decade ago. Consolidated Gas, North American and American Sugar acted tired.

On the other hand, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Westinghouse, American Telephone, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Du Pont held steady to firm. Union Pacific's net gain of 2 represented nearly two-thirds of its extreme rise. Wall street believes there is small chance the current dividend rate will be retained by this prominent carrier, which has a large investment in shares of other roads.

Steel Tonnage Declines.

The U. S. Steel tonnage report was closely in line with predictions. The decline, 87,203 tons, brought the backlog to the lowest volume since publication of the figures started more than twenty years ago. Although the corporation operated last month at a higher rate than in December, it had been clear that new orders were insufficient to offset shipments. The statement seemed to have no influence on stocks.

Steel production is making no progress because neither the automobile manufacturers nor the railroads are buying large enough quantities to effect a rise. Iron Age, reporting activity at 28 per cent, unchanged from a week ago, said it was doubtful whether February output of cars would equal January's. Private construction work appears to be almost at a standstill, and the carriers are being very cautious about mail purchases.

The money markets are unresponsive to hoarding or gold exports, for influences which would normally make for firmness are being offset by slack commercial demand, and some bankers are beginning to believe that March 1 withdrawals to the interior will have little effect on rates here. Government bonds apparently are not expecting any material change.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Broadening of North American wheat export business, together with predictions of a new cold wave, had a bracing effect on grain markets today. Around 3,500,000 bushels of wheat were estimated to have been bought this week for shipment overseas from Canada, 600,000 bushels from the United States. Forecasts of much lower temperatures in Northwestern States caused a return of anxiety that adverse conditions would develop over the winter wheat belt and bring about crop damage.

Wheat closed firm at the day's top level, 3/4@3/4 over yesterday's finish. Corn, 1/4@1/2 up. Oats unchanged to 1/8@1/4 off, and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to 7 cents advance.

Preceding the upswing of values, wheat displayed a temporary downward trend associated with bearish reports regarding the crop outlook in the domestic winter wheat belt. An official summary emphasized that there had been no apparent injury from the cold wave of the last ten days and that in particular the Ohio Valley crop was doing well, although the ground had been bare during low temperatures. Word, however, that the foreign wheat quota in France had been increased to 15 per cent, was against 3 per cent prior to February 1, gave an immediate advantage to bulls.

Assertions that the French import quota for wheat would soon reach 30 to 50 per cent, accelerated the rise in values here, and bullish sentiment was afterward decidedly increased by export news and by abnormally high temperatures Southwest, 70 to 84, said to be a top record for this time of year. There were also reports that similar conditions existed previous to crop reverses in 1922 and 1927, and that some damage in western Kansas this season had already been done by alternating extremes of temperature. Speculative sellers of wheat were conspicuous in switching to the buying side of the market in the final transactions.

Corn and oats rallied with wheat, but not until corn had established a new low price record for the season.

Despite upturns in hog values, provisions touched the bottom-most prices since 1897, as a result of scattered selling and of lagging demand.

PART-TIMERS HOLD TO INSURANCE JOBS

Agent Problem Discussed in Capital Publication as Solution Is Sought.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The problem of part-time men is discussed in the initial publication of the Life Insurance Club of Washington, appearing yesterday. It states: "For many years Washington life insurance agents have sought a solution of the part-time riddle. Within the past three or four years more has been said on this subject than ever before, but today it remains in as complex a condition as ever.

"While it is a recognized fact that there are fewer part-time agents with the larger companies than at any time in the past, the failure of practically all general agents and managers (there are three or four exceptions), to take a definite stand in this respect is a course of wonderment.

"It appears that each general agent and manager has an individual problem to solve; a different interpretation as to what constitutes a part-time man; an abundance of sympathy for some individual who, six months or a year from now, may make an insurance man, or, some home office policy that demands their employment, retention or what not.

Part-Timers Unprofitable.

"In the face of all this, it is unanimously agreed by general agents and managers that they are not profitable; that the amount of business obtained from them is infinitesimal as compared with the business produced by the full-time man; and still the demand of the full-time agent for his elimination goes unheeded.

"In our opinion the continuous, healthy growth of a life insurance agency is contingent only on intelligent leadership and the cooperation of the agency force. Where the part-time man fits into this scheme will always remain a mystery."

Total farm value of agricultural crops of Maryland in 1931 was $39,480,000 as set forth by the February credit and sales bulletin of Alexander Hamilton Institute. This compares with $41,072,000 in 1930 and $62,597,000 for 1929, a decline of 36.9 per cent in the three-year period.

Total farm value of Virginia agricultural crops for 1931 was $78,263,000, as contrasted with $84,620,000 in 1930 and $145,383,000 in 1929, a recession of 46.2 per cent.

Electric Consumers Increase.

Dealing with the total number of consumers of electricity in Maryland and the District of Columbia last year, the bulletin lists 457,296, a gain of 2.1 per cent over the year and a total of 390,797 domestic consumers, an increase of 2.7 per cent. Virginia had a total of 271,575 customers, an advance of 3 per cent and a total of domestic customers of 229,541, an increase of 3.2 per cent over the preceding year.

The National Coal Association, from incomplete car loading reports from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended February 6, as approximately 7,000,000 net tons.

The report of the Bureau of Mines shows production of 6,383,000 net tons for the week ended January 23, and 6,379,000 for the week ended January 30.

The Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, starting business February 1, 1843, the first company in America to operate on the legal reserve mutual plan of life insurance, has issued its report for the year 1931 and shows notable gains in spite of the general adverse business conditions.

The company's total income for the year was $234,925,900.66, and the total of disbursements was $183,272,515.60, the income exceeding the outgo by $51,653,385.06.

The admitted assets increased $54,089,556. The assets on December 31, 1931, were $1,106,236,049.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS.

New York, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—The P. Lorillard Co., today reported net profits of $4,846,373 for the year ended December 31, compared with $3,614,363 in 1930.

The Public Utility Holding Corporation of America for the six months ended November 30, 1931, reports a net income of $981,626, before losses on sales of securities or write-downs which were charged partly to surplus and partly to reserves.

Akron, Ohio, Feb. 10 (A.P.).—Net loss of $8,815,653 was announced by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. today for the year ending December 31, 1931. The company retained a cash reserve of $19,722,000, however, after transfer of the loss to the surplus account.

The J. G. Brill Co. 1931 statement shows a net loss of $997,666, compared with a loss of $43,726 in 1930.

Directors of the Insull Utility Investment Corporation at a meeting today decided to omit the quarterly dividends of $1.50 on the second preferred, $1.38 on the 5½ per cent preferred and 11½ per cent in stock on the common stocks, all due at this time.

The International Securities Corporation of America has omitted the quarterly dividends of $1.50 on the 6 per cent preferred and $1.62½ on the 6½ per cent preferred stocks, due at this time.

The Eastman Kodak Co. today declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25. The usual extra dividend of 75 cents was omitted.

The Atlantic Securities Co. has taken no action on the 75 cents quarterly preferred dividend, due at this time.

Directors of Great Northern Paper Co. reduced the annual rate on the common stock to $2.40 from $3 by ordering a quarterly payment of 60 cents, payable March 1 to stock of record February 20.

The Motor Wheel Corporation has omitted the 12½-cent quarterly dividend, due at this time. It was announced today.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF THE VALUABLE ELEVEN STORY, BASEMENT AND SUBBASEMENT BRICK AND STONE HOTEL PROPERTY KNOWN AS THE HAMILTON HOTEL LOCATED AT THE NORTHEAST CORNER OF FOURTEENTH AND K STREETS NORTHWEST.

Because of default in the terms and conditions of, and by virtue of a certain deed of trust executed by The Rochester Corporation, a Delaware corporation, dated July 6, 1927, recorded among the land records of the District of Columbia in Liber 5908 at folio 183 et seq., and at the request of the holders of over five-sixths of the holders of the bonds secured thereby, the undersigned substituted trustee, by appointment of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in Equity Cause No 51379, will offer for sale at public auction, in front of the premises, on TUESDAY, THE FIRST DAY OF MARCH, A. D. 1932, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following described land and premises situate in the City of Washington, District of Columbia, and which is described as follows: Lot 19 in the subdivision of John Davidson's subdivision of square 248, as per plat recorded in Liber N. K., folios 67 and 68 of the Records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia. Also lot 60 in the subdivision made by Charlotte M. Bridge, acting by her attorney, Thomas H. Hooker, of subdivision lots 20, 21 and 22 in square 248, as per plat of said subdivision recorded in Liber 28, folio 187, of the Records of the Office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia; together with the improvements consisting of the "Hamilton Hotel," and all furnishings, fittings and fixtures contained therein, as described in said deed of trust.

TERMS OF SALE One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash on or before March 31, 1932, balance in two equal installments payable in one and two years from date of sale, with interest thereon at the rate of 6% per centum per annum from day of sale, said interest payable semiannually, and to be secured by first deed of trust on the property sold; or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. The trustee will receive no bid from anyone offering to bid who shall not at or before the hour of sale, or any adjournment thereof, deposit with said trustee, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, a deposit of $25,000, either in cash or certified check on a local bank or trust company, made or endorsed payable to the undersigned trustee, or in lieu thereof bonds of the par value of $50,000, in form transferable by delivery, secured by said deed of trust, said bonds to have all unpaid coupons attached thereto. The deposit of any unsuccessful bidder will be returned to him immediately after the sale. In case any successful bidder shall fail to complete his purchase by March 31, 1932, in accordance with the said terms of sale, said deposit may be forfeited at the option of the trustee. The trustee reserves the right to reject any and all bids and withdraw the property from sale. Adjustments with respect to taxes, assessments, insurance, rentals, income from operation of property, interest and all other adjustments shall be made as of the date of sale. The trustee, however, will continue to manage and operate said property, and collect the income therefrom from date of sale to date of transfer upon existing terms as set forth in said deed of trust. After settlement at sale said trustee will not be responsible for any bills nor expenses incurred in the management or operation of said property. Terms of sale to be complied with by March 31, 1932, otherwise the trustee reserves the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser, upon the foregoing terms, after advertisement of such resale to be published three times per week for two successive weeks in two newspapers published in Washington, D. THE old Crutchett home at North Capitol and C streets, about 1850, is shown above. This stood on the grounds that are now being improved for the parkway between the Capitol and the Union Station.

In 1845, James Crutchett came to this city and took up a residence in the house lately occupied by the National Herb Co. and the Kretol Co., just north of old No. 1 Truck house, and lived there for a number of years. He later bought much of the property in that section and subsequently moved to the above pictured house. This old place was later occupied by N. M. McGregor, a dealer in furniture, and a Mrs. Murray, who ran a boarding house there.

Mr. Crutchett was an ex-purser of the English navy and always wore more or less of its uniform, especially the deep-visored cap. He was reputed to have been very wealthy, but met with reverses before his death.

The house at one time was considered one of the finest in Washington and it is said that it is the first residence in the city in which illuminating gas was used. The ladies walking sedately up the street are certainly dressed fit to kill, and even in those days the men had to look the girls over as they passed, as can be seen by the group in the left side of the picture.

PEDESTRIAN KILLED, FOUR CHILDREN HURT IN TRAFFIC MISHAPS

HOSPITAL TREATMENT FAILS TO SAVE VICTIM

Severe Head Injuries Are Suffered by Boys Struck by Vehicles.

A man was killed and four children were injured yesterday when they were knocked down by motor vehicles in various parts of the city. Albert P. Williamson, 64 years old, of 5819 Colorado avenue northwest, died of internal injuries two hours after he was struck down a short distance from his home.

Two boys, one 7 and the other 8, suffered severe head injuries. A girl, 6, was badly cut about the foot, and another boy, 8, suffered a fractured foot.

Mr. Williamson was on his way home from his place of employment, where he had not failed to report a single day in 47 years, according to members of his family. He had just descended from a street car at Georgia and Colorado avenues when he was struck by an automobile operated by William A. Parke, jr., 21 years old, of 6326 Sixteenth street northwest.

Native of Washington.

The injured man was taken to Walter Reed Hospital, given emergency treatment and later removed to Emergency Hospital. He died two hours later.

Mr. Williamson was a native of Washington and was a member of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants, the Holy Name Society and the Society of St. Vincent de Paul.

He is survived by his wife and three children, Mrs. Marjorie Noone and Mrs. Eleanor Bicker, of Washington, and James Williamson, of West Orange, N. J.

Wallace Miller, 7, of 1105 South Carolina avenue southeast, is in Casualty Hospital with a possible skull fracture and cuts. Police said he walked into a bus of the Washington Railway Electric Co., at South Carolina avenue and Eleventh street southeast. Earl Figgs, 23 years old, of 1661 Rosedale street northeast, driver of the bus was released in custody of the street car company's legal staff.

Ran From Behind Car.

James Boley, 8, of 2404 Fourteenth street northwest, was struck down, according to police, when he ran from behind a parked truck in the path of another in front of 1405 Florida avenue northwest. The child was taken to Garfield Hospital with a skull fracture and internal injuries. Howard Cunney, colored, 22 years old, of 1749 Oregon street northwest, was released in custody of his attorney.

The girl, Lillian Hanrahan, of 4718 Ninth street, was injured when she ran in front of an automobile operated by Miss Helen S. Baughman, 24 years old, of 4909 Ninth street northwest, at Seventh and Buchanan streets northwest. Miss Baughman took the child to Children's Hospital. She went home after treatment.

Milton Spence, 8 years old, of 110 Fourth street northeast, at play on B street northeast between Third and Fourth streets, ran from between two parked cars into the front of another operated by Mrs. Edith B. Haas, 26 years old of Takoma Park, Md. The boy was kept at Casualty Hospital with a fractured left foot.

Tax on Cats and Parking Fee Is Urged for District

Fred Barnes, of 1321 Otis street northeast, thinks there ought to be a license tax on cats in the District, and that auto parkers should pay a District fee.

He so informed Mrs. Mary T. Norton in a letter to the House District committee yesterday. The cat tax, he wrote, should be made to conform with the prevailing tax on dogs.

Greeks Today Celebrate Feast of St. Haralampos

The Feast of St. Haralampos, annual Greek holiday, will be celebrated here today with Archbishop Athenagoras, of the Greek Orthodox Church of North and South America, officiating at exercises in St. Sophia Church, Eighth and L streets northwest.

Among those who will attend the ceremonies, beginning with high mass at 10 o'clock this morning, will be Haralampos Simopoulos, Minister of Greece to the United States, and his staff; both Greek priests here.

The Rev. John Papanicolaou, pastor of St. Sophia Church and the Rev. Thomas Daniels, of St. Constantine and Helen Church, and the chapters of the Ahepa and Gapa organizations.

Citizens Oppose Commission Bill

Park View Body Objects to Plan for Increase in Powers.

The Park View Citizens Association adopted a resolution opposing a bill before the Senate and House granting additional powers to the District Commissioners at their meeting at the Park View School last night, objecting to the broad extension of jurisdiction added in the bill.

The association also went on record as objecting to the wording of the resolution before Congress regarding the merger of traction lines in the District. They stated that the resolution does not make any provisions for a universal transfer or special rates for school children.

Plans for a community celebration of the bicentennial were discussed at the meeting, and the grounds of the Park View School are to be beautified as a part of this program. A celebration sponsored by the organization in conjunction with the Parent-Teacher Association and the Park View Women's Club is planned.

MASQUE'S LEADING LADY GREETED

MARGARET ANGLIN ARRIVES FOR PLAY

Noted Emotional Actress Is to Begin Rehearsals for Masque "Wakefield."

Margaret Anglin, noted emotional actress, arrived in Washington yesterday to begin rehearsals in the masque "Wakefield" by Percy MacKaye, which will have its premiere at Constitution Hall on February 21. The leading character which Miss Anglin will portray in the masque, in which nearly 1,000 Washington artists will participate, represents the great maternal folk spirit who welcomes to the fairy realm of "Wakefield," the birthplace of Washington, the folk spirit of America and of the world, in tribute to the Father of His Country.

During her illustrious stage career, Miss Anglin was leading woman with Richard Mansfield and starred under management of the late Henry Miller. Under Mansfield she appeared in William Vaughan Moody's "The Great Divide," and in Oscar Wilde's "Lady Windemere's Fan" and "A Woman of No Importance."

Miss Anglin also has produced the Greek plays "Antigone," "Electra," "Medea" and others in the open-air theaters at St. Louis, Providence and in the Metropolitan Opera House and Carnegie Hall in New York. Once she took her own company to Australia on a tour.

The masque, "Wakefield," under direction of Henry Wadsworth Moore, celebrated painter and creator o fantastic masks, is experiencing some difficulty in the proce s of erecting stage scenery without breaking a steadfast rule which prevents the driving of nails in the hall's interior.

This rule, limited funds and the lack of a proscenium arch in the stage's original architecture, is giving Mr. Moore and his staff a great deal of concern in their effort to erect the specially designed and executed set of scenery necessary for the proper background and atmosphere of the miracle play within the allotted time.

Mr. Moore has created a mask for each of the allegorical characters in the play.

Woman Here Wins Big Grocery Prize

Mrs. F. C. Fishback One of First 20 in Contest of Piggly Wiggly.

The award of $500 worth of groceries will be presented to Mrs. Fishback for her outstanding letter, submitted on the contesting subject: "Why I like to buy my groceries in a Piggly-Wiggly store." The letter was selected as one of the first 20 out of 96,000 submitted.

In addition to Mrs. Fishback, five other Washingtonians also received prizes. They include H. R. Carson, jr., 2221 New York avenue; Mrs. Elizabeth R. Crosby, 647 Lexington place northeast; Mrs. Bertha B. Griffin, 1954 Calvert street northwest; Mrs. E. G. MacLeod, 1347 Girard street northwest, and Mrs. Eldridge Mowery, 2032 Belmont road northwest.

Mall Trolley Claims Bill Delayed by House Body

The House District committee yesterday for the third successive week "passed over" the bill to settle claims of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway growing out of destruction of its tracks in the Mall triangle.

The House committee yesterday voted to report favorably the bill naming the northern entrance to Sixteenth street, Montgomery Blair Portal." A similar bill has passed the Senate.

3 Held for Jury in Lunchroom Theft.

Three men, charged with taking away most of the furnishings of a lunchroom when they vacated a place at 913 Fourth street northwest they had been renting, yesterday were ordered held for grand jury action under $500 bond. They are Alexander Pappas and William and Prodromos Jimroglou.

DELAY IN HOSPITAL PLANNING IS DENIED

City Head to Tell Capper of Tuberculosis Sanitarium Problems.

Senator Arthur Capper, chairman of the Senate District committee, yesterday called upon the District Commissioners for a report of the progress on plans for the Children's Tuberculosis Sanitarium and asked if in their opinion there has been undue delay in preparing for the construction.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the board, said Senator Capper will be told that there has been no undue delay and that District Engineer Department officials hope to advertise for bids on the project by the latter part of April. The municipal architect's office is working overtime, according to S. B. Walsh, assistant, to complete the plans by April 15.

"Preliminary investigation preparatory to the actual drafting of these plans has naturally taken a long time," Dr. Reichelderfer said, "chiefly because of the wide differences of opinion on what such a sanitarium should be like. There are so few of them in existence just now that no standard of construction has been generally agreed upon.

"Moreover, the smallness of the appropriation has forced us to pare down considerably even after a general design was decided upon. Even after the special committee of physicians and engineers has approved plans for the nurses' home and bids had been accepted, it was found that the lowest estimate exceeded the allotment by some $20,000.

"We believe, however, after some modifications are made and bids are called for on the entire project we will be able to reduce the cost of building the nurses' home."

Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, president of the Washington Tuberculosis Association, issued a statement day before yesterday criticizing the Commissioners for the delay in getting the sanitarium under construction following a meeting of the special advisory committee of which she is a member.

Michigan Park Citizens Plan Historic Markers

Markers for the roads in upper Northeast sections over which George Washington is known to have crossed were discussed last night at the meeting of the Michigan Park Citizens' Association, at 3912 Twelfth street northeast, in a program of preparedness for the bicentennial celebration.

Plans outlining work for the second year of the organization's activities were suggested to the members by the president, George L. Gee. The association planned a lawn and garden contest and flag displays on the days designated by the Bicentennial Commission.

BROOKHART PLEDGES SUPPORT IN SCHOOL FIGHT FOR STADIUM

27 CIVIC ORGANIZATIONS INDORSE DRIVE FOR FUND

Members of Business High Group Urged to Press Claims in Congress.

Declaring himself in favor of all new appropriations for improvement of the public schools, Senator Smith W. Brookhart (Progressive Republican), of Iowa, assured the Parent-Teacher Association of Business High School last night that it could depend on him to support its fight to obtain an appropriation for construction of a stadium at the new Roosevelt High School, which will replace Business.

Edward R. Williams, president of the association, who is leading the fight to have the appropriation included in the District appropriation bill, announced that he has obtained indorsements of 27 civic organizations, members of which will appear at committee hearings to urge that the necessary money be given for immediate building of the stadium.

Included in First Estimates.

An appropriation of $225,000 for the stadium was included in the school estimates by the Board of Education. It was eliminated by the District Commissioners in their effort to economize. The Bureau of the Budget inserted an item of $119,000 for seeding and grading of grounds. The parent-teacher association is now seeking an additional $105,200 to bring the appropriation up to the original $225,000 so that the stadium may be built.

Mr. Williams read a letter from Representative Clarence Cannon, chairman of the House District appropriation committee, in which he said he will be glad to hear arguments from the delegation favoring the stadium. Mr. Williams urged as many members of the association as possible to attend the hearings.

Praises School System.

Senator Brookhart, who was the principal speaker at the meeting, also spoke in favor of expansion of the vocational school system. He declared that no limitation should be placed on public school appropriations "because the public school system is the best thing we have in the country." The large corporations should be heavily taxed, and the money spent for new schools, he said.

The association was entertained with talking pictures, presented by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

Foxhall Village Citizens Admit 20 as Members

Twenty persons were admitted to membership at a meeting of the Foxhall Village Citizens Association last night in the St. Patrick's Chapel Parish Hall.

Regular procedure of business was put to one side and the gathering was entertained by a musical program given by the Telephone Company Male Chorus. Solo songs were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Smith. Mrs. Margaret Morgan Harry accompanied all the singers on the piano.

Suit Asks U. S. Payment Of Furniture Vouchers

A suit to compel J. Raymond McCarl, Comptroller General of the United States, to honor vouchers of the W. D. Campbell Co. for furniture furnished to the Government was instituted in District Supreme Court yesterday by Arthur J. Phelan, of the office of Frank J. Hogan.

The suit complains that the Campbell company was awarded the contract for the Government furniture by court action and that the disbursing officer of the Treasury Department had refused to make payment following a ruling by the Comptroller General. McCarl has ruled that the Campbell contract was illegal in that it was not the lowest bid submitted.

American U. Citizens Indorse Firearms Bill

The pending bill in Congress to limit the sale of firearms in the District was indorsed by the American University Citizens Association last night at a meeting held at the university.

The association opposed the bill to broaden the powers of the District Commissioners.

Triple Crash Causes Hour's Traffic Snarl

Street cars on the Chevy Chase line of the Capital Traction Co. were tied up for more than an hour at 5:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon near the Calvert street bridge while workmen jacked up one of the cars to pry away a sedan which had become tangled in the wreckage of a triple crash. The driver of the sedan was slightly injured, but refused hospital treatment.

The accident happened as a heavy truck, operated by James F. Gilbert, colored, 20 years old, of 12 P street northeast, making a left turn from Woodley place into Calvert street northwest, crashed into the sedan, operated by Ottamar Hamele, 50 years old, of 3504 Thirty-sixth street northwest.

The impact of the collision threw the sedan into the street car, going west on Calvert street. Both east and west bound tracks of the street car company were tied up by the wreckage. It was necessary to call wrecking crews to jack up the street car before the line was cleared.

Homegoing traffic in that area was tied up for more than an hour while the work went on.

POLICE DISARM MAN WHO MENACED TRIO

He Wounds Self Before Being Taken After Woman and 2 Others Escape.

Two policemen yesterday disarmed a man who had fired four shots at a woman and two men in an apartment at 1106 L street northwest and then wounded himself in the shoulder. The man snapped his pistol three times at the policemen, but the gun misfired, they said.

The man, Irving Armiger, of 1503 South Carroll street, Baltimore, came to the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. James Howe late yesterday afternoon, police were told. He asked for his wife, and when he was told that she was not there, pulled out a .22-caliber pistol and started shooting, according to police.

He fired four times at the Howes and John Vetter, also of Baltimore, witnesses said. All of the bullets missed their mark. The trio fled to the street and called police.

In the meantime, Armiger turned the gun on himself, inflicting a superficial wound in the shoulder.

When Privates E. K. O'Brien and D. A. Davis, of the Second Precinct, entered the apartment, the man backed into a corner and pulled the trigger of the pistol three times, but it failed to fire. They disarmed him and took him to Emergency Hospital. He was later transferred to Gallinger Hospital.

Fox Makes Home At Lincoln Shrine

Reynard's Den Is Found Near Memorial; To Be Undisturbed.

Discovery of a fox's den near the Lincoln Memorial was made several days ago by Interstate Commerce Commissioner Balthasar Meyer and, although the animal probably belongs in Rock Creek Park, officials have decided to allow him to occupy his chosen downtown home.

Commissioner Meyer and his son take daily early morning walks around the Memorial and early in the week saw the fox returning to his den in a dead tree. They left food for him which proved entirely acceptable, for soon after their departure the fox took the offering into his home.

Now several of the dead trees, such as the one in which the fox has taken up residence, are to be moved, but officials of the public buildings and public parks have promised that they will do everything possible to preserve the animal's home. There are numerous foxes in Rock Creek Park and evidently this one wandered from his old home there.

Relief Need Rises; Chest Still Short

Associated Charities Estimates February Aid Will Be Double.

While loyal bands of Community Chest workers continued their quest for additional gifts yesterday, the acute need for every possible dollar was made more apparent by a report from the Associated Charities, largest of the Community Chest's welfare organizations, which showed an increase of 63 per cent in aid given during January over that given in the same month last year and estimated that February's needs would reach 100 per cent or more over the relief needs of the same month last year.

Final figures submitted by James A Councilor, chairman of the audit unit, showed total contributions reported to yesterday morning as $2,409,086.84, more than $900 less than the informal figures announced at Tuesday's meeting. To this was added $565 in gifts left at Chest headquarters yesterday, bringing the total up to $2,409,651.84 and leaving the Chest still $191,348.16 short of its goal of $2,601,000.

Officer's Rooms Looted Of Coats Worth $3,200

Col. Clyde Eastman, U. S. A., living at the Shoreham Hotel, reported last night his apartment had been entered and two women's coats, valued at $2,200 and $1,000, had been stolen.

Police of the Eighth Precinct, who responded to a call from the hotel, were unable to learn how the thief entered the apartment.

WILSON'S STUDENTS WILL HOLD CLASSES IN COLUMBIA SCHOOL

CRANE DECRIES REPORTS ON DANGER OF COLLAPSE

Head of Structural Division Says Underpinning Would Cost $75,000.

Steps toward transferring Wilson Teachers College, at Eleventh and Harvard street northwest, to the Columbia School, at Seventh and O streets northwest, because of the unsafe condition of the former, will begin immediately, it was decided yesterday at a special meeting of the Board of Education. The meeting was called after the building had been condemned as dangerous because of a defective front wall.

The 300 students at college will report at their new headquarters this morning, and they will then be dismissed until Monday. Meanwhile, plans will be rushed to accommodate the pupils at Columbia. The Wilson office staff will occupy the new headquarters at once and all necessary repair work will get underway.

The Columbia School was the original Central High School. It was a junior high school until last September when it was taken over entirely by the Abbott Vocational School. The vocational school does not occupy the entire building, and sufficient space is left on the upper floor for the teacher college students, the board was assured yesterday by Assistant Superintendent of Schools Stephen E. Kramer.

Will Ask for Priority.

The finance committee of the board was authorized to estimate the cost of the transfer and repair work, with power to act, with understanding the cost does not exceed a reasonable amount.

The board will ask the District Commissioners to give the teacher college situation priority over all other school matters.

Jere J. Crane, in charge of business affairs, told the board that the north exterior wall which has been condemned as unsafe, can be repaired through underpinning. That the building is in danger of collapsing is an overestimation, Mr. Crane said.

Mr. Crane recommended that the heating plant of the teachers college, which also furnishes heat for Ross School nearby, continues to operate.

Thorough Probe to Be Made.

Maj. D. A. Davison, acting engineer commissioner, said yesterday a thorough inspection will be made at once to determine if District engineers believe the college building is worth rehabilitating. If the investigation reveals that the building can be rehabilitated, it appears likely that a congressional appropriation will be asked.

Inspectors under Col. John W. Oehman, building inspector, believe the entire Harvard street side of the building may have to be torn down and rebuilt from the piles up if the structure is saved. Because the foundation was placed on the bed of a dried up stream, the piles have gradually sunk and thus caused the floors and ceilings to crack, it was pointed out.

The sagging condition of the front wall of the building was brought to the attention of Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou last Thursday morning through a communication from S. B. Walsh, assistant municipal architect, and a report from Harold H. Marsh, chief of the structural division in the municipal architect office, in which it was recommended that the building be gradually vacated over a period of three weeks.

Would Cost $75,000.

"To underpin the building," Mr. Marsh said in his report, "would cost $75,000. It is doubtful whether the expenditure of such a sum would be justifiable."

Upon receipt of the report an investigation was begun by members of the District Engineer's office and school officials. The conclusion was reached that the report was "unduly alarming."

Yesterday morning Mr. Crane notified Superintendent Ballou of the findings. Dr. Ballou later communicated with Dr. Abram Simon, president of the Board of Education, and the calling of the emergency meeting was decided upon.

Two other schools have been involved in structural difficulties this year, the Kenilworth and the Hugh M. Browne Junior High. The Kenilworth School was abandoned because of cracks in the front walls. The foundation of the Browne, a new building, is being examined before it is accepted by the Commissioners.

Plans Being Drawn For Heating Plants

Central Furnace for White House and Other Buildings Seems Assured.

Construction of a central heating plant for the White House, State, War and Navy Building and any new Government structures that may rise in the area of Twenty-first street and New York avenue seemed assured yesterday when Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks, announced that he had made arrangements for the drawing of plans.

The project has been under consideration for some time and it is believed that Col. Grant's announcement means that Government officials have decided on the location of the new War and Navy Department buildings which would be heated by the central system.

Tentative plans call for the construction of the building at a cost of $750,000 and to be located between Twentieth and Twenty-first streets, New York and Virginia avenues.

Central Business Men's Banquet.

The Central Business Men's Association will give a dinner tonight at the Burlington Hotel to celebrate attaining a membership of 150. Among the speakers will be Senator William Bulow, of South Dakota, and George W. Offutt, president of the Washington Board of Trade.

Elks Lodge in Washington Celebrating Fiftieth Anniversary of Foundation

From Small Band in 1882 Has Grown Close to 2,000 Members.

The Golden Jubilee of the institution in Washington of Lodge, No. 15, of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks will be celebrated today and tomorrow.

From the little band of men that gathered in McMenamin's Hall, at Thirteen-and-a-half and E streets, 50 years ago, the lodge has increased so that now it has close to 2,000 members, the charitable work of whom has left its imprint on the civic and social life of the Capital.

One of the guiding spirits in the institution of the Elks in the Capital was John T. Warde, who has left to the lodge valuable historical documents dealing with the early days of the lodge. In a communication several years ago to Michael G. McCormick, one of the two surviving charter members, Mr. Warde said:

"The undersigned (Warde) as local correspondent of the New York Dramatic News—the leading theatrical newspaper—in conversation with Jake Budd (Jacob Budd Zebley) and Dennis A. O'Neill, of the Theater Comique, relative to the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, ascertained that both were members of Baltimore Lodge, No. 7. The question arose—why not a lodge in Washington?

Proposed in Lodge.

"I found out that it took three full-fledged resident members to start the ball rolling to make application for that purpose. With that object in view, I was proposed as a member in Baltimore Lodge, was elected and initiated. A movement was placed on foot for the establishment of a local lodge here."

Apparently the work of organizing Washington Lodge had been in progress for more than a year before their efforts were finally successful. As early as June 15, 1881, there was a letter addressed to Brother Warde from Allison M. Mills, an official of Baltimore Lodge, in which Mills said: "I have been making diligent inquiries as to the process of starting your lodge and hasten to give you the result of my investigations.

"In the first place, an application for a dispensation to start a lodge must be presented to the exalted grand ruler (now called the exalted ruler), signed by at least three residents of Washington * * *." Brother Mills then instructed Brother Warde regarding the necessary paraphernalia for ritualistic work.

Planned for January 1, 1882.

The aim of the organizers seems to have been to institute the lodge on January 1, 1882. They were disappointed, however, for on December 24, 1881, Brother Warde received a letter from Deputy Exalted Grand Ruler at Large Frank Girard, saying: "I do not think that you can be ready to organize on the date mentioned (January 1). * * * At the meeting of the Grand Lodge last Sunday week the ritual, having been revised, was adopted as revised. Consequently, the work has to be rewritten. It is now in the hands of the proper committee, resident here, and they are going right ahead with it, and I am hurrying them, as I am anxious to proceed to Washington for the purpose of instituting the new lodge there."

Again, on December 28, 1881, Deputy Exalted Grand Ruler at Large Girard directed the following letter to Brother Warde: "I am pleased to think that matters are progressing so favorably toward the organization of a lodge of Elks in your city. Your preliminary meeting held for the purpose as stated was entirely legal and only tends to show the spirit with which you are inspired, and I sincerely hope that when organized your lodge may prove worthy of your actions and prove a complete success.

Hurry Up Requested.

"I have forwarded to Brother Garrett, exalted grand ruler, your application for a dispensation, also a blank dispensation for him to fill out, together with a request to hurry up matters in order that I may proceed to Washington at once. * * * Hoping that none of the brothers will lose interest on account of this little delay. * * *"

Then the decision was made to hold the institution of the lodge on February 12. On January 30, 1882, Brother Warde received the encouraging letter from Deputy Exalted Grand Ruler Girard, which said:

"Everything is now prepared for the organization of Washington Lodge, No. 15. The dispensation has been granted. All that is required now is for you to send a list of the names of the brothers making application for said dispensation in order that they may be filled in.

Worked Like Turks.

"The lodge will be called at 10 o'clock a. m. on Sunday February 12. * * * I will fill all the chairs from the New York lodge, excepting secretary, which I will suggest for yourself. It will be necessary to open the lodge at 10 a. m. as the work is long and we are anxious to get through in time to have an hour or two to spare as we shall have to take the 10:15 p. m. train back."

The deputy exalted grand ruler closed his letter with an admonition to the organizers: "Be careful of your selections," of members.

Again referring back to Brother Warde's note of the early days of the lodge, he says:

"We met; held our meeting; worked like Turks; explaining the objects both fraternally and socially, and met with ready response with a charter membership of 41, good and true.

"After getting things in proper shape we made application for a charter which was granted and the institution took place in McMenamin's Hall. * * * There was quite a delegation from sister lodges in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, with representatives from other lodges. * * * Our lodge was the last (under dispensation) to gain for the first set of officers membership in the grand body—for from then on, no one but the exalted ruler-elect was eligible for that honor.

"This was a new law made to reduce the growing membership in the Grand Lodge. I made out the list of the officers-elect and they were with due ceremony inducted into the several chairs, concluding the day's ceremonies with a banquet at the Metropolitan Hotel. 'Some day, I'll tell the world.'"

Officers Are Inducted.

The institutional work was conducted on that day by Deputy Exalted Grand Ruler Girard, who inducted the following officers: Exalted Ruler, Justus H. Rathbone; esteemed leading knight, John T. Warde; esteemed lecturing knight, Daniel E. Cahill; esteemed loyal knight, Jake Budd; William A. Anderson, secretary; Frank K. Ward, treasurer; Frank Cardella, tyler and William Dickson, Charles W. Leonarda and Joseph E. Rawlins, trustees.

The following appointive officers were chosen: William D. Mack, esquire; Henry J. Ennis, inner guard; William A. West, chaplain; W. E Shafer, organist.

Those who are generally accredited with the formation of the Washington Lodge are: Brothers Rathbone, Zebley (Jake Budd) Warde, O'Neill and Aaron Shafeor. Of this group, Rathbone is famous because he is the originator of the Knights of Pythias, which was founded at the Herndon House, an old building which stood on the site now occupied by the Washington Loan and Trust Co.

At the time of the formation of the Elks Lodge, Brother Rathbone was a clerk in the Surgeon General's office. His father was a jurist and he was a descendant of Jonathan Edwards, famous Presbyterian divine.

Warde was an engraver, employed at the Galt & Bro. jewelry store at 1107 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Zebley, better known by his stage name of Jake Budd, was an actor and also manager of the Theater Comique. O'Neill was a clerk.

Charter Members.

In addition to Brother Michael J. McCormick, the only surviving charter member of the Washington Lodge is George W. Harrison. The other charter members were: Benjamin B. Whitney, Louis B. Smith, Montague

M. J. McCormick and G. H. Harrison Sole Surviving Charter Members.

D. Jacobs, William B. Crowley, William S. Buchly, B. Constantino, Francis H. Finley, Joseph Y. Potts, William A. Anderson, Joseph Darr, C. W. Leonarda, R. F. Cardella, William O'Neill, Edward Williams, Thomas H. Ridgate, Charles H. Nabbitt, William H. Danvers, Joseph M. Grady, James Drew, Joseph P. Drew, William A. West, Anthony Rodier, Hanse H. Smith, Joseph W. Dent, Thomas J. Trodden, William E. Shafer, Robert J. Walker, A. De Grummond, J. Bradley Adams, William D. Mack, H. J. Ennis, William F. Farish and Whitfield Van Cott.

Soon after the installation of the lodge, it was moved to Moore's Hall, an old-style, three-story brick structure on Ninth street near D street northwest. In those days the weekly meeting was held on a Sunday night because that was the only free night for the actors and stage folk who formed an important part of the membership. In Washington and in all other cities and towns where Elks lodges flourished, the theatrical people were generally regarded as the prominent members.

Moves to New Quarters.

In 1894 the lodge moved its quarters to E street, between Tenth and Eleventh streets northwest, the building having been purchased three years earlier, the expense of which was borne by the lodge's available funds, and the pledge of members. Several years later the growth of the lodge compelled an enlargement of the building and an entire remodeling of its interior.

The prosperity which marked the career of the lodge in its early life, continued to attend it, and on its twenty-first birthday a resolution was unanimously adopted setting aside money for the purchase of a site for the erection of a new building. Ground was broken in the the latter part of November, 1906, based on plans made by Brother B. Stanley Simmons, of Washington Lodge, the designer of the present Elks Home, at 919 H street northwest.

On the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the lodge, a banquet, attended by 400, was held at the Masonic Temple. Brother Robert E. Mattingly, now a District Municipal Court judge, was then exalted ruler. A judge of the Superior Court of California, Henry A. Melvin, was the guest of honor.

Judge Melvin came with a message of thanks to the lodge for its participation in the charitable work of the

Managing Editor, The Washington Post,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:

On February 11th, 1932, the membership of Washington, D.C. Lodge No. 15, of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its founding.

The half century of accomplishment on the part of Washington Lodge, and the continuous exemplification during the fifty year period of the principles of Charity, Justice, Brotherly Love and Fidelity on the part of its membership are matters of pride to the 750,000 members of our Order in the Nation.

This Golden Anniversary concretely evidences that there is a place in American life for an organization of men who believe in the glorification of American citizenship, and community of purpose regardless of creed.

May I take this opportunity to extend my congratulations to the officers and members of Washington Lodge upon five decades of successful fraternal attainment, and to wish for them continued growth and prosperity.

May I say to the readers of "The Washington Post" that the members of Washington, D.C. Lodge are as one with the Elks of the Nation in the thought and belief that our country is grand and great beyond the power of words to describe, and that it will continue to prosper-to progress-to carry on-to ever greater heights of glory and achievement.

Sincerely and fraternally yours,

JRC-pl

GRAND EXALTED RULER.

DETWEILER TELLS VIRTUES OF ORDER

Gives Exposition on Charity, Justice, Brotherly Love and Fidelity.

Perhaps the best exposition of the cardinal virtues of the Order of Elks was given by Meade D. Detweiler, one of the greatest minds the order has ever known. This is what he said of the order's cardinal virtues:

"Charity—Let ours be the broad charity of love and help to all God's creatures—the charity that will lift up the lowly and champion the cause of the downtrodden and oppressed; a charity bounded by no narrow lines of prejudice, no hereditary transmission of bigotry, from ignorance begotten of old-time feuds.

"Let ours be the charity that thinketh no ill, that believeth not the tale that compasses a brother's hurt—a charity possessed of patient endurance that is Godlike—a charity that, recognizing the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God, aims to raise all mankind to higher and nobler models and loftier aspirations—a charity that throws the mantle of forgiveness over the foibles of others—that, realizing that man is his brother's keeper, seeks to make every act of life a benediction of joy to some voyager on life's ocean, which shall undulate the ever-widening wavelets of influence upon the shores of eternity.

Preserved by Justice.

"Justice—The fundamental principles of security and integrity in society, that, without which, all good things in thought or action, all progressive developments, all achievements of art and science, or morality, and belles lettres, or statesmanship and social consolidation, would disappear in the wild convulsions of an elemental chaos. Let ours, my brethren, be the justice that can say: 'Fiat justitia ruat ocelum.' For by justice nations are preserved, and by justice kingdoms or individuals alike eventually fall beneath the iron heel of retribution. Justice never fails.

"Brotherly Love—There is no diviner words of apostle, evengelist or seer that the simple utterance, 'Let brotherly love continue.' And yet, simple as it is, sublimity breathes from every word and irridiates each letter. The schools of philosophy, from Socrates to Emerson, have never produced a more sententious expression to inculcate the great fundamental distrines underlying the laws of life and being. With brotherly love this world would become an Eden, and generous garlands of perfumed flowers crown every milestone on the weary march of life. Without it, earth becomes a Sahara of woe, marked at every step amid the shifting sands with phantom forms and ghastly, grinning skeletons of blighted hopes.

Fidelity Pointed Out.

"Fidelity—Only he who is faithful to death shall wear the crown. It is not enough, for a time, to exercise a charity boundless as the great ocean. It is not enough, for a time, to hold the scales with a poise so equal that the different sides vary but a hair's breadth. It is not enough, for a time, to write each foible in the sand in front of the tide rapidly advancing to its obligation, whilst every virtue has been deeply graven on column of adamant. It is necessary that charity and justice and brotherly love continue to their full tide of glory—that the devotion to duty end only with life. Let us, my brethren, add to charity, justice; add to justice, brotherly love; whilst we cement the whole harmonious edifice with fidelity—that virtue effulgent, which is guard alike to the honor and fame of both prince and peasant."

ELKS CELEBRATE FIFTIETH YEAR

Corner Stone Is Laid.

In 1907 the corner stone of the present Elks Home was laid by Exalted Ruler Hugh F. Harvey. The oration was delivered by former Senator George L. Wellington, of Maryland, a member of Cumberland, Md., lodge. The members assembled at the old home on E street, and marched to the present site.

The corner stone committee was composed of Maj. Richard A. O'Brien, Michael G. McCormick, Robert M. McWade, Lorenzo A. Bailey, Charles H. Utermehle, R. T. Moran, A. D Marks, Frank B. Clarkson, Edward J. Murphy, Edward H. Neumeyer and John D. Maxwell. A few months later the building was opened with the installation of Exalted Ruler Ernest W. Emery.

During the World War, the Washington Lodge performed signal service for the country. It not only contributed money from its treasury, but it turned over its building to the Government which was used to house a department of the War Risk Insurance Bureau, and the lodge moved to quarters at 933 D street northwest.

As to its works of charity during its 50 years in the Capital, the Washington Lodge of Elks says nothing. Its beneficences are graven in the hearts of those it has helped, the crippled children, the indigent, the unemployed, the aged and the sick.

That is the creed of Elkdom, unostentatious charity.

Granddaddy of Elks' Lodge Hale, Hearty in 78th Year

M. G. McCORMICK,
one of two surviving charter members of Washington Lodge of Elks, who has been prominent in many of its activities.

Michael G. McCormick One of Two Surviving Charter Members.

To write the life of Michael G. McCormick, "the granddaddy of all Washington Elks" and one of the two surviving charter members, would be to write the history of Washington Elkdom—for his life is the epitome of the inception and growth of the order in the Nation's Capital.

In vain the interviewer sought to isolate the personality of the Elks' "granddad." But so firmly interwoven are the tenets of Elkdom with his life that the attempt was abandoned.

Not only is the order's influence evident in his conversation, but it is also apparent in his life—in his dealings with other men. In his reading room at his home, 1929 Biltmore street, the walls are hung with elks' antlers, pictures of the symbol of the order, and honors which have been conferred upon him during his 50 years' membership.

There might have been a success story woven about him—for he came to this country as an Irish immigrant boy and in later years rose to the presidency of one of the large banks in the Nation's Capital.

Maintains Office Downtown.

Though he retired from active business in 1915, he still maintains an office downtown, where he comes every day and spends a few hours "to read and smoke." He still keeps a sign above the office door, but that is there, he will tell you, "just for sentiment."

The office is hung with antlers and on each end of the room a picture of an elk stands sentinel. The walls are covered with pictures of Elks' outings, conventions and charity functions, and he can tell you the history of each picture.

The old-fashioned roll-top desk is crammed with data on the history of the Washington lodge. Old, faded clippings of more than a half century ago are carefully preserved in scrap books. Ask him any question on Elks' history and he has it for you in a second. Seldom does he have to consult his data.

Day by day he thumbs through the time-worn books, poring over the events of yesteryear and holding solitary communion with his "absent brothers." All but one of the charter members who instituted the lodge with Mr. McCormick have gone to the Grand Lodge of the Hereafter.

Just as charity is the corner stone of Elkdom, so is charity—unostentatious charity—the dominating sentiment in his life. To him charity means more than aiding the widow, the orphan and the indigent brother; it means the faith that those who fall may reform.

"I love the order," he says, "because it does so much good in such a quiet way."

Silent on Charities.

Never will he tell you the identity of a recipient of his charity, for that he believes, destroys the good that has been done. In narrating the stories of his brothers of bygone years, if he should mention the name of one upon whom the hand of ill fortune had rested heavily, he will qualify the name with "the poor fellow."

With him, life is real, is earnest, a God-given heritage, which he means to enjoy while he may, and in so doing to assist others in the fulfillment of life's happiness. To him life was given to live, laugh and love, for there is a time to come, he says, when it will cease.

But if you inquire just what the nature is of all the official Elk documents that are hung in his office and reading room, he will say: "Shush, now, don't say anything about those." But you may learn from others that they are honors conferred upon him by the order in appreciation of his work.

One of them, the reporter observed, read something like this: "Appreciating the exceptional service he has rendered, Brother McCormick has merited and won the undying esteem and gratitude of Washington Lodge No. 15."

Makes Lodge Independent.

Another one contains a paragraph which reads: "Because of his wise counsel and devotion to duty and the lodge's best interest, it has flourished and attained an independent financial position."

Reference to the records of the Elks as fas back as 1883 will show that "Michael G. McCormick was given a gold badge for selling the greatest number of tickets for a charity benefit."

Then in 1895, the lodge was pressed for funds, so he organized a club of 15 members who paid $100 each for a life membership. So it has been down through the years. He guarded the purse strings of the lodge, during 32 years as its treasurer, as zealously as he would have guarded his personal affairs. From 1890 to 1894, and from 1902 to 1930, he served as treasurer.

"I was always a strenuous objector to extravagance and always watched the pennies," he said. And that is the reason that the lodge today owes nothing. Every important decision that confronted the lodge was guided by his business sagacity. He was on the committee that selected the site of the old clubroom site at 1006 E street, and his commercial wisdom and personal generosity made possible the present quarters of the lodge.

Born in Ireland.

Michael G. McCormick was born 78 years ago in the County Roscommon in Ireland. Well does he remember the day that he landed at Castle Garden, and the opportunities of a new nation were opened to him. His family settled in Manchester, N. H. As a youngster he ran away from home and stayed in New York for a short while. The lure of the big city soon lost its hold upon him and the repentant lad found his way back to the family hearthside.

In 1872 he came to Washington, where he was employed by the St. James Hotel. Seven years later he opened a billiard parlor on Sixth street just north of Pennsylvania avenue. It was while he conducted this establishment that he took part in the formation of the Washington Lodge in 1882.

He retired from the business in 1894 and went back to his ancestral home in Ireland. About this time, he says: "I near went crazy, loafing around for six weeks." Upon his return he again became engaged in business and from 1907 to 1909 he was vice president of a large bank and in 1910 and 1911, he served as president. He then entered the brokerage business.

Likes to Go Back Home.

Unlike most men, he prefers not to discuss his personal successes. "I like to talk about the good old days when I was a lad," he says, "when I used to sell papers about the streets of Manchester, N. H. I sold the Manchester Mirror and the Manchester Union."

The greatest moments of his life are when he gets back to his old home town in New Hampshire and talks with a few of his old boyhood friends. To him it is like a rebirth, and "the older I become," he says, with a glistening twinkle in his eye, "the more attached to them I am."

One of the happiest days in his life was two years ago, when he held a gathering of the McCormicks in his home.

There is only one sentiment that rivals his affection for the order, and that is the love for his family ties.

Each year, as Memorial Day approaches, Mr. McCormick prepares for a journey. Though 78 years old, he travels to his old home in Manchester. Just a few of those he holds dear are still alive.

On Memorial Day, in the time-worn and weather-beaten St. Joseph's churchyard, a gray-haired man kneels in reverence at the graves of his loved ones in the old family plot.

To him it is the fulfillment of his idea of one of the cardinal principles of the order—fidelity—a fidelity that extends beyond the grave.

Or perhaps it may mean to him the fulfillment of the lesson imparted by the flower that symbolizes the order—

The forget-me-not.

FOUNDER OF ELKS BURIED AT BOSTON

Charles Vivian, Who Died in 1880, Scored Success as Versatile Actor.

A little mound of earth in Elk's Rest, Mount Hope Cemetery, Boston, is one of the shrines of Elkdom, for under a simple monument are the remains of the founder of Elkdom—Charles A. Vivian.

After leaving New York in 1869, he went to the Pacific Coast, where he became a great favorite, remaining there until 1878, when he married Miss Imogene Holbrook, who was doing dramatic recitals there.

They started East and played in several companies and stopped in Winnipeg, Canada. From there he moved to Chicago, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and New York City, and from 1877 to 1878 he played an engagement at the Theater Comique.

Company Plays New England.

He then organized a small company and played the New England towns, but it did not prove a financial success, and the tour was abandoned. Returning to New York City, he was engaged to play the admiral in "Pinafore," which had its premier in Chicago in 1879. He then went to St. Louis, where he played the judge in "Trial by Jury," until the season closed.

Then he signed with another opera company, which went West and was stranded in Denver. A benefit performance was conducted, and the entire company went East with the exception of Mr. Vivian and his wife, who remained in Denver a short time and then went to Leadville.

The gold excitement was at its height in Leadville. He fixed up an old amphitheater and organized a company and began playing legitimate drama. Their first presentation was "Oliver Twist," with Vivian doing the Artful Dodger and his wife, Oliver.

Play Fails to Please.

This type of entertainment did not appeal to the rough element in the gold camp, and the project was soon abandoned. He contracted a severe cold and died in Leadville on March 20, 1880, at the age of 34.

Because of Vivian's great popularity a large throng attended the funeral. A light express buggy was the hearse. The "Forty-Niners," a fraternal organization of which Vivian was a member, conducted the funeral services.

Vivian's grave was unmarked except for some rude scratchings on a pine board. An old minstrel and an Elk, who was attending a funeral at the same cemetery two years later, saw Vivian's grave. On his return East he told of Vivian's burial place. His story was related to Boston Lodge and a fund was created to have his remains exhumed and brought to Boston for burial in Elks' Rest, where they now repose.

A dramatic critic of his day referred to Vivian as "a story teller without equal, a wit and a songster. His fund of anecdotes was rich and inexhaustible, as his power of repartee was strong. Nothing but his inborn carelessness and his preference for the club circle over his professional duties barred him from fortune. With Vivian's last breath went out a life that should have been illustrious."

Elks' Funeral Rite Is Traced to Origin

Order's Service Improvised at Burial of Pinckney, Former Exalted Ruler.

One of the more conspicuous ceremonies of the Elks—the services at the bier of a dead brother—had a very humble as well as a very improvised beginning.

At the funeral of Brother Joseph C. Pinckney, who served as grand exalted ruler from 1873 to 1874, several other fraternal organizations gave their funeral services.

The Elks assembly at the church, with Brother Arthur C. Moreland acting as exalted ruler. When the other orders finished their services, Brother Moreland rapped four times on the back of the pew with a gavel, every Elk in the church stood up and filed around the casket.

Brother Moreland had prompted them to simply respond "It is," when he called upon them to respond to interrogations. Brother Moreland improvised a biblical reading, and the responses were made to his inquiries.

Brother Frank Girard, an excellent vocalist, was there, and Brother Moreland said, "The right hand over the heart, Frank, you start it." They interlinked arms and all sang, "Auld Lang Syne," and filed from the church.

Congratulations were offered on the appropriate ceremonies of the Elks, and those in the know, nonchalantly replied: "It was just the regular service," when, in fact, they had had no regular service up to that time. The passing years have wrought many changes in this ceremony, the beauty of which, is indelibly written in the minds of all who have witnessed it.

Congratulations

Pacificator Edwin B. Hay Ended 2 Big Elk Schisms

Capital Man Third Grand Exalted Ruler of Fraternity; Remarkably Successful in Maintaining Dignity of the Organization.

The "Colossus of Elkdom" was Edwin Barrett Hay, a member of Washington Lodge, No. 15, who nurtured the order and brought about peace within it during the most trying times in its history—the time of the secession of New York Lodge from the Grand Lodge and the occasion of dispute between the grand officers and the grand trustees in 1894.

To him the order is indebted for the selection of the floral emblem of the order which he beautifully described as:

"That blue and bright-eye flower of the brook, Hope's gentle gem, the sweet forget-me-not."

Not only were his efforts directed at peace making, but he also originated the idea of the Elks' National Home for the aged and indigent brothers of the order.

He was initiated as a member of Washington Lodge in 1886. After serving as exalted ruler he was chosen grand exalted ruler in Louisville in 1891, was reelected in Buffalo in 1892 and again in Atlantic City in 1894. His administration saw the return to the fold of the rebellious mother lodge, New York, No. 1, and in his third term he brought peace again when the grand trustees and the former grand exalt ' ruler, Astley Apperly, buried their differences.

He was born in Norfolk, Va., in 1849. When he was 1 year old he moved to Washington. In 1874, he was graduated in law from Columbian College, now George Washington University, and he began the practice of law in the District. He was also a skilled penman and testified in many courts as a handwriting expert in many of the noted cases of his time.

"He was a man whose qualities were exceptional, whose talents were unusual, and whose efforts for upbuilding and maintaining the dignity of the order were always remarkably successful.

"Love came to him in full measure of happiness came to him in the home, in the street, in the courtroom, and in the lodge council * * * When he died in his Washington home on June 11, 1906, 'at the mystic hour of eleven, when the prayers for the absent are said,' men looked at each other in wonder. 'Ned Hay dead—dead?' they stammered * * * They looked at each other in startled awe; all his magnificent strength of mind and body, his fervid imagination, his buoyant sympathy, his exhaustless vitality, his jubilant spirits silenced—blotted out forever—'dead' as our earthword has it?

"They were right, these awe-struck men who could not believe that Ned Hay was dead; who thought, in their happy and loving security, that he could not die. They were right. In the thousands of hearts he helped; Edwin Barrett Hay is not 'dead.'

Much Research Work Done on Photographs

The Washington Post is indebted to Joe Tenschert, 810 F street northwest, for the photographs of exalted rulers of the Washington Lodge of Elks used in today's edition in connection with the fiftieth anniversary celebration of the lodge.

To reproduce all these photographs considerable research work was necessary, and copies were made from the Elks' files in order to procure all the photographs. Mr. Tenschert contributed this service to the successful celebration of the anniversary.

LEACH BECAME ELKS' HEAD IN FIVE YEARS

Capital Doctor Rose Rapidly to Grand Exalted Ruler; Died Here in 1893.

It took Washington Lodge, No. 15, but five years to place in the chair of the grand exalted ruler one of its members, Hamilton E. Leach who ruled the order from 1887 to 1889, in which period the order increased in membership more than 100 per cent.

Brother Leach was born on Eleventh street southwest on February 10, 1851. After being graduated from the city's grammar school he worked for several years in a lime kiln, during which time he saved enough money to work his way through Georgetown Medical College.

He was graduated as a doctor and began the practice of medicine in 1872. He soon attained eminence in his profession, and was especially noted for his surgical operations, performing some of the most difficult, yet successful, operations then known to medical science.

In his younger days he was a member of the Washington Shakespeare Club, and developed considerable dramatic ability. He received several offers to go into the theatrical profession, but declined.

After serving the Washington Lodge for several years he became grand exalted ruler, when the head of the order, Brother English, left the country. In 1888 he made a tour of the country, and the marvelous growth of the order in that year is directly attributable to his efforts. During his regime the memorial service became an established custom, and the "Elks card" or "traveling card," came into being.

In addition to his connection with the Elks he was also a prominent Mason, having taken 32 degrees in that order, and was also a member of the Shriners, the Knights of Pythias and was a surgeon in the Washington Light Infantry Corps. He died after a lingering illness at his residence here on May 11, 1893.

"Hello, Bill!"

By JOHN LEACH,
Lowell (Mass.) Lodge, No. 87.

Did you ever wonder why
When some people chance to meet,
That they smile at one another
And are ready then to greet?

Did you listen to their greeting,
And watch the welcome will,
As they grasp each other's hands
And say, "Hello, Bill?"

Don't you know that that's a welcome
That Charity imparts
To men who are most noble,
And have Justice in their hearts?

Don't you see a Brotherly Love,
With Fidelity at will,
As they grasp each other friendly
When they say, "Hello, Bill?"

Don't such things seem Fraternal,
To the optimistic eye?
Is it not a moral lesson
To be remembered bye and bye?

Ain't it nice to see men friendly,
Without a haughty chill,
As they face each other, manly,
When they say, "Hello, Bill?"

These men are honest brothers—
Real citizens of our land—
Without a creed distinction
Or a party to command.

They are always white and wholesome
With power and fearless will,
As they stand for a Grand Republic
When they say, "Hello, Bill?"

They have also ties and secrets—
They're not the sleepy class,
For they have their social frolics
As through this life they pass.

So when you see them meeting,
And hear that happy trill,
You can bet your bottom dollar
They'll say, "Hello, Bill!"

They are called the B. P. O. E.'s,
An American institution,
That loves its country's honored flag
And her Yankee Constitution.

They worship God, as others do,
And respect St. Peter's will,
So when they pass the Golden Gate,
He'll say, "Hello, Bill!"

'HELLO, BILL' BORN AT REUNION IN 1897

Salutation Was Repeated So Incessantly That It Soon Girdled Globe.

"Hello, Bill!"

Millions of times this cheery salutation has been heard in countless cities of the earth. Yet, its origin was not planned or preconceived. It was given life spontaneously.

At the Elks' reunion in Minneapolis in 1897, most of the visiting brothers who were seeking information were told to see William "Billy" Goddard, the treasurer of the Minneapolis Lodge. "See Billy, he knows," "Bill can tell you," &c., &c., they were told.

This was repeated so incessantly that the stranger Elks when they approached Goddard greeted him with the expression "Hello, Bill!" In a day or two the expression spread among the visitors, who greeted each other with "Hello, Bill!"

Elks from all sections of the country took it to their home lodges and so it has spread around the earth.

MEMORIAL HEADQUARTERS OF ELKS IN CHICAGO

Lodge of Sorrow Was Begun in '70

Exercises Since That Time Have Been on Systematic Basis.

The first public Lodge of Sorrow, held by the Order of Elks, was held at Clarendon Hall, 114 West Thirteenth street, New York City, on March 20, 1870. Eulogies were delivered on Brothers George E. Farmer and J. W. Glenn.

This marks the origin and the first observance of the Memorial Day of the Order. From that time exercises commemorative of departed brothers were placed on a systematic basis. The Lodge of Sorrow as it existed in that day corresponds to the present-day memorial services. Under the rulership of Grand Exalted Ruler Hamilton E. Leach a set day was designated to be celebrated by all lodges in memory of the dead.

In subsequent years the Lodge of Sorrow was the name applied to funeral services, while memorial services was the name applied to the original Lodge of Sorrow.

Elks Began Giving To Charity in '68

Practice Started When One of Members Was Ill and Money Sent Him.

The charity for which the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks is famous began in the days of the "Jolly Corks," back in 1868, when they were having their meetings on Sunday afternoons.

Occasionally some one would be missed from the gatherings. When inquiries were made as to where he was, some one would say, "He is sick" or "not working" or "in order luck." Whereupon, with one accord, all would send him $5 or $10 to help him along.

In this manner was started one of the cardinal virtues of the order—charity—and aiding fellows in need. During its history the Order of Elks has given untold millions of dollars to the needy and helpless.

CHARTER MEMBER OF LODGE

Order of Elks Is Founded On Spirit of Association

History of Organization, Outgrowth of Band of Actors Known as "Jolly Corks," Has Been Stormy But Ever Charitable.

The spirit of fraternity has, from time immemorial, induced men to congregate, to mix in friendly relation for mutual advantage, to share in each other's joys and to assist each other in need. Man's natural instinct is gregarious. It is part of his nature to join with others in a common purpose.

This spirit of association was the motivating cause for the formation of what is now the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. From a band of theatrical performers who sought conviviality and the sustaining influence of each other's company, there has sprung up an order of men that extends throughout the United States and into its Territories.

This band of actors gathered together in New York in the late 60's. Conviviality was their purpose, and it has grown into the seriously social; good will has blossomed into fraternal love; the orderly drinking bout of the stage entertainers has expanded into a higher sodality with a ritual which is severely moral.

In its early years the association was torn with strife, but this adversity seemed more to solidify it to weather the slight squalls of the future. The order, as it stands today, is the strongest testimonial of the faith of its founders.

Actor Dominating Influence.

The dominating influence in the formation of the "Jolly Corks," which blossomed into the Order of Elks, was Charles Vivian, an English actor, who was born in Exeter, Devonshire, England, on October 22, 1842. His father was an English clergyman, of the Established Church of England.

Soon he was drawn toward the city of London. Possessing a good voice and a natural instinct for mimicry, he soon made his way quite successfully, playing in the music halls, and later took to the dramatic side of the profession.

When he was about 24 years old he joined a fraternal organization in London, known as the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes, which had a long illustrious history, with kings and the nobility on its roster. This order is mentioned for the influence which it had upon Vivian's later actions in the formation of the Elks.

The objects of the Order of Buffaloes were: Conviviality and philanthropy toward a brother "Buff." The novitiate in this order was instructed that he would best promote his own happiness by mitigating the sorrows and sufferings of less fortunate creatures; and he was commanded that "whenever a poor brother crosses his path he shall give him whatever he could afford." So many were the charitable works done by the order that the name of "Buff" and a charitable man soon were convertible terms.

Met in London Taverns.

Back in the sixties the members of the theatrical profession in London used to hold gatherings in London taverns, at which topics of mutual interest were discussed. For some time these meetings continued until the "cork trick" was introduced. It caused so much merriment that those who were victimized, by a species of comraderie, would gather apart from the others, and some one dubbed them the "Jolly Corks."

Into this environment in the sixties came a young actor from Devonshire. Soon he became one of the "Corks." After playing for some time in the halls of London he drifted to Southampton and soon embarked upon a sailing vessel for America. This young man was Charles Vivian, who came to the land of his adoption with the ideas in his mind of the English professional actors and their habits. His earlier experiences and social life were destined to work a profound influence in the social and fraternal life of the United States.

The young actor, aboard an English trading vessel, made port in New York on November 15, 1867. At the time of his arrival there were a number of places of Bohemian character in New York, called the "free and easies," which were a type of cabaret, at which there were entertainment, drinks and food.

Drifts Into "Free and Easy."

This new arrival, on the night he landed, drifted into a "free and easy," called "The Star," at 50 Lispenard street, which was conducted by a John Ireland. Vivian was a young man of about 25 years, dressed in dark clothes, a pea jacket and a gray hat, and had the appearance of a seafaring man.

For some time he sat at a table drinking ale. Then the chairman of the evening, who corresponds to our present day master of ceremonies, asked for volunteers to aid the entertainment and the stranger arose and was introduced as "Richardson." This stranger possessed a remarkable barytone voice, and he sang "Jimmy Riddle, What Played Upon a Fiddle" and several other comic songs.

Ireland, who was a friend of Robert Butler, the manager of the American Theater at 472 Broadway, summoned the theatrical man to listen to the stranger sing. The result was that the stranger, who then told them his name was Charles Vivian and that, on the spur of the moment he had given the name "Richardson," his mother's maiden name, was given a position at the American Theater, at a salary of $50 a week.

Vivian knew no one. His first acquaintance was Richard R. "Dick" Steirly, a pianist at Ireland's, who took him to the boarding house of a Mrs. Geisman, at 188 Elm street, where Vivian was installed as a regular boarder. Vivian had no money; but Steirly guaranteed the payment of the money to the boarding house mistress.

Made Friends Easily.

Vivian, with his happy disposition and good humor, made friends with the other boarders rapidly. He was at a loss to provide himself with a suitable wardrobe for his debut at the American Theater, but was rescued from his predicament by W. L. Bowron, who loaned Vivian a dress suit. His appearance caused a flurry in theatrical circles. The audience gave him a flattering reception.

Dramatic critics on the papers of that day reported his debut most favorably, referring to him as "a comic singer from the halls of London who was received with thunders of applause and was encored four times. He pleased his audience so well with his rendition of 'Jimmie Riddle, What Plays Upon a Fiddle,' that he was called out and had to sing four other songs, all of which took well."

Vivian's pleasant personality soon fastened itself on the player folk and soon he gave vent to his fun-loving proclivities by the introduction of the "cork trick," so long in use by his old English associates. It caused much laughter and soon Vivian was referred to as the "Imperial Cork," and his friends were always on the alert to find some recruit upon whom to play the prank.

"Cork Trick" Described.

The "cork trick" was a simple affair. The victim would be asked if he wished to join the "Corks" because they were such a jolly bunch of fellows. When the victim had assented, he would give his name to Vivian and pay a fee of 50 cents, which was for entertainment purposes and which he, as the "Imperial Cork," kept as the treasury.

Each of the men present produced a cork and placed it on the bar. Then, with the utmost gravity, it was explained to the neophyte that the "Imperial Cork" would "count three," then each one present would seize his cork. And "the last one to lift his cork" was to pay for the drinks.

When the count was made, those privy to the secret would simply place their hands over the corks, and hold them on the bar, while the initiate would seize his cork and lift it, so that he would not be the last to remove it from the bar. To his surprise, he would learn that he was the only one to lift the cork and consequently the last one.

He was then given the "rules" of the "Jolly Corks," and was instructed that he must always carry his cork with him, and whenever he met another "Cork," if he was asked to produce his cork at any time or place, he must be able to do so, under penalty of buying the challenger a drink.

There is a legend that Stuart Robson, one of the early "Corks," was about to be married. Other members of the "Jolly Corks" were sure they would catch him without the cork on his wedding day.

As the bridegroom appeared, and was about to pass through two rows of the "Jolly Corks" on his way to church, each member held up the cork. Robson was not caught. He reached into his dress coat pocket and exhibited the "insignia," and strode triumphantly into the church.

Compelled to Buy Drinks.

If a cork was taken from the bar, while the social gatherings were in progress, the owner of the missing cork would be compelled to buy the drinks, until such time as he regained possession of the "insignia."

Stringency of the excise laws in New York at the time was a contributing factor in the formation of what is now known as the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. On Sundays all saloons were closed, as well as theaters and other public places. Vivian and several other members then decided to form themselves into a social club, to levy assessments against each other, so as to lay up a fund for the provision of refreshments for Sunday.

At Mother Ryan's boarding house, at 39 Wooster street, a group of the actors were discussing the rigidity of the excise laws and the hardships that it inflicted upon them, when Charles Vivian suggested that they find a place to meet each Sunday and carry on their social activities. Hugh W. Eagan, who, with John Wild and Andy Leavitt, were stock comedians at Tony Pastor's, offered them the use of his office at 189 Bowery, where the three also had a theatrical agency.

First Meeting in Attic.

They met at his office and decided to hold the next meeting in the attic of Mrs. Geisman's boarding house, where they placed a barrel of beer and a stock of sandwiches. In the attic, they held mock courts at which the members were placed on trial and fined for various offenses, the money from which was used for the purchase of further refreshments.

Regardless of whether the culprit was found guilty or acquitted of singing a song badly, he was fined. All sorts of pretexts were used for the imposition of fines. Vivian, being then the Right Honorable Primo, an official title in the English Buffaloes, officiated at all the mock courts and always saw to it that there were enough fines collected for the next Sunday's entertainment.

Only two meetings were held at Mrs. Geisman's, for the popularity of the gatherings grew so quickly that there was hardly room enough for the ac-

Elks Flower and Colors Suggested by Capital Man

To Brother Edwin B. Hay, of Washington Lodge, No. 15, who served as grand exalted ruler for three terms, the order owes the adoption of its colors and the floral symbol of the order—the forget-me-not.

In urging the adoption of this flower, he described it as:

"The blue and bright-eyed flower of the brook,

The flower is sky blue, each with a yellow eye and a small white ray at the base of the corolla. The slender stems grow from 6 to 18 inches in length. The lance-shaped leaf partly clasps the stalk. It symbolizes faithful love and affectionate remembrance.

The Elks colors, a combination of royal purple and white, used at every Elk function as typical of Elkdom, derives its origin in its symbolism of truth and purity. When combined with royal purple, it signifies, in the language of colors, the love of truth and the highest degree of virtue.

WHAT IS ELKDOM?

What is Elkdom? 'Tis the land
Where hungry souls can grasp the fraternal hand,
Where business cares, like flitting shadows pass
And disappear above the social glass;
Where doubts and fears, that all our pleasures mar,
Float off in clouds of smoke from your cigar.
It is a realm where every Elk is king
And Friendship's smile a princely offering.
This is Elkdom, where your differences end
And life begins anew as Elk and friend.

Motto of Elkdom Believed Derived From Irish Verse

"The Faults of Our Brothers We Write Upon the Sands Their Virtues Upon the Tablets of Love and Memory."

This, the motto of Elkdom, is generally believed to be a paraphrase and a transposition of a poem written in Dublin in 1745, by Samuel Madden, a writer and philanthropist, who was a friend of Johnson and Swift.

He was an original member of the Irish College of Surgeons and he wrote and dedicated a poem to Frederick, then the Prince of Wales, in memory of Dr. Hugh Boulter, Lord Archbishop of Ardmagh.

The lines from which the motto of Elkdom is believed to be derived are:

"Some write their wrong in marble; he, more just,
Stooped down, serene, and wrote them in the dust;
Trod under foot, the sport of every wind,
Swept from the earth, and blotted from his mind,
There, secret in the grave, he bade them lie,

"Absent Brother" Toast Humbly But Early Begun

The oldest tradition of Elkdom—the 11 o'clock toast—in remembrance of "Our Absent Brothers," began back in 1868, when the first lodge of Elks was holding its meetings on Delancey street, New York.

Toward 11 o'clock the refreshments were generally nearly exhausted and the social gathering would disband without any special formality. On May 31, 1868, Brother George F. McDonald stopped this abrupt adjournment by proposing a toast to the "Absent Brothers."

In this was begun the most beautiful sentiment of the order, the remembrance of the "Absent Ones." From its humble beginning it has assumed one of the most conspicuous gestures of the order, about which the most beautiful of Elks literature and oratory has been interwoven.

The singing of "Auld Lang Syne," the anthem of the order, was partly introduced by Brother McDonald. This practice was adopted from the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes of England and the Tammany Society. It was primarily introduced by Charles A. Vivian, the founder of the Elks, along with much of the other ritual from the old English fraternity.

HE'S AN ELK

By M. J. PHILLIPS.

If he's looking up, not down,
He's an Elk.
If he'd rather smile than frown,
He's an Elk.
If he's jolly, broad and fat;
If he wears a man-sized hat—
Take a tip from things like that—
He's an Elk.

If he see's some good in all,
He's an Elk.
If he helps men who fall,
He's an Elk.
If he looks you in the eye;
Give's a courteous reply—
If he's shrewd but never sly—
He's an Elk.

When he dies and goes above,
Brother Elk,
To the Golden Lodge of Love,
Brother Elk.
Does St. Peter hesitate?
No, he swings the pearly gate;
"Come in, you don't have to wait, commodation of the actors who applied for admission. Besides, they had become so noisy that the irate Mrs. Geisman ordered them from her house.
Brother Elk."

After eviction from their meeting place, they hired a room at 17 Delancey street, over a saloon, where they met the following Sunday. By this time, the applications for admission became so numerous that some of them, realizing the necessity of some sort of a brotherhood for their profession, began to study ideas for the formation of a permanent organization.

The popularity of Vivian began to rankle in the minds of some of the other members, and soon group meetings were being held, at which was discussed the idea of ousting Vivian and seizing control of the "Jolly Corks," as the nucleus of a definite organization.

Benevolent Order Started.

At a meeting on the following sunday, George F. McDonald made a motion that they "resolve themselves into a benevolent order and that a committee be appointed to draft rules and a ritual." Vivian, as the presiding officer, appointed the following: Thomas C. Riggs, William Sheppard, Edgar N. Platt and George F. McDonald and himself.

The first of the "Jolly Corks" are generally acknowledged to be: Vivian, Stierly, William Carleton, Harry Vandemark, John T. Kent, Frank C Langhorne, William L. Bowron, John H. Blume, George W. Thompson, William Sheppard, Thomas C. Riggs and George F. McDonald.

For about four weeks the "Jolly Corks" held their meetings at 17 Delancey street and on February 2, 1868, they moved to Military Hall, 193 Bowery. The membership at this time numbered about 20. As the organization grew it became evident that the members should shape a definite form and place it upon a business-like basis, as well as to select a more suitable name for the society.

Accordingly, a committee made up of Vivian, George F. McDonald, William Sheppard, James W. Glenn, Thomas C. Riggs, George W. Brown, W. L. Bowron, George W. Thompson and Harry Vandemark was appointed to select a new name.

Urged Name of "Buffaloes."

With the knowledge he had of the splendid benevolent work of the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes in England, Vivian was inclined to favor the adoption of the name "Buffaloes," and in fact, he strongly urged it. Considerable debate followed among the committee. The majority were strongly opposed to the use of any name then held by any order in existence.

An appointment was made by them to meet at a place near Barnum's Museum, at Broadway and Ann street, where a further discussion was to take place on the adoption of a name for the order. Some of the members were tardy, and others strolled into the museum with the thought in mind that they might derive some ideas for a name from the collection of animals on display in the museum.

An elk's head attracted their attention. Its graceful spreading antlers caused them to ponder its selection for an emblem, and the beauty of the head seemed to meet with the general approval of the committee. There were a few, Vivian among them, who were partial to the selection of the name "Buffalo." Finally, at the meeting of February 16, 1868, the natal day of Elkdom, the final report was made by the committee.

"Elks" Chosen as Name.

The first vote was tied, seven to seven, for "Buffalo" and "Elk." The decision of the adoption of the name Elk was made by Vivian, who was presiding, and who had always voted for the selection of the "Buffalo" as the insignia and name of the association.

Further investigation by the committee on books on natural history, proved the aptness of their simile. For they found that the elk was distinguished for its fleetness of foot, combined with timidity at wrong doing, and, it was stated in the books, the elk would avoid all combat except in fighting for the female and the defense of the young, the helpless and the weak.

Titles Same as in Buffaloes.

The change of the name of the organization from the "Jolly Corks," to the Elks, and the dispute between the members regarding the choosing of the name Elk or Buffalo, had caused a slight split in the order, and the organization was divided. The minute book of the meeting was carried away from the hall by Platt and taken to his boarding house, where he placed it in his trunk. Soon afterward he left to take a position in another city. While he was away, the trunk was stolen and was never seen again. In this manner was lost the minute book of the organization, containing the information regarding the crucial point in its history at which the "Corks" changed their names to Elks. Then a committee, of which Vivian was a member began the planning of a ritual.

The influence which Vivian's experience in England with the Buffaloes had on the new organization is evidenced by the incorporation in the constitution of the order, passed in March, 1368, of the titles of officers, which were exactly the same as those of the Buffaloes. In the constitution it says, "The officers of the lodge of this order shall consist of the following: Right honorable primo, three deputy primos (first, second and third in order), secretary, corresponding secretary, treasurer and tiler."

This constitution contained 15 articles, which were followed by 21 rules and regulations. Although several changes have been made in these since that time, the original constitution is the basis of Elks law as it exists today.

From February 16 until the adoption of the constitution, Vivian served as right honorable primo, and was elected under the constitution to that office.

The constitution provided for two degrees, no member being eligible to the second degree until he had served as a first-degree member for three months. The ritualistic work for the second degree was not adopted until the following May.

The presiding officer in the first degree was addressed as right honorable primo, while in the second degree he was styled exalted ruler, and his aids as esteemed leading knight, esteemed loyal knight and esteemed lecturing knight. The terminology of the first degree officers, patterned after the Buffaloes, was retained in the organization for many years, and was used in ritualistic work as late as 1883, when it was eliminated in a new ritual which was adopted.

Ball Given in 1868.

For two months the order progressed and a ball was given on April 16, 1868, under its auspices at Ferrero's Assembly Rooms. Vivian, who was chairman of the reception committee, attended the ball and made an address. There was nothing to indicate at the time that there was any discord in the order.

After the ball at Ferrero's, Vivian went to Pittsburgh, where he played in Trible's Varieties until June 1, when he returned to New York for the purpose of assisting at a benefit performance which was to be held on June 8 at the Academy of Music. In the meantime Vivian had been succeeded by George W. Thompson as right honorable primo.

Vivian had been given a gold Elk badge by his brothers a few months before and he was zealous to aid in the success of the benefit. When his name did not appear on the program he was angered, and his attitude was shared by many of his friends.

It was at this benefit that the previous plotting of the faction that had been holding secret caucuses came to the surface. The manner in which they kept Vivian and his friends from the program was a stipulation made with the directors of the theater that no one with a white face should be permitted to sing, and that only the minstrels would be on the program. Thus Vivian and his friends were left from the program.

Sought to Expel Vivian.

This occurrence caused a dispute at the lodge meeting held on June 14, at which time an attempt was made to expel Vivian from the order. His side was taken by his friends, and the attempt to force him from the organization was unsuccessful. Vivian never again sought admission. Other friends of Vivian, including Stierly, Kent and Bosworth, appeared at the lodge door one week later, where they were met by one of the opposing faction, who, aided by a policeman, told them they could not enter. This was accomplished by the issuance of a new password, without which no one could enter.

The password had been changed for that day, and only those who were in the opposing camp to Vivian were notified of the change. Later, without trial, the friends of Vivian were expelled from the order. In the case of Vivian, the injustice was corrected by the Grand Lodge in session in Detroit in 1893.

Slight Righted in 1893.

In an interview with Meade D. Detweiler, grand exalted ruler from 1896 to 1898, George W. Thompson, who succeeded Vivian as right honorable primo, said of the incident of barring Vivian from the benefit program: "This was the beginning of an act of injustice to a number of our worthy brothers, which was never righted until the Grand Lodge of 1893. From this time may also be dated the efforts which have been put forth to rob Brother Vivian of his well-deserved laurels as the founder of our order." The severance of Vivian's connection with the order is generally attributed to jealousy of him and a desire on the part of a few to limit membership to professional actors, excluding what were then known as "variety" actors or semiprofessionals, to which class Vivian belonged.

At the close of the first calendar year of its existence, the roster of the Elks showed a membership of 76. Moving on through 1869, the order kept its progress and in 1870, to be precise, on February 27, a committee was appointed to draft a form of opening and closing a lodge of sorrow, and in this year occurred the first public lodge of sorrow.

In this year the seeds of fraternity which Vivian had scattered wherever he went began to sprout. Friendly relations existed between the "Order of Jolly Corks," which Vivian had started in Philadelphia, in March, 1868, and the Elks. This was not founded as a rival organization. In fact, the Jolly Corks of Philadelphia had their inception during the interval between the change of the name of the "New York Jolly Corks" to the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Grand Lodge Founded.

The eventful year in Elkdom, second only to 1868, is the year 1871, because in this year the Grand Lodge of Elks was founded. This year marked the admission of Philadelphia Lodge, No. 2. It also is a milestone in Elks history, in that about this time there began an infiltration of business and professional men, and with it, began the decline of the theatrical performer as the dominating group in the order.

The cause of the decline of the theatrical man as the ruling unit in Elkdom is briefly this: Originally and essentially the Elks were a social organization of the branches of the theatrical profession. At their social sessions they invited friends not in their calling. The actor's life being nomadic, since he is generally away from home on tours, it was obvious that the lodge management required better business acumen than the actor had time to contribute.

Therefore, the friends of the actor in the commercial world were called into membership to regulate the business end of the lodge. In so doing, the actors laid the basis upon which was erected the structure of a social organization that is without a peer in America as a leader of fraternal charity and benevolence.

Just before the close of 1870 a movement was started by some professional actors from Philadelphia, who were members of the "Jolly Corks" to form a branch of the Elks in that city. In pursuance of this thought a committee was appointed which went to New York to obtain the permission of the New York lodge.

The Elks were incorporated only under the laws of the State of New York and, in order that the organization should be enabled to expand, it was obviously necessary for the New York lodge to relinquish all its titles and rights in a Grand Lodge, as they had previously practically designated themselves.

Since the Elks could not maintain an existence both as a subordinate lodge and a Grand Lodge it was decided that the order surrender all preexisting rights in the New York Lodge to the newly formed Grand Lodge, and an application was made to the Legislature of the State of New York for an act of incorporation.

On March 10, 1871, the State Legislature passed an act incorporating the Grand Lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. On the same day the act was signed by Gov. John T. Hoffman, and the Grand Lodge, being then legally constituted, immediately issued a charter to New York Lodge No. 1. Two days later a charter was granted to Philadelphia Lodge No. 2.

First Exalted Ruler Chosen.

The first grand ruler, or, as it is now called, the grand exalted ruler, was George J. Green, of the New York Lodge, a man of great intellectual attainments and a forcible speaker. With the admission of the Philadelphia Lodge to the order, came the creation of the title of district deputy, exalted grand ruler.

Until 1876, no new lodges were granted charters, and in that year San Francisco, No. 3; Chicago, No. 4, and Cincinnati, No. 5, joined the herd. Exalted Grand Ruler Henry P. O'Neil, who at the time of the founding of the grand lodge drafted the constitution and by-laws, had been elected head of the order in 1875. Under his direction the order made great progress.

In addition to the admission of the three new lodges, he secured the passage of legislation designed to facilitate the formation of other lodges and their entry into the grand lodge. Several original odes, adapted for ceremonies in the subordinate lodges and also for burial services were composed by him and adopted.

O'Neil's Influence Still Felt.

The influence of O'Neil on the order is felt to this day. To him is due the distinctive features of Elkdom, which makes it different than any other fraternal organization. He gave the grand lodge its first laws, its ritualistic formula and instituted the code of the order.

The fundamentals of Elks' jurisprudence came from his mind, which also conceived the now established principles of Elkdom—charity, justice, brotherly love and fidelity. To his work is attributed the divestment of the order from an attempt to paraphrase religious rites. Also, he originated the ritual for the Lodge of Sorrow and the Decoration Day service.

To him Elkdom also owes the selection of amaranth and ivy as the order's funeral emblems. In truth, Henry P. O'Neil left to the order a legacy of his own personality.

Meets Outside of New York.

In the year 1877 the Grand Lodge for the first time in its history met outside of New York City. The session was held in Philadelphia, and the business of the lodge was transacted. When the business session was over the meeting adjourned to New York in order to obviate all illegalities or objections that might arise because of their convention outside of the State in which the Grand Lodge was incorporated. All the legislation passed in Philadelphia was repassed in New York.

In this year and the ensuing few years was laid the basis of a quarrel which undoubtedly was the most serious difficulty which ever confronted the order. It hinged upon the selection of the place for the Grand Lodge sessions. In a session in New York in 1878 a motion was made to amend the constitution making the Grand Lodge migratory by striking out the words "New York City," in the section relating to the locale of Grand Lodge meeting, and substituting in its stead "at such place as may be directed by the Grand Lodge at its preceding communication." This was referred to the committee on laws and supervision.

In 1877 the lodge had again increased to include Sacramento, No. 6; Baltimore, No. 7, and Louisville, No. 8. In the following year (1878) Sacramento, No. 6, surrendered its charter, and the following new lodges were added: St. Louis, No. 9; Boston, No. 10, and Pittsburgh, No. 11.

Lecturing Title Changed.

At the session in 1878 the title of the fourth officer of the Grand Lodge was changed from esteemed grand lecturer to esteemed lecturing grand knight. From 1876 to 1878 Frank Girard was head of the order, and later in 1882 as district deputy he aided in the institution of Washington Lodge, No. 15.

The year 1879 was comparatively uneventful so far as the history of the order was concerned. The principal event in this year was the death of George R. Maguire, exalted grand ruler, the first head of the order to die in office.

He was the first exalted grand ruler elected from a lodge other than New York, No. 1, having been a member of Philadelphia Lodge, No. 2. He was succeeded in office by Charles E. Davies, of Chicago Lodge, No. 4, who had been grand esteemed lecturing knight. Davies was the most prominent fight manager of his day.

Again in 1880 the question of making the Grand Lodge migratory arose, when the Chicago lodge's petition to change the act of incorporation of the Grand Lodge to hold its sessions at places other than New York was denied. At this time Louis C. Waehner, of New York Lodge, was the exalted grand ruler.

He was a noted barrister of his day and was a great orator as well. In later years, at the time of the "great schism" in the order, he was the legal counsellor of the New York Lodge in its suit against the Grand Lodge.

During his regime the petitions of tilers to become members of the grand body were denied; and a slight change was made in the ritual. The title of "third assistant primo," in the first degree, being changed to esquire.

In the administration of Louis C. Waehner the following lodges were admitted: California Lodge, No. 12; Indianapolis Lodge, No. 13, and Providence Lodge, No. 14.

Washington Lodge Instituted.

Washington Lodge, No. 15, was instituted on February 12, 1882, under the administration of Thomas E. Garrett, of St. Louis Lodge, No. 9. The circumstances of the creation of Washington Lodge will be told in a history of the local lodge in another column of this section.

In this year there cropped up the first attempt to emulate the Order of Elks, when Boston Lodge, No. 10, reported that certain unauthorized persons, formerly members of the order, had banded themselves together in that city under the name of the "Order of Growlers," and were conducting business by means of the ritual of the Order of Elks. This complaint was referred to a committee for action. At the Grand Lodge session this year a funeral ritual to be used by subordinate lodges was authorized.

A prosperous epoch in the order's history began in 1883, when five new lodges were admitted. In this year the Grand Lodge again rejected the amendment to the act of incorporation to permit the Grand Lodge to meet outside of New York.

Four States Are Added.

The order extended into four States in 1884, Tennessee, West Virginia, Arkansas and Louisiana, where it had never before had a foothold. Edwin A. Perry, of Boston Lodge, No. 10, was the exalted grand ruler, and under his direction a revision of the ritual was made, in which the titles of previously given officers in the first degree was abolished.

The titles which went out of existence were right honorable primo and three assistant primo's, which were some of the titles Vivian gave to the order as a result of his association with the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes. The titles of the officers in the second degree, viz, exalted ruler, &c., then were the title of officers in both degrees. An installation service was ordered printed and sent to all subordinate lodges.

Externally, everything was in harmony in the order during the rulership in 1885 of Henry Schley Sanderson, of New York Lodge, who, in 1878, while esteemed leading knight of the New York Lodge, caused the adoption of the practice of placing the antlers on the altar during the lodge session, and thereby became the father of this practice of Elkdom.

Internally, however, the order was seething with friction. The now old "migratory Grand Lodge issue" was the contributing cause of this discontent and there was evident discord because of the large influx of nontheatrical members, who thereby incurred the jealousy of the actors, who felt that the new element of business and professional men would soon control the order. Their fears, it will be learned later, were well founded.

The decision not to permit the extension of the order to foreign countries was the most notable event of 1886. Exalted Grand Ruler Daniel A. Kelly, of Baltimore Lodge, No. 7, cited a request that a district deputy be appointed to form lodges in England. After considerable debate, the committee to which it was referred voted its disapproval of the measure, and the Grand Lodge then sided with the committee.

Emblem Is Adopted.

At this time the order had so expanded that it had a total of 59 subordinate lodges, with a membership of 5,511. This year is also the natal year of the Elks' emblem. The session adopted a recommendation of J. J. Flanagan, then exalted ruler of Utica Lodge, No. 33, the father of the idea, in which the elk's head was adopted as the emblem for members.

Like Banquo's ghost, the ever-recurring difficulties of the "migratory provision" and the feud between the professional actors and business men again returned in 1887 to plague the heads of the order. In this year there began the movement to enlarge the field of the Order of Elks and no longer confine it to the large cities in which its basis of membership was the theatrical profession. In this year the proposal to change the meeting place from New York was defeated by a vote of 85 to 60.

An amendment to the constitution was offered "permitting no lodge to be instituted in any city of less than 25,000 inhabitants," which was later remodeled to say that "no dispensation shall be granted for a lodge in any city or town in which a sufficiently large theatrical element does not exist to warrant such dispensation." This question was tabled, as was another amendment to establish a secret password for the order.

It was in this year that Washington Lodge, No. 15, had the distinction of having one of its members, Hamilton E. Leach, succeed William E. English as exalted grand ruler. Mr. English went abroad on business during his tenure of office. Brother Leach then advanced a chair. During the rulership of Hamilton E. Leach many momentous events occurred in the order.

Decide for Migration.

Foremost among the accomplishments was the decision of the Grand Lodge to make itself migratory. At the conventon of 1888, 228 votes favoring the amendment and 47 votes were cast against it. The amendment was then submitted to the subordinate lodges for ratification.

In his annual address Brother Leach advocated the amendment to the constitution to make the Grand Lodge migratory, subject to the ratification of the subordinate lodges, and, while his proposal carried, it was destined to cause the greatest rift the order had ever known.

For many years the order had held annual reunions in various cities, and with but one exception all of the Grand Lodge sessions had been convened in New York. In the case of the one exception, that held in Philadelphia in 1877, the legislation passed was subsequently repassed in New York.

Brother Leach in arguing for the migratory provision said that the annual sessions of the Grand Lodge could be the reunion of the order. From this point came the impetus which later resulted in the fusion of the two events as they exist today, with the meetings being held in midsummer instead of midwinter, as heretofore was the rule.

During his second year as exalted grand ruler Brother Leach succeeded in applying the final legal machinery to make the Grand Lodge migratory. In this year also the order increased 100 per cent, having 114 lodges and a membership of 10,549. This year, 1889, was the last year that the Grand Lodge meeting, as a fixture, was held in New York. The decision of the session was that the next meeting be held in Cleveland, Ohio, simultaneously with the annual reunion.

In pursuance to a recommendation of Brother Leach, the order in this year adopted a resolution which created the annual Lodge of Sorrow, "to be held on the first Sunday in December by all lodges of Elks. In this year there also came into being the present "traveling card," or "Elk's card," as they are now known.

Rebellion broke loose in the Order in 1890. This year, undoubtedly the most trying in the Order's history, was the year of the "Great Schism." Strife and discord were rampant, and behind it all was the question of the "migratory provision."

Irked by the action of the Grand Lodge in deciding to hold its convention away from New York, the members of the lodge in that city obtained an injunction seeking to restrain the Grand Lodge from meeting in Cleveland.

Exalted Grand Ruler Simon Quinlin of Chicago Lodge No. 4 thereupon suspended the charter of the New York Lodge and ordered District Deputy Exalted Grand Ruler Frank Girard to take over the affairs of the lodge.

The esteemed Loyal Grand Knight Frank E. Wright formulated charges against the New York Lodge and a trial commission found its officers guilty of defying the constitution and by-laws of the Order, in violation of the obligation taken by every good Elk.

Whereupon the New York Lodge held a separate convention of the Eastern Lodges in New York on July 8, 1890, the day upon which the Grand Lodge convened in Cleveland, at which a resolution was passed repudiating the Grand Lodge convention in Cleveland.

Cases of Factions Stated.

Interviews published in Charles Edward Ellis' "History of the Elks," give the points of views of the two factions. Said one person interviewed:

"The whole trouble grows out of the complex membership of the order. It was originally organized by actors and literary men, and its primary object was to bring the two professions into a closer union of fellowship. Under the formula of the membership those who sympathized with those two professions could be admitted and subsequently men in business walks of life were taken in because their utility was deemed necessary as business managers of the order, the migratory character of the actor's profession making it impossible for them to fill official positions which necessitated their constant attendance at the meetings.

"Unfortunately, this outside element is in control of the whole organization, and subverts it altogether from its original idea. From the very order of things the method of making it migratory would be to surrender the New York charter and obtain one from the United States, but that they neglected to do, and therein lies their weak point. In the event of the disruption of the order it looks very much as if it would pass into the hands of the nonprofessionals, because the latter are so largely in the majority and because the professionals can not give it the proper attention."

ORDER OF ELKS HAS NOW REACHED PERIOD OF MATURITY

Last Serious Dissension Of Elks Came in Late 90's

"The responsibility for the trouble rests upon a few members of New York, who selfishly look with fear upon the rapidly increasing strength of the order in the West. New York Lodge has so long run the order to suit itself that it hates to relinquish that power, and, like the small boy, threatens to break up the game unless he can have the best part. * * * The question of business men having ruined the order is all bosh. Without them there would be no Order of Elks. Most of the charity bestowed is, after all, given to the needy members of the profession."

The lodges which sided with the New York Lodge in its dispute with the grand lodge were Brooklyn, Newark, Hoboken, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Boston and Providence.

The grand lodge meeting in Cleveland showed a willingness to forgive the New York rebels. In addition, the grand lodge decided to restrict the representation to the grand lodge, so that each lodge would be represented by one member, who must be a past exalted ruler. The ritual was modified so that the candidate could receive both degrees in one evening.

Memorial Tablets Authorized.

Among other things enacted at the Cleveland meeting was a law requiring lodges to erect a memorial tablet in their lodge rooms in honor of their dead. In this year the order had expanded to 156 lodges, with a membership of 13,067.

In the next year, 1891, although the split with the Eastern lodges was still extant, 40 new lodges were given charters, and three lodges, whose fealty was wavering between the New York Lodge and the grand lodge came back into the fold of the grand lodge. These were Buffalo, Brooklyn and Newark.

The convention this year was held in Louisville, and the exalted grand ruler was empowered, in his discretion, to divide States into districts and appoint more than one district deputy where the work of the order required. A change was also made in the wording of the titles of the grand officers, the hitherto awkward phrasing of the titles was this year transposed to its logical sequence of title; the exalted grand ruler was transposed to grand exalted ruler and so on down the line.

The law that lodges must confine their name titles to the name of the city in which they were located was enacted at this session, as was a law consolidating the two degrees into one strong degree.

Washington Lodge again came to the forefront in the national history of the order in this year when Edwin B. Hay, who had served as exalted ruler of the local lodge, was elected grand exalted ruler, a position which he was destined to occupy for three terms—from 1891 to 1892, 1892 to 1893 and 1894 to 1895.

To him the order is indebted for his peacemaking and healing the breach between the New York Lodge and the Grand Lodge. Because of his influence the order again became harmonious. He also gave to the order its color—royal purple—and the floral symbol—the forget-me-not, the "flower of the Elks."

In 1892 at the gathering in Buffalo we hear him pleading for peace: "It was hoped that by the will of Providence and the generosity of a tardy court of law that the dissension existing in New York, by which New York Lodge, No. 1, has remained out and apart from us, might have been healed, and that we should not have that broken link in the chain to cause any lament from any of our order.

"Because this lodge is not with us has not affected us in the least. The sympathy is with the brothers who compose the New York Lodge * * *. The time has not gone for it to return * * *. Our hearts are open, and we are always ready to extend the hand of fellowship and say to them: 'Welcome, thrice welcome, into our midst.'"

For several years the subordinate lodges had been having difficulty with clubs within the ranks. Under the direction of Grand Exalted Ruler Hay the status of clubs was defined as subsidiary and subordinate to the lodge.

Royal Purple Chosen Color.

The convention or communication of 1892 also changed the name of the occasion of the Lodge of Sorrow to be designated as Memorial Day, and it was decreed that a funeral should be designated as a Lodge of Sorrow. Royal purple was designated as the color of the Elks and the forget-me-not as the flower of the Elks.

The peacemaking efforts of Grand Exalted Ruler Hay bore fruit in 1893, when the wayward mother lodge, New York No. 1, returned to the fold and declared her allegiance to the Grand Lodge. All of her Grand Lodge members were restored to good standing, and Brother Arthur C. Moreland, who, as Grand Secretary during the "Great Schism," sided with his home lodge, New York No. 1, was reinstated as a member.

A long standing injustice was also righted in this year, when the Grand Lodge restored to membership Richard R. Steirly, one of Vivian's close friends, who was one of the original "Jolly Corks," and who was illegally expelled in 1868, a few months after the formation of the Order.

There was also adopted at this session a set of ceremonials for funeral service, memorial service, laying corner stones for public buildings and lodge edifices, dedication ceremonies and institutions and installation of new lodges. To the title "Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks," there was appended "Of the United States of America."

Another Schism Arises.

When Grand Exalted Ruler Hay relinquished office after his second term, harmony prevailed in the rank, but it was not to be the fate of the order to have it last for long. Hardly had the difficulties between the Grand Lodge and the New York Lodge been adjusted than another unfortunate controversy was ushered in that nearly rent the order. The former controversy involved but a single lodge, with a few sympathizing lodges, but this new schism assumed greater proportions. It was a split between the grand trustees on one side and Grand Exalted Ruler Astley Apperly on the other.

The grand trustees, acting according to the rights delegated to them by the constitution of the order, issued a call to meet in New York on August 8, 1893, to select a place for the next annual session. The grand exalted ruler and the grand secretary were advised of this meeting, but by telegram declined to be present.

The board of grand trustees selected Atlantic City, N. J., as the place of the next annual meeting and June 19 to 21, 1894, as the time. Notification of this decision was forwarded to the grand exalted ruler and the grand secretary, but it was ignored. No notice was taken of the report and Grand Exalted Ruler Apperly who, under the law, had a duty to perform in promulgating the decision of the grand trustees, failed to act.

Thereupon, on January 4, 1894, he issued a special circular saying the grand trustees had failed to fix a time and place for the annual meeting, and he then ordered a "special annual session" at Jamestown, Lake Chautauqua, N. Y., on June 18, 1894, the day before the date decided upon by the grand trustees for the Atlantic City meeting.

Special Meeting Called.

Unwilling to have the statement in the grand exalted ruler's circular go unanswered, the grand trustees called a special meeting in New York City on February 10 to consider the matter and again invited the grand exalted ruler and the grand secretary to be present, and their invitation was again ignored.

The board of grand trustees were sustained in their action by the committee on laws and appeals. The grand exalted ruler sought to remove from office the entire board of grand trustees by suspending them and appointing others, and issued a circular to that effect in the latter part of February, 1894, but such action, being purely arbitrary and without legal foundation, the law was against such form of procedure.

Just before the Grand Lodge was to meet in Atlantic City the grand trustees made a final appeal to the lodges to the effect that their course had been sustained by nine-tenths of the lodges of the order, and that the meeting at Jamestown is illegal and void, and that the legal annual session of the body would convene in Atlantic City.

When the Grand Lodge convened in Atlantic City there were present representatives from 80 lodges. Grand Esteemed Leading Knight William G. Myers presided as grand exalted ruler pro tem. Grand Exalted Ruler Apperly, with other Grand Lodge officers, held a separate meeting at Jamestown, whereupon the Grand Lodge, in session at Atlantic City, suspended them from membership in the order.

Brother Edwin B. Hay, of Washington Lodge No. 15, who healed the breach in the organization caused by the defection of New York Lodge, a few years earlier, was again called to the service of the order in this new crisis and was again elected grand exalted ruler by the session called by the grand trustees.

The Grand Lodge decided to hold its meeting in Atlantic City again in 1895. Brother Meade D. Detweiler was elected grand exalted ruler by the "Jamestown Grand Lodge," as it had come to be known.

In 1895 the "Jamestown Grand Lodge" rushed into court and obtained an injunction against the Grand Lodge from meeting in Atlantic City and from removing the records from Jamestown. The answer of the Grand Lodge to the cause was argued in the supreme court of Chautauqua County, New York, and the injunction was dissolved. This had a very beneficial effect, for many lodges whose fealty was wavering between the two factions, sided with the Grand Lodge.

However, many lodges, despite the decision of the court, persisted in adhering to the Jamestown action and refrained from tendering their allegiance to the grand lodge. Thereupon the grand lodge instituted proceedings in the form of a replevin suit to gain possession of grand lodge records illegally held by the Jamestown faction.

Many peace conventions and compromise meetings were held without helpful results. The Jamestown faction appealed to the Supreme Court of New York from the decision which dissolved the injunction it had obtained against the grand lodge.

The climax was reached by a sweeping decision, written by Justice Lewis, of the New York Supreme Court, sustaining the dismissal by the lower court of the injunction obtained against the grand lodge by the Jamestown faction. The decision read: "The action of the grand exalted ruler in assuming to change the place for the meeting from Atlantic City to Jamestown was without jurisdiction, and void."

Then a conference was held between the leaders of the Jamestown faction, headed by its grand exalted ruler, Meade D. Detweiler, and the grand trustees of the grand lodge, where the existing differences between the two factional bodies were adjusted. At the annual session that year in Atlantic City, Brother Detweiler and others of the Jamestown faction were met at the doors of the grand lodge hall and were escorted in amid the cheers of the assembly. Brother Detweiler shook hands with Grand Exalted Ruler Hay and acknowledged his allegiance to Grand Exalted Ruler Hay and the grand lodge, thus cementing the ties of fellowship and ending the last serious trouble of the order.

Great rejoicing followed, and Grand Exalted Ruler Hay and Brother Detweiler sent out to all lodges their proclamations of peace. Because of his self-abnegation, Brother Detweiler became the most popular Elk in the United States. With Grand Exalted Ruler Hay and others he had succeeded in reuniting the factions of the order.

Brother Detweiler, although his position as grand exalted ruler of the Jamestown faction was recognized as the leader of the order by a great number of lodges, he endeared himself to Elkdom when he spoke the most eloquent words that ever fell upon Elks ears when he stood in the convention hall in Atlantic City and addressed the presiding officer of the Grand Lodge as "grand exalted ruler." By his act he showed the manhood which made him the occupant of that position the following year.

Rejoicing Turns to Sorrow.

The rejoicing that was caused by the reunion soon turned to sorrow, for on the second day of the session at Atlantic City the floor of the building in which the convention was being held collapsed, and 200 Elks and their wives and friends were buried under the debris. More than 100 were badly injured, but none were killed outright. Appeals were made for a relief fund, and all Elks, as they always do, responded with generous donation to pay for the medical treatment for the victims of the disaster.

For the first time in several years the order, in 1896, was united. Marked advances were made in the condition of the order; dead lodges were brought to life and dormant ones were resuscitated. Brother Astley Apperly, who as grand exalted ruler, led the defection of the Jamestown faction, a few years earlier, was restored to Grand Lodge membership.

At the annual session of the order in Cincinnati, Ohio, at the suggestion of Brother Arthur C. Moreland, it was enacted "that the altar drapery shall be the flag of the United States, upon which the Bible shall rest, surmounted by the antlers."

Moving on to 1897, with Brother Meade D. Detweiler, the "Grand Old Man of Elkdom," at the head of the order, there is found progress at every hand. During this year the hand of affliction overtook the widow of Brother Charles A. Vivian, the founder of the order, and a fund was created for her benefit. An appeal to brother Elks was given a generous response, obtaining for Mrs. Vivian all the alleviation of her suffering that it was possible to bestow.

In 1898 the order had grown so that there were 442 lodges, with a membership of 44,252. During the investigation of Grand Exalted Ruler Detweiler into the history of the order it was discovered that the original gavel used by Brother Vivian as the right honorable primo in presiding over the first sessions of the first Lodge of Elks in 1868 was still in existence. The gavel was in the possession of Brother Richard R. Steirly, then a member of Hoboken Lodge No. 74. Through his kindness the venerable gavel was given to the grand exalted ruler for perpetual preservation among the cherished treasures of the order. In like manner the Grand Lodge obtained the first Elks banner from New York Lodge No. 1.

A notable decision was made in 1899 by Grand Exalted Ruler John Galvin in the matter of an "Elk's Protective Life Association," which had been proposed for the purpose of issuing insurance to members of the order. Grand Exalted Ruler Galvin ruled that the plan was impracticable, contrary to the spirit and purpose of our laws and not permissable. "We are neither an insurance society nor a benefit society," he declared. "Ours is a benevolent organization as distinguished from a benefit society. What charity we do and what help we administer is done from a spirit of benevolence and a spirit of brotherly duty, but not from a sense of contractural obligation." His decision in this question was ratified by the Grand Lodge.

Members Styled as Elks.

In this year the Grand Lodge also enacted that "there shall be only one degree conferred upon a candidate by any lodge, and members of the order as such shall be styled and known as Elks. * * * And that lodges be granted permission to introduce harmless and proper deviations from the ritualistic work * * * first designating to the grand exalted ruler the particular character or features which they desire to introduce, all of which must be submitted to and permitted by the grand exalted ruler."

The order having passed through its formative period, with the dawn of the new century it entered upon maturity. Wonderful growth and development attended it and within the order was a feeling of universal peace and fraternity. The hand of charity extended in all directions.

From 1880 until 1909, the total amount expended for charity was $2,946,137, and no records of its earlier bestowals are available. Among the sufferers who felt the hand of charity of Elks were those of the Galveston tidal wave in 1901; the Granville, Miss., flood disaster in 1903; the California earthquake and fire disaster in 1906; the Boyertown, Pa., theater fire; the conflagration at Chelsea, Mass.; the mine disasters in Fairmont-Monogah, W. Va., and at Jacobs Creek, Pa., in 1908.

An index to the rapid growth of the order in the first decade of the twentieth century is shown by the following figures: In 1901 there were 725 lodges, with a membership of 96,479. In 1910 there were in existence 1,206 lodges, with a membership of 322,000. The order spread into the Territories of the United States, when Honolulu Lodge was chartered in 1901, and San Juan, Porto Rico Lodge, was chartered in 1905, and lodges in other Territories followed. The Canadian Elks sought admission to the grand lodge in 1904; but their request was declined.

Other notable achievements made by the order from 1900 to 1910 were the dedication of the Elks' National Home at Bedford City, Va., on May 31, 1903, an amendment to the constitution making it mandatory for the district deputy to visit each subordinate lodge within his jurisdiction at least once a year; a change, in 1908, of the emblem of the order, which made it a combination of the antlers and the dial, showing the hour of 11 o'clock; the adoption in 1907 of the electric star, for use in ritualistic work, and the decision in the same year to celebrate Flag Day each year in each lodge.

THE MONEY IDEA

By H. G. WELLS

PRIMARILY money was a tally for property; it arose out of the needs of barter, but for the purposes of this second discussion money can be considered as primarily wages and salary; as the sure and reasonable reward of labor, the cheque for so much purchasing power. How far it can be, and how far it really is that, we must inquire. Here, at any rate, we can say that it is at present sufficiently that to keep the great world machine of production going. Because of their confidence in this cheque, the workers pour into the shops, mines, fields and factories we have surveyed in our earlier chapters. Destroy that confidence absolutely, and the machinery will stop dead.

* * * *

Our generation has seen in two big communities the practical loss of that confidence, and has some measure of the effect. I wish I could give statistics and photographs of scenes in Berlin during the final slump of the mark in 1922. Berlin was a terrible city then; never had I been before in a city where nearly every human being was visibly dismayed and broken-hearted—except in Petrograd in 1920. The German collapse was due to very complex causes; the Russian state of affairs was mainly due to a frank and deliberate attempt to abolish money. It was to be made utterly worthless by the unlimited printing of paper money, and then it was to be replaced by cards with tear-off coupons like the rationing cards issued in Great Britain during the Great War.

* * * *

EVERY citizen was to receive a card periodically, with tear-off coupon for milk, meat, wine, clothing, transport, fuel, books, furniture, theater, all his needs, and these coupons he was to exchange for these necessities at the community stores. It was an entirely needless and clumsy experiment to make upon a population already sorely distressed. One insurmountable obstacle was that there were practically no goods worth talking about in the stores. There was a shortage even of flour. It had been quite impossible to improvise the organization of supply and distribution upon the new lines, and everyone was attempting evasions of the law against old-fashioned buying and selling.

* * * *

When I was in Russia at that time I found money still had value: ten thousand roubles was considered rather a better tip than a hard-boiled egg—I had provided myself with both forms of money—and there were still individuals who were not in urgent need of an egg, who did not want it to decay on their hands, and preferred the reserve purchasing power of money even though it might be difficult to exercise. Furtive trading was going on in the north in spite of an iron regime of suppression, and in Moscow and at Wayside railway stations there was open selling.

* * * *

THE distinctive quality of money is the freedom of choice it gives its possessors, and this those tickets destroyed altogether. A certain peddling of coupons presently arose between people anxious for more of one thing and less of another, and after a time the complexity of supplying goods to meet coupon demands became so great that the whole experiment was abandoned. What the worker needs, if you would keep him working, is plainly a cheque for "anything money can buy" in return for his services rendered.

* * * *

Our modern economic organization, our whole modern human society, has grown up on the assumption, the colorable pretense at least, that the money distributed in wages does give that, and I cannot conceive of it carrying on now in any other fashion without becoming almost unrecognizably different. Our civilization can as little give up the use of money now, as our bodies can the use of blood. The practical problem is to ensure the best blood possible—to keep out poisons and contagions and avoid anemia.

* * * *

COMPARED with the male gorilla, Homo sapiens never really grows up. In every man a war is continually going on between the gregarious instincts he has retained from immaturity, his innate desire to conform to the opinion about him, to be liked and respected by his fellows, on the one hand, and on the other his egoism, his desire to do the best for himself, to express himself fully and to dominate and prevail over others. This conflict is not so apparent in many of the savage communities as it is in contemporary life. It reveals itself with the development of private property and with opportunities for individual enrichment. Civilized social life is based on the fact that the second, the egoistic system of ideas, can be mastered and modified by and subordinated to the first. Where the community accepts an ethic those individuals who disregard it can be forced to conform. The ethic itself can be changed by education. There has been an immense amount of mere subjugation in the past. In the future, we are going to suggest, education may largely replace subjugation. We may replace the broken and retarded individuality by a directed and self-disciplined individuality.

FRIDAY FEBRUARY 12, 1932 SPORTS

LEWIS WINNER OVER ROEBUCK AFTER 42 MINUTES

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE winter books on the Kentucky Derby report no concerted efforts among the betting public to back Top Flight, the favorite, at the extremely generous odds of 6 to 1. The Whitney filly, far and away the outstanding 2-year-old in the country last year, figures to be no more than an even money shot if she goes to the post on Derby day, but the betting gentry consider that a better than 6-to-1 risk.

The folks, who bet in the winter books at odds often tenfold as great as could be obtained on Derby day, still retain the memory of the failure of Equipoise and Jamestown to start in the 1931 Derby after being held as cofavorites in the winter book. The failure of the two choices literally burned up hundreds of thousand dollars in winter book bets which do not recognize scratches.

Top Flight, the first of her sex ever to rule as winter favorite in the Derby, has already been nominated by Trainer Healy, but a hundred possibilities might keep him from the barrier on Derby day. The training of a thoroughbred is fraught with more hazards than Woosung and the number of winter book favorites who reach the post is discouraging.

The totalizator which cost Joseph Widener $360,000 to install at his Hialeah track is so efficient that it will not prove popular at the wildcat tracks throughout the country, which have been able to show a profit only by the manipulation of the mutuels to suit their convenience.

Odds on the entries are shown instantaneously with the purchase of each mutuel ticket through the totalizator and the betters are able to tell within a tenth of a dollar what price to expect on their choices, win, place or show, without waiting for the results on the pay-off board after the race is run.

Too often in the past, the betters have been the victims of unscrupulous track officials who have dipped their hands into the mutuel containers and withdrawn a pack of tickets on a horse that happens to be leading the field in the stretch run with little chance of losing. It's the public's money that thus goes to the track with no chance of protest against the small odds posted. The totalizator leaves no opportunity for thus manipulating the mutuels and the public gets an honest price.

The complaint is heard that basket ball has been robbed of its interests for the player and spectator alike by the stringent officiating and changes in rules which have eliminated body contact and the rough and ready style of play which characterized the game five years ago.

The continual tooting of whistles in the hands of alert officials undoubtedly has slowed the game beyond reason and placed too high a premium on passing and shooting at the expense of dribbling and defense. The continuity of the game is being continually interrupted to enforce penalties for minor infractions of rules which were countenanced in the more virile days of the sport.

The extent of the inroads of the referee's whistle on the playing time has been gauged by Coach Everett Dean, of Indiana University, with the assistance of two press box watchers. From observations of a long series of games, the following statistics were developed:

There are a total of 108 interruptions in the average basket ball game.

The actual playing time of an entire game is 29 minutes 30 seconds.

The longest playing periods without stops average 2 minutes and 22 seconds.

The shortest period is 1 second.

JOHNSON, YANKS, ILL.

New York, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Word came to the New York Yankees' office today that Henry Johnson, star pitcher, had suffered an attack of appendicitis at Hot Springs, Ark., where he had been indulging in some preliminary training and had been forced to return to his home at Bradenton, Fla.

INDIANS SEEK SCALPS.

GRAYS WOULD PLAY.

The Chevy Chase Grays have a gym available tonight and would like to book a strong unlimited opponent. Teams interested should call Cleveland 5002-J during the day.

Dempsey K.O. Victor Over Christner

2 Left Hooks to Chin Stop Akron Fighter in 3rd Round.

Jack Given Ovation by 10,000; Floors Foe 4 Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey added another knockout to his barnstorming string here tonight over the old Akron rubber puddler, Meyer (K. O.) Christner, who took the count in the closing minutes of the third round of a scheduled four-round bout.

A pair of left hooks to the chin tumbled Christner to the canvas for the fourth time, and he was attempting to get his wabbling legs under him again when the count cut him down for good.

There was a hearty sprinkling of "boos" from the crowd of nearly 10,000 persons during the first round, when the warriors resorted to clinching. At the end, however, the Manassa Mauler was given a great ovation.

A left to the chin knocked Christner down for nine in the first, and a pair of right crosses to the jaw sent him to the canvas for two more nine counts early in the third. But the Akron fighter won the second, shaking Dempsey twice with hefty rights.

Dempsey Strong At Finish.

Dempsey looked tired and old at the end of the second, but he was back with plenty of life in the third, to wind up the bout with old-time eclat.

Jack's bad left eye, cut in a fight at Milwaukee Monday night, gave him considerable trouble as Christner worked on it. Blood trickled from the wound shortly after the action started, but apparently did not greatly hamper Dempsey.

In the ten-round semifinal, Adolf Heuser, the German light heavyweight, was awarded a technical knockout over George Manley, of Denver, in a little more than two and a half minutes of the fifth round. A right to the head and one to the middle put Manley out on his feet after risi g from a count of nine, and his seconds threw in the towel.

In other bouts, Billy Wallace, Cleveland lightweight, knocked out Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis, in 48 seconds of the first round, and Babe Triscaro, Cleveland, former national amateur flyweight champion, knocked out Jackie Power, of Youngstown, in 2 minutes and 57 seconds.

Howard and Lincoln Fives to Play Tonight

The Howard University Bison five will meet the Lincoln Lions tonight in the university gymnasium. The Oxfordians have a veteran team, but Coach Burr is expected to find in his squad men of equal experience.

The Bisons have won five of seven games played this year, losing by close decisions to Hampton and Virginia Seminary, after previously defeating both in contests here. Should Howard defeat Lincoln, the game Monday night with Morgan, which was defeated last week in Baltimore, will have a direct bearing on the Colored Intercollegiate Athletic Association championship.

Columbus Boxers Await Third Test

Springfield's Ring Team to Invade; Tardugno in Feather Bout.

Considerably stronger than at any time previously this season, Columbus University's Boxing Team tomorrow night is to encounter its third test of the season. At 8:30 o'clock, Springfield College's colorful mittmen are to be opposed on the stage of the Strand Theater.

Mike Tardugno, well known to Washingtonians, is to fight in the featherweight spot while John (Reds) O'Brien, a flaming thatched Irishman, has side-tracked both Francis Jahn and Bernie Quick as a heavyweight.

Athletic books good for Columbus' boxing and basket ball program continue on sale at Goldie Ahearn's, Vic's Sport Shop and Spalding's.

C. U. BEATEN BY V. P. I., 35 TO 18

Cards Trailing From Start; Long Shots Miss Range.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Feb. 11.—Catholic University could not cope with the more accurate passing and shooting of Virginia Poly's basket ball team here tonight and lost to the Gobblers, 35 to 18. It was the second win in two days for V. P. I.

The Gobblers penetrated the Cardinal defense for a trio of goals in the opening minutes and were never headed. Two baskets by White, who led the Washingtonians in scoring with four goals from the floor, pulled the visitors within two points of Poly's quintet midway the first half, but the spurt was short lived.

Seamon, Palmer and Hall took short tosses from teammates in rapid fire order and tipped the ball into the net to put Poly on the big end of a 13-to-5 advantage at the half.

Galiher Makes Basket.

Galiher started the second half assault by the visitors with a goal just after the tip off, but Roy Tibbs, midget Gobbler forward, who replaced Joe Bosley, dribbled through to retaliate with a neat one-hand toss. Successive shots by Seamon, Palmer and Hall boosted Polytech to a 21-to-7 lead and they coasted down the stretch.

Poly's quintet was working like a machine tonight and the home team seldom shot until the ball was close in. The Cardinals, on the other hand, seldom attempted to penetrate the Gobbler defense, resorting almost wholly to long shots. They missed many shots while V. P. I. guards snatched the rebounds and time after time carried the battle down court to vantage points beneath the Cardinal basket. Every Poly regular had a hand in the scoring in the second half.

Baxter and Creileski In Kensington Feature

With Jack Baxter and Stan Creileski headlining the card, a program of seven boxing bouts and one wrestling match has been arranged for next Wednesday night at the Kensington Armory. Proceeds derived from the show will be turned over to the athletic fund of the Howitzer Company, Maryland National Guard.

Hubert Barber and Tom Clayton will be opponents in the wrestling match. A brisk sale of tickets has been reported from Vic's and the Fairway Sport Shops. They are also on sale at the Silver Spring and Kensington bowling alleys.

Ben Franklin Quintet Prepared for Loyola

Rounding into high gear as the result of nightly workouts, Benjamin Franklin University's basket tossers today were hopeful of attaining their peak tomorrow night when Baltimore Loyola's courtmen are entertained at Tech High's gym.

Conceded little better than an outside chance of bagging this 8:30 o'clock fracas, the Accountants nevertheless are pointing for the highly improbable.

PALACE VS. VIRGINIANS.

The Palace A. C. will stack up against the Virginians tonight at 8:30 o'clock in the Washington and Lee High School gym. Both teams have good records for the year and a close game is expected.

4-Man Sleds Are Delayed By Thaw

Races Now Scheduled Tomorrow; Freeze Hope of Teams.

U. S. Leads Nations With Four Titles; Canada Second.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 11 (A. P.).—Just when things were running smoothly, controversies and arguments forgotten, and bobs were staying on the back-breaking curves of the Mount Van Hoevenberg slide, along came rain to disrupt the 1932 winter Olympics today as the games were in sight of the finish line.

The sudden softening of the atmosphere, a steady fall of rain that slowed at times to a drizzle, started early this morning and within a few hours had washed so much snow from the rockety bobsled run that the first two of the four heats for the four-man championship were postponed.

May Have to Wait Until Sunday.

Late last night it was decided that the run would not be in condition for tomorrow, and that Saturday will offer the first possible chance for competition and then only if the temperature takes a sudden drop. If the sledders are forced to wait until Sunday, all four heats will be raced that day.

The slide, slick and slippery, and sheer ice, was nothing more today than an invitation to commit suicide.

Wisely Erwin Hachman, of Germany, and Albert Meyer, of Belgium, who took over the slide in the name of international bobsled committee when argument and bitter feeling broke out between foreign and American drivers almost two weeks ago over practice arrangements, decided that there was no need to tempt fate.

Already, in eight days of competition, eight finals have been decided, four of them speed skating championships, all of which the United States won, and another two-man bobsled title which Hubert Stevens snatched yesterday with two final breath-taking bursts down the mountainside to set records never before thought possible for that event.

United States Leads With Four Titles.

The Karl Schaefer, of Austria, won the men's figure skating championship; Sonja Henie, of Norway, outclassed the field in the women's event, and the Swedes, Norwegians and Finns dominated the 18-kilometer ski race, with Sven Utterstrom, of Sweden, deposing Johann Grottumsbraaten, of Norway, as champion yesterday.

As a result, the United States, making the greatest showing of any nation in the history of the games, leads the field with five individual championships and 76 points in the unofficial score going into the closing championship events, the ski jump, pair figure skating tomorrow and the finals of the four-man bobs, 50 kilometers cross-country ski race, and Olympic hockey competition Saturday.

Canada has made the second best showing, with 36 points, and Norway follows with 27, Sweden 22, Austria 15, Finland 10, Switzerland 5, Germany 4, Roumania 3, Italy 1 and Belgium 1. There seems little probability that any of these nations can overcome the American advantage, with the United States all but conceded victory in at least one more event, the four-man bob championships.

Belgian Bobsled Withdraws.

The field in the bobsled climax was reduced to eight teams of five nations today with the withdrawal of Max Houbens, of Belgium, from the race because of an injury to his brakeman, Louis Van Hegge, who turned over on the slide with Houbens in a practice run last week.

Houbens and Van Hegge drove in the two-man races yesterday, but his brakeman's shoulder, injured in the earlier crash, was so swollen and sore today that he had to withdraw. Since the Belgians have no other experienced brakeman, and the fellow who applies the steel jaws to the track when danger looms, is next to the driver in importance to the team, Houbens was obliged to withdraw his sled.

Pitt Appears to Have Struck Stride.

Pitt encountered several setbacks early in the season when it took a lenghty trip out to the Coast and through the South. The Smoky City crew since, however, has hit a winning stride. Three of the regulars of last year's Pittsburgh quintet, which won 20 out of 24 games played, will appear tonight. They are William "Doc" Kowallis and Tim Lawry, forwards, and Don Smith, guard. The first two mentioned are deadly accurate on attack.

Maryland University's double-header of basket ball and boxing begins at 7:45 o'clock, when the Old Line basket snipers, seeking their eleventh successive victory, oppose the Green Terrors, from Western Maryland. The dual boxing meet following the court engagement will start at about 9:15.

Maryland Five Favorite.

Maryland rates the choice to win in basket ball, having played a far superior brand of game thus far than the Westminster outfit.

In boxing, the Old Liners will try for their first win of the season and should succeed unless St. John's has improved greatly since last year. Three newcomers will show their wares in the ring for Maryland—namely, Estras Gruver, bantamweight; Harry Carroll, feather, and Vic Wingate, who is fighting in the intermediate class. St. John's agreed to a bout in the intermediate class, as Maryland has no heavyweight available.

Warner Accepts Long Stanford Contract

Palo Alto, Calif., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Glenn S. "Pop" Warner, Stanford University football coach, has been offered and will accept a five-year renewal of appointment. All negotiations must be approved by the board of trustees, but Chairman Richard W. Barrett, of the athletic board, said today arrangements satisfactory to all parties had been completed

"I like it out here and I'm glad that I will be able to continue," Warner said. "This will end all the talk about my going East."

Stanford's athletic code precludes issuance of contracts to coaches. They receive a letter of appointment from the president following mutual agreement upon salary. It is understood Warner has received $15,000 a year.

G. U. QUINTET PLAYS PITT TONIGHT

Tech's Gym Is Scene; Maryland Stages 2-Sport Card.

FOLLOWERS of local college sport are offered outstanding attractions in two gymnasiums tonight. At Tech High Georgetown University will meet Pittsburgh University in basket ball, and at Ritchie Coliseum Maryland University will entertain Western Maryland in basket ball and St. John's of Annapolis in boxing.

Georgetown and Pitt, which begin battle at 8:30 o'clock, should stage one of the best court tilts of the year hereabouts. Georgetown has been improving of late, while Pitt has done likewise and observers expect that both clubs will reach their peak here.

It is possible that Georgetown will play minus the services of Joe O'Neill, husky guard, who figured sensationally in the Hoyas' defeat of West Virginia last Monday night. O'Neill has been meeting classroom difficulties. In the event he does not appear, Jack Crowley will move back into his position from a forward berth and McLoughlin, of the reserves, will get the call at forward. Coach Mesmer inserted McLoughlin in the line-up yesterday in the Hoyas' final drill.

Olympic Ski Title Kept by Norway

Grottumsbraaten Is First to Successfully Defend 1928 Men's Crown.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Johann Grottumsbraaten, of Norway, became the first 1928 men's Olympic champion to defend his title successfully in the 1932 Olympic games when he defeated a field of 33 entries from 10 nations today in the combined 18 kilometers ski run and ski jump.

Grottumsbraaten also became the first of the famed Norwegian skaters and skiiers to win a 1932 battle, although Sonja Henie, queen of women figure skaters, successfully defended her title against fifteen international challengers last night. Previously Bernt Evensen, 500 meters champion, and Ivar Ballangrud, 5,000 meters title holder, lost their crowns to the sensational Americans, Jack Shea and Irving Jaffee.

G rottumsbraaten was awarded the championship after a half dozen judges for three hours had debated the results of the 18-kilometers division, raced yesterday, and the ski jump, waged today in the rain on the loft intervals Olympic jump.

Hans Vinjarenven, of Norway, set a record for the hill with a jump of 204 feet 7¼ inches.

The first ten finishers in the combined 18 kilometers and ski jump, with time, disance and points, follows:

1—Johann Grottumsbraaten, Norway, 18 kilometers. Time, 1:27:13. Jumps, 168, 161 feet. Points, 446.
2—Ole Stenen, Norway. Time, 1:28:05. Jumps, 153, 168 feet. Points, 436.6.
3—Hans Vinjarenren, Norway. Time, 1:32:40. Jumps, 172, 204 feet. Points, 434.6.
4—Sverre Kolteru, Norway. Time, 1:34:36. Jumps, 177, 182 feet. Points, 418.7.
5—Ivan Sven Eriksson, Sweden. Time, 1:39:32. Jumps, 197, 182 feet. Points, 412.3.
8—Franciesek Simunek, Czechoslovakia. Time, 1:39:58. Jumps, 160, 165 feet. Points, 375.3.
9—Rolf Monsen, United States. Time, 1:42:36. Jumps, 173, 166 feet. Points, 369.9.

SAINT JOHN'S FIVE BEATS EASTERN

Scholastic Champions Bow, 26 to 21, in Court Thriller.

FIGHTING tooth and nail against seemingly insurmountable odds, St. John's scored its most brilliant victory of the year by taking the champion Eastern High School quintet into camp by a score of 26-21 before a capacity crowd on its home floor yesterday. The game fairly bristled with action from start to finish. The triumph, the Cadets' second over a public school team this year, avenged a previous extra-period defeat, inflicted by Eastern in its own bailiwick earlier in the season.

Eastern played without the services of Al Waters and Jack Bayliss, who were forced to idle because of injuries. But it is doubtful whether these worthies could have staved off their team's defeat, so well did St. John's acquit itself. Davis and Phillips, who replaced the above-mentioned players, performed creditably for the losers.

Mike Scanlon Stars For Saints.

Mike Scanlon, chunky and muscular bit of humanity, a veritable dynamo, was the spearhead of the Cadets' attack. His shots poured through the hoop in endless succession, 14 points in all being credited to him.

Although Scanlon was the most prolific point getter of the Saints, the sterling support accorded him by his mates must not be overlooked. Dwarfed by the superior heights of their opponents, the Johnnies utilized their speed to its fullest extent. They were here, there, and everywhere, popping up in the most unexpected places to harrass their already uncomfortable guests. Neither team

7,000 Cheer And Jeer Veteran

Grobmeier, Stein and Kley Among Those to Triumph.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THERE have been, ladies and gents, wrestling shows and wrestling shows, but last night's wrestling show was a wrestling show fought with such intensity that it looked like a wrestling show to end all wrestling shows. Although the venerable old Ed "Strangler" Lewis, torn-eared veteran of 10,000 mat wars, was the announced attraction, the show was stolen outright by none other than our old pal and respected schoolmate, Referee Cyclone Burns.

With close to 7,000 fans in the audience, Lewis threw Tiny Roebuck, one of the few all-American football players who ever went to work, in 42 minutes. The match was finished in a manner unlike any match ever promulgated on the Auditorium mat. This is about what it looked like, through the Corona-Corona and Pittsburgh Stogie smoke:

Lewis, after a series of punishing holds on Roebuck's 250-pound chassis, picked the huge Indian up and began to weave him around in the cloudy air. Instead of dumping him, like all good runners-up in wrestling matches expect to be dumped, Lewis bore the helpless and hapless Roebuck over to the side of the ropes, adjacent to the $3 customers and began heave-ho'ing prior to throwing him in the comfortable lap of some matron in the fifth row.

The Real Big Scene.

Entrez Monsewer Burns! The N. B. C. rassle overseer, threw his bulk against Lewis and shrieked through the din that Lewis must not do what he looked like he wanted to—namely strew Chief Roebuck's boy over the clientele. Lewis heeded, but Tiny was beginning to wiggle aloft and Lewis spun him around, high in the air, like a great derrick swinging a load of brass safes. Roebuck's fireplug legs swept around toward the top of M. Burns' very bald and shining pate, and just when it looked like a bad accident, M. Burns did a perfect back dive, while Roebuck's legs thundered overhead.

In quick succession M. Burns landed calump on his head, without benefit of breaking the fall with his arms; Roebuck wrenched himself free and flopped on Lewis, who appeared down. While Lewis' shoulders lay on the mat, Burns lay stunned on the sidelines. Lewis wiggled free, rolled Tiny over and sat on him. Burns recuperated, sidled across the damp mat on his ball-bearing tummy and counted Roebuck out—and then seemed to faint himself.

He got up, seemingly not quite his stern self, reeled around the ring drunkenly, looked like he was trying to figure out who won, and did not know which of the three men in the ring he was to award the bout to. But he picked the right one, and the mountainous crowd alternately booed and cheered the decision.

Lewis Comfortable In Holds.

Lewis and Roebuck presented a ringingly clear interpretation of what was and what is in wrestling. Lewis, who looks like a cross between Dick Daviscourt, Rudy Dusek and Mr. Hyde, was content to lie around, comfortably pitched on his back, and apply pressure to the wrist of Roebuck until the Indian's big ham of a hand grew limp and white and beady with excrutiating pain.

Roebuck dove and charged and dispensed innumerable rabbit punches, solid kicks to the Lewisonian jawbone, and elbow jabs that had the former champion more out of the ring than in. Roebuck was the aggressor throughout, but it was like trying to gnaw a hole through a building brick with a toothache. Roebuck, after a half hour or so, lapsed into Lewis' style of sitting around, and really hurting each other, but a crowd wearied of their honest efforts and demanded diving, handstands and ear skids—and got 'em, kid, got 'em.

For sheer basedrum ovations nothing approached the wild huzzahing which greeted a 6-foot-4, iron-rib lamppost named Fred Grobmeier, who mangled John Maxos, and barrel-chested Greek, in 30 minutes in the semifinal.

Grobmeier found Maxos a huge but shifty target until the last few minutes of the bout, when he found an opening and wrapped yards and yards of legs around Maxos' middle and squeezed every vestige of visible life out of him. Maxos had to be carried to his dressing room, but recovered before the night was done.

Smart Aleck Fritz Kley, with his full splits and habit of walking out of stern-looking holds with pomp and circumstance, was a crowd pleaser as he swept Jean LeDoux into defeat after eight minutes. In the two other bouts, Sammy Stein tackled Ivan Salesniak, a substitute for Alex Aberg, in 14 minutes, and Matros Kirilenko destroyed Alois Kautzki after 19 minutes of applied foul play.

Senator Long Steals Golf Show With Pair of 64s

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Plying a dub's game in the very best tradition, Senator Huey P. Long stole the spotlight from a score of the Nation's golf stars today in a pro-amateur event at the Metairie Golf Club that was played as a preliminary to the $5,000 open tournament starting there tomorrow.

The stars went almost unnoticed as the gallery of cash customers, newspaper reporters and photographers trailed behind the big boss of Louisiana politics to see him shoot a neat brace of 64s for an 18-hole total of 128, which qualified him for the booby prize, had there been one.

Long paired in the pro-amateur with Walter Hagen, old master of the clubs, against Seymour Weiss, lately a colonel on Long's gubernatorial staff, and Joe Kirkwood, the trick-shot artist. It was a best-ball affair, and Long and Hagen defeated their opponents 4 and 2, thanks to Hagen's card of 77, just five above par, scored under a running fire of conversation from the senator.

Kirkwood had an off day with a card of 81. Weiss shot a 98.

Wearing a light green golf outfit and with his shirt open at the collar, Long was in high good humor for the match, even refusing to allow a miss on the first tee to upset him. He called it a practice swing.

"All I need is a little help from Mr. Hagen, and the match is won," he said. At the end of the first nine, when Hagen was even with par, he admitted, however, that "Walter is doing pretty good by himself."

"Inferior partners always irritate me," the senator remarked, lighting a large black cigar at the eighth—a water hole—and hooking two balls into the creek.

Coming down the seventh fairway, the senator did considerable divot-digging, and Hagen stepped forward and made a low-voiced suggestion about the way he was holding his club.

"Don't you think you had better let me play this ball?" Long shot back and Hagen backed away and doubled up with laughter that spread in a roar through the gallery.

The senator posed continuously for photographs between shots, and once, as the golf course touched on a field, leaned over a barbed-wire fence to shake hands with a farmer who shouted, "Hello, Huey."

Several political friends trailing the party and smoking fat cigars offered golfing advice from time to time, but the senator waved them away.

At the eighteenth tee it was agreed the high aggregate would pay the caddy fees. The honor fell to the senator, who drove into the woods, recovered into a ditch, struck a tree on his next shot, and had to walk back a hundred yards to find the ball.

THE CREAM OF THE CROP

in the high school basket ball series will be selected in The Post on Sunday by Bob Considine, of The Post sports staff, who has covered every game of the recent series and observed the performances of each player from the start of the season with an eye to his all-high qualifications.

The Post's all-high article makes an exhaustive analysis of the play of the outstanding performers in the series and the reasons for the selections and will be accompanied by pictures of the five players selected.

Eastern and Tech Fives Lose Stars for Next Year

WITH the publication of The Post's all-high team standing on Sunday and the diminution of massed interest in high school games, little remains on the scholastic calendar of marked importance save the District A. A. U. basket ball tournament, which will feature many of the high school players.

And so the collective mind of the followers of high school basket ball turns readily to next season's series prospects. Two teams who played but secondary parts in the last series, Central and Business, loom large on the 1933 horizon.

Central will go into next year's series with the identical team which manned the boards this year, Burke, Smith, Moulton, Keyser, Swift and Nau. Business will have back in the fold Shore, Tipton, Sherman and Cavanaugh, and will be notably buttressed by Ralph Beach, center for Tech during the 1931 series.

Tech Loses Three Stars.

Tech will lose Russell, Reed and Thomas and the champion Eastern High bunch will be riddled by the losses of Lieb, Kane, Phillips and Courtney. Western loses Latona Payne and Buscher.

Next season will mark the opening operations of Eastern's new coaching arrangement, which has shifted Chief Guyon to football and brought Mike Kelley to basket ball. The win of the series just past was coming to Guyon who has placed fine teams in the field every year, but failed to win the series outright since 1924. It was a noble final gesture on the part of the happy old warrior.

The prep school teams once more failed to draw the crowds they deserve, and the fault again was largely their own. Certainly, there was not a marked lack of caliber in the prep-peries this year. St. John's beat Eastern and Tech, winner and runner-up in the public high series, and was in turn beaten by Georgetown Prep. Friends beat St. Alban's, and Gonzaga, Landon, Emerson and Devitt put reasonably good clubs in the field.

League Only Hope of Prep Schools.

Here are eight teams operating in virtually eight different directions. A league is their only hope. Their games could be played at Tech High School at night and probably draw as well as the high school series does in the afternoons.

The item which stands in the way of forming such a league is the ingrained conviction of most of the coaches that Devitt and Emerson should not be included, a virtually

WORKMAN'S FINE RIDE HELPS VANDERPOOL WIN AT HIALEAH

Moore's Colt Half-Length Victor

Panetian, Favorite, Extended to Beat Out Don Leon.

Three-Furlong Baby Race to Ipral at $71 Mutuel.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—With the switch in riders from Tommy Malley to Sonny Workman, Vanderpool, under stronger handling, got back into his winning stride in the featured Thomas A. Edison Handicap of 6 furlongs before a large crowd, including Gov. Doyle Carlton, here today.

The son of Campfire—Bramble Rose carried William M. Moore's silks home by a half length in the good time of 1:11 2-5, and returned $5.90 for $2. G. D. Widener's Panetian, the favorite, was second, driving hard to beat Don Leon by another half length for the place award.

Workman Puts up Great Ride.

Workman rode Vanderpool faultlessly. The Washington boy sent his mount to the front end in the run for positions and nursed him along with a slight advantage on the inside. Panetian forced the pace going easily to the head of the stretch, where Leischman made his move. The others were well up with the exception of Ululiu, the trailer, which broke slowly and was outrun. Saving ground turning for home, Workman held Vanderpool together nicely in the drive to the wire. Don Leon closed some ground from the far turn home and finished well.

Two-year-olds raced over the three furlongs distance for the first time this season in the second event and Ipral, one of the outsiders, found the additional distance to his liking. The colt beat Dry Ridge by a nose to return $71 for $2. Swagger Stick, favorite, lost second money by a neck.

It was a good start and Norman was first to show, but Dry Ridge rushed up very fast in the first furlong and opened up daylight, while Ipral and Swagger Stick gave hot chase. Ipral gradually wore down the pacemaker in a hair-raising drive, while Swagger Stick was not quite good enough. The time was 0:35 3-5.

New Orleans, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Crystal Prince, 3-year-old gelding from P. C. Thompson's stable, won his second race of the winter season when he carried off the honors in the Arcadian Purse, decided over 6 furlongs at the Fair Grounds today.

unfounded fear that has had nothing to back it up in nearly half a decade. Devitt and Emerson, with different scholastic requirements, attracts boys who have graduated from high school here, in some instances. But neither has been able to put a good team on the floor in recent years, or at least one that would have easily conquered its rivals.

Thursday, February 11, 1932.

WEATHER, CLEAR. TRACK, FAST.

FIRST RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. Flamingo Purse. For maiden 3-year-old fillies. Start bad. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:17. Off at 2:21. Winner, Wheatley Stable's b. f. (3), by Stimulus—Swizzlestick. Trained by G. C. Tappen. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $100. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:13 3-5.

NATIVE WIT	112	3	7	Wheeled				M. Garner	1.05

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EXHILARATE, $17.80, $6.40, $3.20; MOVE ALONG, $8.30, $3.50; KITTY BRUCE, $2.50.

EXHILARATE gaved ground rounding the far turn, where she slipped through next to the rail, went to the front with a rush at top of stretch, but tired. MOVE ALONG, on outside most of the trip, finished stoutly last furlong. KITTY BRUCE ran in spots. LADY ARA showed speed, but quit when real test came. NATIVE WIT wheeled and bolted to outside fence when break came and DELUDE refused to break.

SECOND RACE—Three furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:47. Off at 2:50. Winner, Fred Kahn's b. c. (2), by Dozer—Our Carrie. Trained by J. Kahn. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $100. Time, 0:35 3-5.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IPRAL, $71.00, $17.90, $6.70; DRY RIDGE, $3.40, $2.90; SWAGGER STICK, $2.90.

IPRAL, breaking rapidly and a keen factor from the start, responded full of courage and, wearing DRY RIDGE down, hung on well under punishment. DRY RIDGE went to the front soon after the break and looked to have his field beaten a furlong from home, but tired at end. SWAGGER STICK was going strongest at end and was gradually wearing leaders down. ROME VENNIE swerved to inside and collided with DOME at start.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:18½. Off at 3:19. Winner, J. Edwards' gr. h. (5), by Stefan the Great—Polyantha. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $100. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:12 3-5, 1:25 2-5.

CAPTAIN ED	110	8	6	6h	5h	6½	7h	7h	Hanford	80
WRACK ROYAL	115	4	8	8	8	8	8	8	Lesland	79.50

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POLYGAMOUS, $6.30, $5.30, $4.80; BROOKSIE, $4.60, $3.50; EVER FAITHFUL, $10.10.

POLYGAMOUS raced in hand until straightened out in home stretch, went to the front when called on and drew away into an easy lead. BROOKSIE, hustled to the front soon after the break, hung on longer than usual. EVER FAITHFUL was a forward contender all the way. ROCKTOR bumped CAPTAIN ED and carried him out at top of home stretch. Latter showed a dull performance.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:47. Off at 3:48. Winner, D. Homewood's ch. m. (5), by Ladkin—Star Class. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $100. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:47 1-5, 1:12 3-5, 1:39 1-5.

STAR LASSIE	115½	4	6	3½	3½	3½	1½	1¾	Workman	$0.75

MAY ALTON	109	2	3	6	6	6	5h	6	S. Renick	321.85

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STAR LASSIE, $3.50, $2.50, $2.40; ESSIE, $3.30, $3 00; KENSINGTON, $4.50.

STAR LASSIE trailed the leaders until rounding the far turn and assumed an easy lead at top of home stretch, was hustled along a bit at end to stall off challenge of ESSIE. Latter, bothered some at top of stretch and again in final drive, was taken sharply down to inside a sixteenth from the end and closed stoutly. KENSINGTON finished out in the middle of the track. CHICAGO GIRL and MY SIS quit.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,500. Thomas A. Edison Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:16. Off at 4:21. Winner, W. M. Moore's br. c. (4), by Campfire—Bramble Rose. Trained by D. R. McDaniels. Value to winner, $1,100; second, $300; third, $100. Time, 0:23, 0:45 4-5, 1:11 3-5.

VANDERPOOL	124	1	4	1½	1½	1½	1½	Workman	$1.95
PANETIAN	116	5	5	2h	2h	2½	2½	Leischman	1.10

BACK LOG	107	2	1	5½	5h	6	6	Reilly	86.50

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VANDERPOOL, $5.90, $2.80, $2.40; PANETIAN, $3.00, $2.30; DON LEON, $2.90.

VANDERPOOL responded the rail all the way, saving ground at all of the turns. He responded with rare gameness to a drive and held PANETIAN safe in stretch run. PANETIAN raced on the outside of the winner from the break. He bore out a bit at top of home stretch. DON LEON, taken back off the pace, finished going the strongest of lot out in middle of the track.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:48. Off at 4:49. Winner, Rudolph Spreckles' b. h. (5), by Guy Fortune—Ethel Vale. Trained by F. E. Kraft. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $100. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:46 2-5, 1:11 3-5, 1:24 3-5.

JACK CAMPBELL	118	4	3	2½	2½	2½	1½	Kelsay	$2.35
DOUBLE HEART	116	5	5	1h	1½	1½	2½	Montgomery	.60
CLEAN PLAY	113	3	2	3½	3½	3½	3h	D. Smith	6.55
FERVID	111	2	4	4½	4h	4h	4½	Leischman	13.90
DUNROCK	106½	1	5	5	5	5	5	Edwards	110.60

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JACK CAMPBELL, $6.70, $2.30, $2.10; DOUBLE HEART, $2.10, $2.10; CLEAN PLAY, $2.10.

Kelsay nursed JACK CAMPBELL along in early stages and waited until straightened out in the home stretch before making his effort, responded with a good effort when called upon. DOUBLE HEART hustled along from the break, saved ground at stretch turn, but tired when challenged. CLEAN PLAY was a forward contender all the way. FERVID was some strong at end.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 5:17. Off at 5:18½. Winner, J. Spencer's br. g. (4), by Harpenden—Nulli Secundis. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $100. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:13, 1:39 1-5, 1:52 2-5.

PLAYBILL	114	8	7	9h	9½	10	10	10	Rennie	152.85

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SKRIP, $9.00, $5.20, $3.90; MR. DICK, $39.20, $13.90; OATEN, $5.70.

SKRIP broke well, rushed up to second place around first bend, was rated under strong restraint behind STRETCHER to far turn, then dashed to the front and held race safe to the finish under smooth handling. MR. DICK showed good speed, but was sharply knocked back on the inside of STRETCHER and SKRIP at the far turn, came around STRETCHER on bend and closed well, but could not seriously menace the winner. OATEN gradually improved position and closed gamely. MONTANARO ran a dull race, closing some ground after being outrun to stretch.

JUST as Western farmers in the United States endeavored to solve the problem of overproduction of corn by using part of the surplus as fuel, Brazil has taken to producing gas from surplus coffee. It was discovered that not only did the coffee berries yield a good combustible gas, but the gas so obtained, is much better than gas manufactured from coal.

Bertram Robinson reports that W. G. S. O'Shields, auditor of Spartanburg County, S. C., writes with both hands on two different subjects simultaneously, without apparent effort. Mr. O'Shields is 65, and has been performing his feat for 30 years. But, oddly enough, he knows not how he does it.

Recently, 5-year-old Robert Young, of Chicago, accidentally emulated Charley Chaplin's famous whistling act. Young Robert swallowed a tin whistle which lodged in his lungs. For five days with his every breath, the whistle would blow. A successful operation was performed when all other efforts failed to dislodge the whistle.

ALEXANDRIA RING CARD NAMED

Burns Faces Jallos in Semifinal to Kocsis-Landers Match.

ARRANGEMENTS were completed yesterday for next Tuesday's Day Nursery benefit fight show in Portner's Arena, Alexandria, when the management matched Bobby Burns and Louie Jallos, lightweights, in an eight-round semifinal bout, and secured some new talent for a pair of preliminaries.

The program now consists of 32 rounds, featured by the eight-rounder between Antol Kocsis, world's fifth ranking bantamweight, and Billy Landers, popular Norfolk battler.

In addition to the Burns-Jallos contest, the committee in charge yesterday matched Young Van, local middleweight, with Johnny Edwards, Warrenton, Va., middleweight, and Bingo Brodie, Goldie Ahearn's clouting middleweight, against Johnny Brock, of Baltimore. With the exception of Brodie, who has won two bouts and secured a draw in three previous performances, these boys are newcomers to the ring sport in this vicinity.

Jallos Stablemate Of Kocsis.

Jallos also is new to this part of fistiana, but Burns, whom the management signed instead of Buster Brown, has shown at Portner's twice in the last two months. Jallos is a stablemate of Kocsis, both being under the management of Jimmy Bronson, of New York.

Much interest is being centered in the Kocsis-Landers bout in which the popular Landers will be meeting a high-ranking opponent for the second time within a month. Landers fought Midget Wolgast, world's flyweight champion, on January 12, at Portner's, and received a boxing lesson from the king of the little fellows. In Kocsis, the Norfolk blond encounters a type of fighter like himself, a hard puncher.

Though on the fact of things it seems that Landers has little chance to defeat the foreigner, actually he will be a real threat. Landers packs a lot of power in his punches and in a slugging exchange is likely to knock his opponent cold. Kocsis is not the masterful boxer that is Wolgast, although he knows a great deal more about the finer points of the game than does Landers. The goulash standard-bearer, however, prefers to wade in for slam-bang stuff rather than execute the fancier tactics.

Bliss Five Entertains Devil Dogs Tonight

The Bliss Electrical School quintet will endeavor to avenge its only defeat of the current basket ball season tonight when it plays the Quantico Marine five in Silver Spring Armory at 8:30 o'clock. To date the Bliss Team has won ten games and lost but one and is leading the Washington Collegiate Conference race with four victories and no defeats.

In a preliminary contest the Eagles Girls, District A. A. U. champions in their class, will meet the Rockville Girls, who hold a victory over the Eagles this year. Preceding this game, starting at 6:30 o'clock, the Bliss Reserves will tackle the Swann's Service five.

ENGINEERS TO PLAY.

BARBECUE BOYS WIN.

The Dixiana Barbecue quintet defeated the Swann Service five by an 18-12 score at Kenilworth last night. For games with the winners, call Manager Andrusia at Atlantic 8781 after 7 p. m.

A. A. U. REGISTRATION URGED

February 23 Is Closing Date

Card Renewal Necessary for Tourney Eligibility.

District Title Court Event Promises to Be Best Ever.

As the time draws near to the closing date for entries in the gigantic District A. A. U. basket ball tournament, officials of the tournament have issued a city-wide call to players to make application for a renewal of their amateur cards before the curtain rings down February 23.

There will be no time to enter after that, for plans for the big tournament, in which seven District championships are decided, will absorb the entire attention of those whose duties it is to make it, each year, the biggest event of its kind held in the United States East of Chicago.

Registration Free For Those Under 16.

Blanks for registration as amateurs, without which no one can enter the tournament, may be secured at either the sports department of The Post, sponsor of the tournament since its inception six years ago, or the Boys Club. There will be a 25-cent charge for registration except to boys and girls under 16.

A new ordinance this year calls for each player in the tournament to show his amateur card when entering Tech High Gym during the tournament. The boys will be weighed in February 25 and 26 at the Boys Club.

A meeting of the managers of girl teams will be held shortly to decide upon the method of putting the ball in play this year. Last year, and in previous years, the ball was tossed in the middle, in customary fashion, but since that time the national women's A. A. U. basket ball committee has leaned toward the method of starting play by throwing the ball in from the sideline. The District A. A. U. women's tournament, both senior and junior, will abide by the manner to which most of the teams are acquainted.

St. John's Victors' Stock On Boom.

As a result of yesterday's victory over Eastern, and last Saturday's setback of the Catholic University freshmen, the St. John's Victors, 145-pound team, begins to loom as something of a dark horse in that strong sector. They have played this year for St. John's in high school circles, but must enter the tournament without John McCarthy, big center, and Mike Scanlon, sterling guard.

Alexandria High Five Plays Hopewell Tonight

Alexandria, Va., Feb. 11.—Hopewell High School courtmen, leaders in southern Virginia basket ball circles, will be here tomorrow for a championship game with the Alexandria High School basketers in Armory Hall.

The Powder City tossers have defeated Woodrow Wilson High, of Portsmouth; McGuire's, of Richmond, and Petersburg High in games so far this season. They are making a determined bid to annex the State title and hope to wrest honors here Friday night.

Potomac State Finds Strayer Five Easy

Special to The Washington Post.

Keyser, W. Va., Feb. 11.—Potomac State easily defeated Strayers, of Washington, here tonight in an interesting game, 49 to 29. Coach Parish, of Potomac State, used his second-string men at the end of the first and second half.

Councillor, for Strayer's, did great work in his long shots, and Klein made a fine impression at guard. The game drew a big crowd.

MARYLAND U. CUBS BEAT CENTRAL

THE Maryland University Freshman Basket Ball Team resumed its winning ways yesterday afternoon to the discomfiture of Central High's favored team by the score of 26-22, in an exciting tilt at College Park.

With its full regalia of strength on hand for the first time in a month, Maryland's Yearlings hopped into an early lead and Central never was quite able to overcome it, although it outscored Maryland in the final period, 2 to 1.

Old Line Cubs Always In Front.

Maryland led by 16-10 at the half and 21-12 at the third quarter. Central's offensive began functioning on all cylinders in the final period, but the whistle cut short the drive.

Noonan Leads G.W. Cubs To Triumph, 42 to 23

"Big Bill" Noonan, lanky guard, led both teams in scoring as the George Washington Freshman quintet trounced Wilson Teachers College by a score of 42-23 last night. Noonan scored a total of 21 points, almost enough to win the game single handedly. Wilson clung tenaciously to its opponent throughout the first half, which ended with the Freshmen on the long end of a 19-12 score. The Colonials stepped out in the second half, however, and won handily.

K. OF C. WINS TWENTIETH.

The Knights of Columbus unlimited quintet turned in its twentieth victory of the season last night, winning from the Huron A. C., of Baltimore, by a 36-19 score on their home court. Tom Nolan, former Gonzaga star, and "Eggie" Anderson topped the winners in scoring with 12 points each.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

THE Rendezvous team of the Ladies District League, will play host to an all-star aggregation of Baltimore women in a match scheduled for 3 o'clock at Convention Hall today. The ladies will roll a team match and several singles and doubles matches. Lorraine Gulli, who is regarded as a fair bowler in local circles, will tangle with Lotta Janowitz, United States individual champion, and Catherine Ford will meet Helen Snyder in the singles. Lucille Young and Peggy Babcock will uphold the Washington banner against Viola Racomb and Shirley Wigley in one of the doubles engagements.

Five men wanted! Must be able to roll a combined score of better than 1,575 in the District League. Apply to the manager of the Petworth team. Five more are also wanted by Lonnie Krauss for his Columbia representatives, who dropped two games to the above-mentioned team. "Bromo" Seltzer's 123 game, and Irving Billheimer's 337 set were hight.

The Pack Train, one of those teams with the funny names, rumbled across the stage in the A. G. O. Ladies loop at Columbia last night, took a couple of games from the Firing Squad, which apparently left its ammunition at home, and rumbled off again. The Mine Planters exploded the hopes of the Military Police with a three-game win, and the Pursuit Group overtook Bombardment for a 2-1 victory. The Butchers' knives were rather dull and Signal Battalion copped the larger portion of a 2-1 decision. Miss Stewart's 110 game and 290 set were high for the individual prizes. Pursuit Group took the team awards with its 471 and 1,334.

Brad Mandley's 162 game and 381 total was high in the Hyattsville-Fountain Ham, District League match rolled at Lucky Strike, which the former won, 2-1. Oscar Hiser's 132 game and his brother Henry's 361 set topped Hyattsville.

Dixon, of Buick, rolled 155 and 379, to lead the individual scoring in the Automotive League at Lucky Strike. His team won two from Pohanka. L. P. Steuart had a game of 594 and set of 1,672 and a 3-game win over H. B. Leary to its credit. Stanley Horner shut out Skinker Motors.

The all-time team game record of the Recreation League was tumbled out of the record books at the G street alleys last night, and a new mark of 665 was marked down in its stead by a hot-handed Rex team. The old mark of 646, was established by the District Garage team in 1928. Joe Pricci was high for Rex with a 395 set, which included a high game of 150. Incidentally, Rex took the odd one from Sims Music. Joe Mulvey, of Union Terminal Market, was high man of the evening. Joe splintered the maples for a set of 414, and a game of 168 as his team whitewashed Cook's Bakery. The Bakers dropped a pair of close ones, and then lost the third by a wide margin. In the other matches the Blue Flames forfeited to the Fox Theater, the Dodgers took two from the Stantons, and the Cubs odd-gamed a win out of the Props.

The Treasury team, of the Ladies Federal League, believes in the old axiom about doing things yourself if you want them done properly. Last night it rolled a high set of 1,521, a high game of 536, and won three from G. A. O. Helena Kohler's 343 fitted in rather nicely with the Treasury team's designs. Labor climbed into third place by virtue of a 2-1 victory over the Marines as Veterans Bureau, former occupant of that position, dropped a trey to Agriculture. Interstate took the odd one from War Department, and Economics and G. P. O. did the same to Commerce and Internal Revenue. Louis Webster's 342 set enabled the Commerce Comets to make it a clean sweep over Commerce Juniors, and the efforts of the Census team were rewarded with a goose-egg by the Bureau of Mines.

"Wild Bill" Hart, who shoots the duckpins like the famous movie actor was in the habit of disposing of villainous characters had his old six-shooter working at top speed in the War Department loop at Arcadia. Bill plucked off 158 bottles for his best game and 367 for a three-game total. His team, the Barbettes, ankled off with the team prizes by virtue of its 574 game and 1,614 set.

Lehigh slipped into a tie for second place with Princeton in the Intercollegiate League, by taking the odd one from Navy at Rendezvous last night, while Brown was disposing of the Tigers for a 2-1 win. Brown rolled a 543 game and 1,531 set. Maryland, V. P. I., Harvard and Cornell all won the deciding games from Yale, Michigan, V. M. I. and Dartmouth. Muskoe Garnett, making his weekly one-night stand, filled his little brown bag with the prizes, as he usually does. Muskoe's best game was 149 and his set 357.

The Post Pressmen have their noses tilted in the air an extra inch or two today, all because they took a 2-1 decision from the Composing Room crew in the Daylight League at Convention Hall. The Post Circulation showed the Master Printers a thing or two about bowling and won all three games handily. The Star took the odd one from the Occidental Hotel, and the Herald drew the deuce in its match with Bond Bread. Morris, of the Herald, was high game man with 140, while Cobb (he says he is a cousin of Ty, of baseball fame!), rolled 362 for high set.

Rolling 605, the Times-Herald hung up a new team game record for the season in the Commercial League at Convention Hall. It was the only game the Hearst boys were able to win from the Star. Hamilton (it could be Alexander and it could be Lloyd), hung up a new individual game mark when he massaged the maples for a 165 game. His set, 390, helped Peoples win a trio from Sterrett Operating. The Druggists rolled a 1,682 set. Diamond Cab whitewashed Woodward & Lothrop, and the News did the same to Carry's Ice Cream. Occidental Hotel was one up on Wonder Bread.

Skinkers Present Pair Of Promising Battles

Washington's basket ball followers will be offered an unusually colorful twin bill Sunday night when hostilities are launched at Bolling Field Armory.

At 7:30 o'clock Northern Preps are to swing into action against Knights of Columbus unlimiteds, recent conquerers of Jewish Community Center.

Apparently evenly matched in both instances, the principals unquestionably will furnish some hot mixing.

TEMPLE BOWLERS BOW.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 11.—Although Ollie Pacini, Dixie sweepstake winner, rolled 650 for the five games, the Northeast Temple, leaders of the District League in Washington, lost tonight to Victoria's duckpin team when the other Capital pinmen failed to do their share. The final count was 2,939 to 2889, a difference of fifty sticks.

Pacini was in fine form, especially in the third game, when 170 of the maples were knocked down.

WOMEN WILL OPEN ALEXANDRIA MARKET

Fairfax County Clubs Plan to Found Outlet for Members' Produce.

The members of the Home Demonstration Clubs of Fairfax County, Va., plan to open their first women's market in northern Virginia. The market will be located in Alexandria not later than March 5, according to arrangements made at the quarterly meeting of the county home demonstration agents' advisory council at the home of Mrs. Claude Oliver at Baileys Cross Roads.

The market will provide an outlet for the surplus garden products of the club members, as well as increasing the income of farm women. An attempt will be made to open the market by February 20.

Officers Are Chosen.

The advisory council elected Mrs. E. D. Vosbury, of Merrifield, president for a two-year term, with Mrs. James U. Kincheloe, of Fairfax, vice president; Mrs. D. J. Garber, of Woodlawn, secretary, and Mrs. J. B. Davis, of Burke, treasurer.

The council decided to hold a summer camp at Camp Kahlert, Md., if the committee composed of Mrs. Mark Turner, Mrs. J. Hunter Mack and Mrs. E. D. Vosbury is not able to locate a suitable camp site in the county.

In order that the nine home demonstration clubs of the county may have representation on the county advisory council, it was decided to invite Mrs Allen Bradley, of Floris; Mrs. George Smith, of Franconia, and Mrs. Roy Money, of Andrew Chapel, to become members from their clubs. Mrs. Harmon Roberts was appointed to represent the council at the public hearing on the county budget on March 1 to sponsor the appropriation for home demonstration work.

District Heads Named.

The new president appointed the following district chairmen; Dranesville, Mrs. Mark Turner, of Forestville; Providence, Mrs. J. Hunter Mack, of McLean; Falls Church, Mrs. Will Cleveland, of Seminary; Mount Vernon, Mrs. Harmon Roberts, of Mount Vernon; Lee, Mrs. J. B. Davis, of Burke, and Centerville, Mrs. Milton Johnson, of Clifton.

Lenten services will be held each Friday night in the Episcopal churches of Fairfax County. The Rev. Herbert A. Donovan, rector of the Zion Church at Fairfax, will conduct the services in the church of the Holy Comforter on Thursday evening and at Fairfax on Friday.

The Rev. A. L. Ribble, rector of the St. Timothy's Episcopal Church at Herndon, has arranged for sermons by visiting ministers. The speaker this evening will be the Rev. Micheal Kippenbrock, who has been in charge of the missions in Alaska for the past several years.

Mount Rainier Lists 98 As Delinquent on Taxes

The list of delinquent taxpayers in Mount Rainier, Md., which will be published soon, contains only 98 names, compared with a total last year of between 160 and 170, according to B. E. Sager, town clerk. About a quarter of those named will pay their taxes between the publishing of the list and the tax sale on March 5 he said.

The average unpaid tax bill is small, Mr. Sager said, and averages about $20. Because of this low average the total amount of unpaid taxes is only about half what it was last year, he estimates. The small list this year is attributed partially to the lower tax rate, which was decreased during 1931 from 20 cents to 15 cents, making it the lowest mupicipal levy in the State.

Jacob Krehbiel Made Postmaster in Fairfax

Jacob H. Krehbiel has been named acting postmaster at Fairfax Station, according to announcement made yesterday by the Postoffice Department in Washington. Miss Eleanor Chesley has been acting for the past few months.

The postoffice, located in Wycoff's Store, was robbed about a month ago of about $11 worth of stamps and pennies and the interior of the postoffice wrecked by the explosion. The safe blowers escaped, but had to abandon their new automobile which mired in the mud about a quarter of a mile away. Fairfax County police have been unable to trace the robbers.

Methodists Will Break Ground for Parsonage

Ground will be broken for the new parsonage of the Oakton-Vienna-Wiehle Methodist Episcopal Church Circuit tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. According to the plans all persons of the community will meet at the lot on Sanger road at Oakton, Va. Norman Soper, who donated the land for the parsonage, will turn the first spade of earth.

The services will be attended by the Rev. I. B. Weeks, district superintendent of the church circuits, and the Rev. C. J. McCauley, who has accepted the call as pastor of the circuit. A short prayer and song service will be held during the ceremony.

HARRY GREEN HEADS MASONS OF VIRGINIA

Arlington Commissioner of Revenue Elevated to Highest Honor.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Harry K. Green, commissioner of revenue of Arlington County and past master of Columbia Lodge No. 285, A. F. and A. M., was elected grand master of Masons in Virginia yesterday at the annual session of the Grand Lodge held at Richmond. Mr. Green is a native of Virginia and has been a Mason for more than a quarter of a century. He was born in Leesburg, Va., December 6, 1879.

Mr. Green was entered in the public schools of Leesburg by his parents and later attended Leesburg Academy. Subsequently, he took a course in the Spencerian Business College, Washington, completing his later studies in 1901.

Although an adept apprentice at the shoemaking trade, in which he received instruction from his father, Mr. Green's natural inclinations led him in other directions, and in 1900 he became an apprentice in the Donaldson Dental Manufacturing Co., Washington, where he continued until 1920.

Active in Arlington Affairs.

For many years Mr. Green has been an active citizen of Arlington County. He has been the leader in the Democratic organization and has taken much interest in the civic affairs. From 1918 to 1920 he served as chairman of the county school board.

In November, 1919, he was elected commissioner of revenue of Arlington County which office he still holds having been reelected last November.

He was made a Mason in Federal Lodge, No. 1, of the District of Columbia in 1901, and affiliatd with Columbia Lodge, No. 285, at Clarendon, in May, 1915. The following year he was elected junior deacon, and during the World War period of 1918 served Columbia Lodge as its master. He is also member of Arlington Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, of Cherrydale, and an honorary member of Loudon Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, in Leesburg. He is past patron of Mary Washington Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, at Carendon and chairman of the Masonic Benefit Fund of District No. 54.

Offered George Washington.

The position of Grand Master of Masons in Virginia, now held by Mr. Green, is one to which George Washington was elected while President of the United States, but had to refuse because of affairs of state. The position is the highest Masonic honor in Virginia and is looked upon as one of the most important in the entire United States. This position was graced by John Marshall, Chief Justice of the United States; John Blair, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence; Peyton Randolph, several governors of the State, and many other notable men of Revolutionary times.

Mr. Green, as Grand Master, will be greeted by his son, H. Bruce Green, master of Columbia Lodge, No. 285, A. F. and A. M., at a special meeting to be held in the Masonic Temple at Clarendon tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Among the many distinguished guests that will be present will be Gov. John Garland Pollard.

13 Fined in Alexandria For Dog-License Delays

The campaign against owners of unlicensed dogs in Virginia resulted in 14 persons being haled into police court in Alexandria yesterday for failure to obtain tags. One colored man, Harvey Robinson, who failed to answer to his name, was fined $25 and costs, Game Warden W. Harry Johnson, who is conducting the campaign, claiming that the man owns 14 dogs, none of them being licensed. Twelve others, most of them residents of Mount Ida, were fined $5 and $3 costs each, and one man was acquitted.

Warden Johnson stated yesterday he will pursue his campaign against unlicensed dogs. In all such cases a fine is mandatory under Virginia law.

Diphtheria Cases Fewer in County

Prince Georges Report Reveals Increase in Scarlet Fever.

Although there were only half as many diphtheria cases in Prince Georges County last month as there were in January, 1931, the scarlet fever cases showed an increase of nearly one-third, according to the monthly report of the health officer, which was issued Wednesday.

There were seven diphtheria cases last month, while fourteen were reported in January, 1931. The first month of last year had a total of only fourteen cases of scarlet fever, however, while there were twenty reported last month. These cases have been so mild as to attract little attention, the report says.

Toxin antitoxin was administered to 1,432 persons during the month, 175 doses being given to children of preschool age. School children examined numbered 310, and 15 persons were examined at a chest clinic in Hyattsville. Arrangements for a new dental clinic in the schools are being made, following a lecture before the Parent-Teacher Association.

COMMISSION HEARS REZONING PROTESTS

Montgomery County Citizens Decry Proposed Building of Apartments.

Citizens of the communities along Wisconsin avenue north of the District Line in Montgomery County were present last night to oppose a change in zoning on the east side of Wisconsin avenue which was before the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The commission met in the Tower Building, Washington.

The rezoning is asked by the Thomas J. Fisher Co., through the Chevy Chase Land Co. and H. E. Doyle, agent. The real estate agents presented a colored map showing the proposed plan for development of a modern apartment house group in the section. In answer to objections that there would be no guarantee against erection of cheap apartments, Bates Warren, developer, said that modern competition would take care of that and that no cheap building can be made to pay in that area.

Mr. Warren urged the commission to look forward 20 or 30 years and vision the apartment dwelling population of Montgomery County and decide now whether it would be best for the 15,000 or 20,000 persons to have to traverse the residential sections from Rockville pike or be close to the District line.

Residents of the area were particularly bitter against erection of the apartments and resolutions were presented from nearly every community along Wisconsin avenue and from the Montgomery Government Club of Chevy Chase, which objects to the rezoning and also to rezoning at Chevy Chase Lake.

T. Howard Duckett, chairman of the commission, said that the park and planning commission does not plan to make a hasty decision of this petition but will take sufficient time to digest the arguments for and against and to work out what it believes to be best for the interests of all.

Noted Welsh Vocal Group to Sing Here

The world-renowned "Welsh Imperial Singers" will appear in concert in Columbia Hall of Washington Missionary College, Flower and Carroll avenues, Takoma Park, D. C., at 8 o'clock Saturday evening.

"Old melodies were new tonight," was the way in which Lloyd George, of England, expressed his appreciation of the male chorus. The famous group of singers is called Britain's greatest male ensemble, and is under the direction of R. Festyn Davis. For five years the group has been a singing sensation of Europe and Canada. At the Rotary International convention in Chicago in 1930, it was the feature musical attraction representing the British Isles.

Twelve singers, an accompanist and the director complete the group of the Welsh Imperial Singers. They are able to produce volume when desired and are equally capable of whispering pianissimos.

Capitol Heights Men Rally to Town's Aid

Back taxes to the amount of $315 have poured into the town treasury of Capitol Heights since stories that the town was financially "flat" were published early this week, according to Town Treasurer Clinton G. Light. This sum is sufficient to enable the town to run until the elections in May, and will obviate the necessity for paying employes with drafts on the treasury.

Some of the delinquent taxpayers told him they did not realize the need of funds until they read the newspaper stories, Mr. Light said, and others said they had just overlooked paying their assessments.

GOVERNORS TO MEET IN GADSBY'S TAVERN

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The governors' conference, which will be in session in April, has accepted an invitation, extended by Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, to meet in Gadsby's Tavern here, the afternoon of April 8.

The governors will assemble in the room of the tavern in which George Washington, on March 22, 1785, held a conference with the Governors of Virginia and Maryland. This room, as well as many others in Gadby's Tavern, has been restored, the property now being owned by Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, and will be the scene, on the night of February 22, of a birthnight ball, sponsored by the Colonial Dames, and Daughters of the American Revolution and the Washington Society of Alexandria.

Tea will be served the governors in the tavern, after which they will go to Washington and be received by President Hoover. Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia and Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, are expected to be among those attending.

The Alexandria United Charities has found it necessary to inaugurate a policy of retrenchment in the distribution of groceries, coal and wood to the ever-increasing demands made on the organization. It is stated that the organization has already practically gone beyond its income in meeting the demands made upon it. It has been ascertained that many of the people calling upon it for aid have made more than one call, some are newcomers to the city and others are simply people who consider it desirable to get all the aid they can free of charge.

Hereafter, it is announced, a policeman will be stationed at the headquarters of the organization while the ward workers are engaged in distributing tickets, and City Manager Wallace Lawrence has announced that police will be assigned to investigate cases where there is any element of doubt as to the worthiness of the appeals. As a result of this it is believed many duplications will be avoided and the really deserving people will benefit.

A budget adopted by the organization provides for the allocation of $900 for the various phases of relief work during the remainder of February. This is divided, $150 for wood, $110 for feeding transients by the Salvation Army, and $640 to cover orders for groceries and coal.

STOCK PRICES CLIMB TO 5-POINT AVERAGE

Banking Bill News Sends Market to 1932 Top; Dividends Aid.

New York, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Financial and commodity markets showed by the most practical means today that they approved of the militant move being launched at Washington against deflation.

Prices of securities and basic staples joined in a bullish demonstration which, so far as stocks were concerned, was the most vigorous since mid-December.

Although the rise seemed to be largely at the expense of shorts, there was no mistaking the share market's enthusiasm for the proposed banking measure and quotations climbed, with the usual interruptions for profit-taking, from the opening gong, closing at the top. The average net gain was just 5 points.

Union Pacific Dividend.

Material assistance was provided by declaration of a regular quarterly dividend by Union Pacific Railroad and by disclosure of Ford's new model program. The market was somewhat surprised by the former event, since a reduction had been viewed as almost inevitable because of generally unfavorable railroad conditions and the income shrinkage suffered by this particular carrier through dividend casualties among stocks in its investment portfolio.

The motor and steel trades had been anxiously awaiting word on the Ford matter, and it was immediately felt that both industries would now be able to shape their plans more clearly.

Wall street reacted promptly to the overnight news from the National Capital. Stocks were taken in large volume at the opening, which was a point or two higher for many leaders, and gained courage as the session moved along.

United States Steel, American Can, Allied Chemical, Case, Santa Fe, Du Pont, American Telephone and Union Pacific gave strong leadership, advancing 5 to 7 points. The last named issue made a top of 77, but reduced its maximum advance of 7⅞ by a point. Volume of 2,559,931 shares was somewhat under the largest turnover made on the January rally, although the average gain surpassed last month's best performance.

In discussing the new bill, bankers pointed out that one of its most important results would be to assure this and other countries that the United States had enough gold.

So-called "free gold," or metal above the 40 per cent minimum required for reserve note backing, totals roughly half a billion dollars for the central banking system, which is believed to be less than the amount of foreign balances held here subject to withdrawal.

Operation on Balances.

Without increases in eligible rediscount paper to expand the free gold stock it has been obvious that large-scale repatriation of foreign balances might prove troublesome. The proposed change in the law, it was pointed out, would prevent such a contingency from arising.

The weekly Reserve Bank statements showed a drop of $5,000,000 in currency circulation which was hardly enough to indicate that hoarders had undergone much change of heart. Furthermore, total reserve credit decreased $31,000,000. Abroad, the Bank of France added to its gold holdings, while the Bank of England's ratio improved.

Weekly mercantile reviews reported little change in business conditions since the last reports. Forecasts of a revival, said Dun's, have not been substantiated to a noticeable degree, "but in some directions the trend of business is rising gradually but irregularly," uncertainty as to political and economic development, it added, was undoubtedly causing some hesitation.

BOND MARKET GAINS ON CREDIT AID NEWS

New York, Feb. 11 (A.P.).—Secondary railroad bonds staged a sizeable recovery today and practically all classes of loans advanced their prices from fractions to several points.

Although sales totaled but $9,346,000, dealers were considerably encouraged at the firm undertone which prevailed throughout the session.

Announcement om Washington of plans to ease the credit situation was viewed in some quarters as highly constructive for the general mortgage list. The cheaper bonds of the carriers were in the greatest demand, although the high grade legal liens were well supported.

Among loans that advanced from 1 to more than 5 points were some of those of Baltimore & Ohio, Boston & Maine, Allegheny Corporation, Chesapeake & Ohio, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Frisco and Nickel Plate.

The United States Government section was steady and price changes narrow. Traders were somewhat uncertain just how the Liberties and Treasury issues would be affected by any revision of Federal Reserve practices.

Utilities and industrials moved moderately higher in a somewhat restricted range. Communications companies' mortgages were in favor, most of them recording substantial gains.

FEBRUARY 12, 1907.

Secretary of State Root and the President have agreed upon a tentative solution to the Japanese difficulties, which calls for the passage of an exclusion law in Congress which would bar Asiatic immigrants from coming into the country.

More than 150 persons went to their deaths yesterday in Block Island Sound, R. I., when the Harry Knowlton, a three-masted schooner, and the Larchmont, a steam vessel, collided. The boats were plying between Providence and New York. The death toll may be larger. Details are lacking.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE NEW NEIGHBORLINESS.

("Japan's purpose is peaceful. It merely wants to put an end to the menace of Chinese armies and relieve uncertainty. There will be no aggressive campaign unless China resists."—Admiral Shiosawa.)

I have a neighbor down the street
Who quite displeases me;
And if I go and shoot him up
A better man he'll be.

I am a very peaceful man—
For peace I've always stood;
When I invade another's home
I do it for his good!

Aggression is a thing I hate—
Believe me, it's a fact;
And if I pounce upon a friend
It's just a kindly act!

I scorn all deeds of violence—
I don't like force a bit;
And if I punch you in the jaw
It's for your benefit!

The rights of others I respect—
(Contrary tales are lies);
Should I ignore them it is but
A blessing in disguise.

A gentle fellow to the core,
I loath the thought of strife;
I outrage others just to help
Them lead a better life.

Unmilitant my nature is;
If I kick in your door
I do it in the hope it will
Brings blessings by the score.

I am a sweet and gracious soul
Without a trace of greed;
And if I jump upon your neck
It's something that you need.

I'm very shy of violence—
All fighting makes me blue;
I only shell you when I think
It's very good for you.

So realize that when I come
And fill your home with gore,
And sack the house and burn the barn,
It's peace and never war!

Cigarette smoking has fallen off tremendously, according to reports. This is difficult to believe in view of statistics which indicate that people are borrowing as many as ever.

Engineers are working on a photo-electric device which will put the "stop" lights inside the automobile. Where, as remarked in the musical show some years back by the young lady who liked her "necking" within limitations, it should have been put in the first place.

"Hey! Didn't you see the red light?" the traffic cop may inquire when stop signals are registered inside every auto by electric waves from a central station.

"No," the motorists will have to reply, "I was carelessly looking at the road ahead of me."

2 DEAD AND 55 HURT IN 2 BUS ACCIDENTS

Others May Die After School Cars Collide With Trucks on Alabama Roads.

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 11 (A.P.).—A school child and a bus driver were killed, 13 children were injured seriously and 42 others received minor hurts today when two Alabama school buses collided with lumber trucks at widely separated points.

In addition another bus driver was injured critically and a truck driver was hurt less seriously.

The dead:

Charles B. Foscue, 8, of Coatopa.

Beech Meadows, bus driver, of near Dothan.

Young Foscue was killed five miles from Livingston in the western part of the State as one of the buses struck a lumber truck when a tire blew out.

Aubrey Edmonds, 10; Jack Monday, 15, and Max Larkin, 8, were badly hurt, as was Harold McCracken, driver of the bus. J. R. Jackson, driver of the truck, and 22 other children received lesser injuries. The children, students in the Livingston grammar school, were taken to their homes in Coatopa.

Near Dothan, in the southeast corner of the State, children said a bus driver leaned over to prevent one of the 40 passengers from falling from the vehicle and momentarily lost control. The school bus collided with a log truck.

A trailer to the truck swung across the road, the logs rolling across the school bus, critically injuring the driver and ten children. Twenty other children received minor injuries.

The injured were taken to Dothan, where physicians said Meecham Meadows, bus driver, and James Livingston, 6, probably would die.

The nine other children who were injured seriously were Benni Wright, 16; Pauline Crawford, 10; Leroy Crawford, 13; Doris Meadows, 13; Eleanor Mills, Ina Glenney, Kate Glenney and Rudolph Glenney.

Poetry Magazine Editor To Lecture Here Sunday

Harriet Monroe, editor of Poetry, a magazine of verse, will lecture next Sunday night at the Washington Club, 1010 Seventeenth street northwest, on "Modern American Poets." The lecture will be sponsored by the Washington Group of Poets.

Miss Monroe founded the verse journal in Chicago twenty years ago and has been assisted since by a score of distinguished American poets, including Nelson Antrim Crawford, Eunice Tietjens, George Dillion, and others. Miss Monroe is expected to read from her own work Sunday night.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 192

THE corner of Ninth and D streets northwest, where the Strand Theater now stands, about the middle of the last century is shown in the above photo.

This old house was the Hudson Taylor mansion in the days when that section of the downtown area was a residential district and many famous persons lived close around this house. Just when it was built is not known, but it was torn down in 1868 and Lincoln Hall was built on the site. This was later razed and the Strand Theater Building, still standing, was erected.

The corner seemed to be quite a meeting place for the town blades. Note the derbies and high-buttoned coats, and the old stepping stone for the carriages. The old lamp-post couldn't have furnished much illumination, but it was considered the latest thing in those days, and the residents were probably thankful for that much light.

LEGAL NOTICES

I. H. MINOVITZ, Attorney, 1518 K Street Northwest.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE District of Columbia. Mildred Boxley Maddox, Plaintiff, vs. Embrie E. Maddox, otherwise known as George Edward Maddox, Defendant. No. 53819. Equity Doc. 45 WITNESSES FAIL TO IDENTIFY THREE SNIPING SUSPECTS

Police Are Without Definite Clew in Recent Series of Shootings.

THRILL-SLAYER THEORY IS BEING INVESTIGATED

Two Abandoned Autos May Aid in Attempt to Trace the Assassin.

Police were without a definite clew last night to the gunman who has been terrorizing the Northwest section of the city with his promiscuous shooting, when 45 witnesses failed to identify any of the three young men arrested Wednesday night for robbery after a 5-mile chase through Rock Creek Park by a police cruiser. One of the men arrested resembled the killer of Paul Riedel, 45-year-old baker of Mount Pleasant, but they were absolved of any connection with the shootings when they could not be identified.

Two cars that were found abandoned were closely inspected for any clews that would connect them with the shootings. They both were dark blue Buick sedans, but positive identity could not be made last night. One was found in the rear of 617 Morton street northwest and the other one was deserted when the driver crashed into two cars at Third and L streets northwest yesterday afternoon.

The car that was deserted on L street had 1932 District tags that had been listed to John Randolph, of 33 I street, but according to Randolph he never applied for those tags.

Drive, Escapes.

The car first crashed into the automobile driven by Ulmer L. Burroll, of 945 C street southwest, and the impact then threw the Buick into the side of a truck of the District of Columbia Refuse Department, driven by Dewey G. Montgomery, of 126 Seventh street northwest. The driver of the Buick, a young white man, jumped out and ran. Detective Sergt. Fred Sandburg, fingerprint expert, closely examined both cars for possible fingerprints of the killer.

The three youths who were questioned at headquarters last night, William McKinney, 18, of Fitchburg, Mass.; Willard Messick, 24, of California, and William G. Duffy, 22, of Macon, Ga., were arrested after they had held up E. M. Morningstar, 25, a cab driver, of 330 Fourteenth place northwest, and stole his cab.

The car was finally cornered in Rock Creek Park after a chase, and the youths were stopped by the firing of several shots into the ground When the detectives walked up, McKinney, according to the police, pulled out a revolver and attempted to shoot Detective E. F. Lewis, but his gun jammed.

Thrill Theory Held.

The persons who viewed the men last night were witnesses in nearly every major crime and murder that has occurred in Washington for several years. They were cross-examined especially in the murder of Mrs. Jaynes, the Garden Shoppe cashier, who was shot during a holdup last April.

The police are now concentrating on finding three youths that may have done the shooting for a thrill. According to Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, three boys of prominent families have been questioned and at least three others are being sought.

The police are following many clews, according to Inspector Burke, but the one which apparently will prove most productive is that involving a thrill slayer. Nearly 100 letters have been received at police headquarters from citizens who thought they had seen either the gunman or his car, or both. Many telephone calls are also received every day with possible tips, and police are attempting to run them all down.

William J. Callan, 27, of Alexandria, who was arrested Wednesday night as a possible suspect in the shootings, is still being held for investigation at the Tenth Precinct Station. He denied any knowledge of the crimes when questioned by detectives.

Inquest Is Set Today In Man's Auto Death

A coroner's inquest will be held at the Morgue this morning at 11:30 o'clock in the death of Albert P. Williamson, 64-year-old grocer, of 5819 Colorado avenue, who was struck by a car and fatally injured Wednesday night at Georgia and Colorado avenues.

According to police, the automobile that struck Williamson was operated by William A. Parke, jr., 21 years old, of 6326 Sixteenth street. Parkes was released in the custody of his attorney pending result of the inquest.

Injured Man Asserts HeWasBeaten in Holdup

A man was treated at Casualty Hospital last night after complaining to Harbor Precinct police that he had been beaten and robbed in a vacant lot at Sixth and Water streets southwest.

Walter Forsythe, 54 years old, of 3425 Thirty-seventh street northwest, staggered into the precinct to make the report. He had a cut on his head and bruises about the body. He said one of the men struck him with a blunt instrument and took his watch, valued at $8, from him.

Pupils to End Plans For Capital Singing

Rehearsals in preparation for the mass chorus singing of school children on the East Plaza of the Capitol on Washington's Birthday will be concluded next Friday when 2,000 specially picked children will have their last practice session in Central High School.

Four choruses, with a total of 10,000 children, will participate in the exercises, which have been arranged by the District Bicentennial Commission. Dr. Edwin N. C. Barnes will direct the program.

Wintry Morning Turns Into Summer Evening

Current Washington weather continued its unique antics yesterday and gave the city a range of 33 degrees of change within 9 hours. Residents of the Capital awoke yesterday morning to find the day chilly with the thermometer at its lowest point, 43 degrees, at 7 a. m.

By 4 p. m., however, the mercury had climbed to a peak of 76 degrees, bringing back the spring-like atmosphere that has prevailed almost the entire winter. The kiosk on Pennsylvania avenue showed a high of 79 degrees for the day.

The Weather Bureau forecast cloudy skies for today, with showers probably in the morning, followed by cooler weather. Light rains, followed by clear and even cooler weather, are forecast for tomorrow.

SHOT SCARE IS LAID TO BOYS' NEW RIFLE

Bethesda Police Seize Man on Charge of Beating Woman.

The saturnalia of crime which apparently confronted the Montgomery County police of the Bethesda substation early yesterday finally evolved into the adventures of three 9-year-old youths and an air rifle and the arrest of a Falls Church, Va., resident.

First came a report that a black sedan without lights was traveling on Bradley boulevard. Reserve police had hardly reached the scene when a flashing green light informed them that another emergency call was awaiting at the substation. This call said the man was shooting a revolver. The police could find neither sedan nor bullet marks. Then came a harrowing call that a woman was being beaten by a man at three places in succession, the last call announcing that she was screaming for help. Police arrested the couple on River road near Burning Tree Country Club. The man, Don H. Vance, of Falls Church, was held on $1,500 bond to appear in county police court to answer charges of driving while intoxicated and assault and battery. The woman, Mrs. Josephine N. Templeton, of Kew Gardens, was held as a witness on bond of $100.

Hardly had this mystery been cleared when the police were confronted with a new plea for aid, when several householders reported that windows of their homes had been broken by shots. The "sniper" proved to be a trio of 9-year-olds trying out a new air rifle.

$819,000 Is Asked Of Bank in Suit

62 Shoreham Holders of Notes File Petition in Supreme Court.

Sixty-two persons who hold notes secured by the released $2,500,000 trust on the Shoreham Building, Fifteenth and H streets northwest, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to require the Riggs National Bank to pay over to a receiver, to be named by the court, a fund of $819,296.34.

The contention behind the suit is that the bank allowed the firm of Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey to draw funds from an account that was specially designated for the purpose of paying notes secured by a trust "in Liber 6194, folio 347."

Because of the alleged depletion of this special fund by unwarranted withdrawals, the suit claims, notes aggregating $819,000 secured by the released trust have never been paid. The firm of Minor, Gatley & Drury filed the suit and they asked that the receiver, if one be appointed, administer the fund to pay the unpaid and overdue notes.

Girl, 6, Hit by Auto Is Taken to Hospital

A 6-year-old girl is in Casualty Hospital with a fractured left leg and contusions to both arms, suffered when she was struck by an automobile yesterday afternoon in the 700 block of Eleventh street southeast.

The injured girl, Rose Pinto, 725 Eleventh street southeast, was struck by a car driven by Miss R. L. Adams, 25, of 306 Raleigh street southeast. She was removed to the hospital in Miss Adams' car, where physicians say her condition is not serious.

Bandits Get $11.60 In Gas Station Holdup

A pair of bandits early yesterday held up a filling station at 1525 Fifteenth street northwest and escaped with $11.60.

James M. Royster, of 1461 Harvard street northwest, told police he had just opened the place for business when two colored men entered. One of them produced a pistol and demanded cash. The other one went to the cash register and rifled it. After taking the money the pair ran.

TEACHERS COLLEGE STUDENTS PROTEST ON THEIR TRANSFER

Dissatisfaction Is Reported on Condition of New Wilson Quarters.

ADJOINING INSTITUTION FOUND TO BE DAMAGED

Members of House District Committee Make Caustic Comments on Finding.

Reported dissatisfaction on the part of many young women students of the Wilson Teachers College over their transfer to the old Columbia School at Seventh and O streets northwest, the discovery of cracks in the structure of another school adjoining the teacher college and caustic comments by members of the House District appropriations committee over the "sudden discovery" of the defective building were among the developments yesterday in the latest problem before school officials.

After reporting at their new headquarters yesterday morning, many of the young women returned home indignant because of the nature of the section in which they will have to go each day to attend classes, it was learned. They were also said to be upset over the character of the building and its lack of comfortable facilities.

The student body of the teacher college, numbering about 300, most of whom are women, was instructed to report back next Monday morning when the regular class work will be resumed. School officials say that they have not received any indication that the students will not report.

Only Available Building.

The Columbia School, the school authorities point out, is the only available building to meet the emergency which has arisen because of a defective front wall at the Wilson Teachers College at Eleventh and Harvard streets northwest. The office force of the teachers college occupied the Columbia School yesterday, and plans were being rushed to put the top floor of the building in shape for classroom work.

In their dissatisfaction over the new school, the women students were said to be under the impression that the Columbia School is one for incorrigible boys. This is untrue as the school is a vocational one, having the same standing as regular academic high schools.

The Ross School, adjoining the Wilson Teachers College, where cracks in the walls were found yesterday, will not be vacated for the present, it was announced by Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools. Jere J. Crane, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of business affairs, said that a careful watch will be kept on the school, and if the condition grows worse it will probably have to be vacated.

Blames Underground Stream.

Mr. Crane said that the defective walls are not caused by the heating plant at the teacher college. The deterioration has no doubt been brought on by the sudden replenishing of an underground stream, he said. Ground on which the Ross School stands was formerly the bank of a tributary of the Tiber Creek.

Skeptical members of the House District appropriations committee yesterday appeared unimpressed by the abandonment of Wilson Teachers' College and the discovery of cracks in the walls of the Ross Elementary School adjoining.

"I see the usual school emergency has developed," one member of the committee remarked, as executive hearings opened on the District budget. Other members of the committee laughed.

Explains Reference.

Later, Representative William P. Holaday (Republican), Illinois, who has been a member of the committee for more than five years, said it has become a byword in the committee that some emergency in school affairs invariably occurs as the House takes up the local budget.

If the District comes to the committee for additional funds either to repair or replace the normal school, he will insist on a thorough report on the structural condition of the building, he said. He was of the opinion the building would be repaired rather than replaced.

First Work on Budget.

Some half dozen items were taken up yesterday as the committee got down to work for the first time on the budget. Maj. Daniel Donovan, District auditor, was on the stand, as members took up appropriations for local executive offices.

Others to testify included Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride and Assistant Engineer Commissioner Maj. D. A. Davison. The question of additional force and facilities made necessary by the occupation of the Ford Building by the District government was gone into thoroughly.

Chairman Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, announced that District Tax Assessor Richards will be the first on the stand as hearings are resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

Gifts of Ancient Egyptians To Civilization Described

The importance of Egyptian civilization to the world was described last night by Dr. George S. Duncan, professor of Egyptology, American University, before a distinguished audience at the Egyptian Legation, where the Archaeological Society of Washington and members of the diplomatic corps were guests in celebration of the twelfth birthday of Crown Prince Farik.

"Egypt was the seat of a high civilization as early as 3500 B. C.," said Dr. Duncan in his illustrated lecture, in which he showed pictures made during archaeological journeys in that country. "This land has never been surpassed in engineering projects, building construction, sculpture, architecture and jewelry. Here were laid the foundations of modern medicine, surgery and mathematics. The Egyptians firmly believed in immortality. The graves of 8000 B. C. contain vessels for food and drink. The oldest religious writings are found in the pyramids of 2600 B. C. The earliest known monotheism was reached about 1400 B. C. The Hebrews were influenced by the culture of Egypt since 'Moses was instructed in all the wisdom of the Egyptians.' The Egyptian civilization was transmitted to the Greeks and Romans, who passed it on with modifications and additions to other nations. We, today, are the heirs of all the past. A good part of this inheritance has come from Egypt."

The function was arranged by the Egyptian Minister Sesostris Sidarouss Pasha, who invited the Archaeological Society of Washington and diplomatic friends. After the lecture a collation was served.

STAGE VALENTINE PLAY

CERAMIC BODY TOLD OF CLEARER LENSES

American Society Hears of New Bismuth Process for Microscopic Benefit.

The successful manufacture of bismuth glass, announced yesterday before the American Ceramic Society at the Willard Hotel, where they are holding their annual convention, will, according to Dr. Donald E. Sharp, of Hamburg, N. Y., and Dr. E. Raymond Riegel, of the University of Buffalo, who reported the new glass, provide better material for lenses for microscopes and small telescopes.

The new glass, they said in their report to the meeting, would provide sharper images and transmit more light than glass made with lead oxide now used in many lenses. Dr. Sharpe said that he hopes the bismuth glass will correct the defect present in many lenses now used, which is known as color aberration, which means that fringes of color appear on the edges of the images.

Bismuth glass, he said, is more resistant to gradual dimming through the effect of moisture in the air, than a lead oxide glass. He also said he believed the new glass effects a better separation or dispersion of light rays than the lens glass now in use.

Combinations of soda, bismuth and silica, and potash, bismuth and silica were used in the manufacture of the glass, but as yet there have been no lenses ground from the new material. The percentage content of bismuth oxide in the glass is slightly above half. The manufacture of this glass has been considered difficult, if not impossible, previously.

National Defense Neglect Charged

Representative Albert Johnson, of Washington, voiced objections to both the Griffith bill and the Lafollette relief measure, when he spoke at a smoker of the Military Order of the World War at the Mayflower Hotel last night.

He said that measures for maintaining the national defense were being sidetracked in Congress under the cloak of necessary economy. The gathering was entertained by the St. Patrick's Players and by the Marine Band Orchestra.

Maj. Edwin B. Bettleheim was master of ceremonies and Lieut. Col. George E. Ijams, commander of the group, presided. Among the leading military men present were: Maj. Gen. John Gulick, chief of the Coast Artillery; Col. J. Miller Kenyon, head of the Reserve Officers Association; Capt. A. W. Dunbar, assistant surgeon general of the Navy, and Maj. Gen. Robert U. Patterson, surgeon general of the Army.

WILLS GO ON ROCKS AS VALUES DECLINE

Many Testaments Estimate Worth of Estates as of Stock Boom Years.

Many intricate problems have recently confronted the Supreme Court of the District and the office of the Register of Wills regarding the value of estates and the lack of assets to the cover the amount of legacies provided for in the wills of deceased persons.

The problems are presented largely because of the shrinkage in values of estates occurring both before the death of decedents and during the administration of the estates. Due to the present liquidating values of securities, testators are leaving more legacies in their wills than there are assets to pay them.

Theodore Cogswell, register of wills for the District of Columbia, declared that he is of the opinion that every person who executed his will before values receded so heavily should make a careful examination of it at once. The present value of his assets should also be checked, it was pointed out, in order to ascertain whether there is a sufficient amount to pay legacies made in the will.

A recent example was cited by Mr. Cogswell. A will, he said, was filed in his office by a prominent resident of Washington. The will provided for legacies to the extent of $20,000. The balance of the estate, consisting of a residence, was left to relatives.

At the time the will was made, several years ago, the estate consisted of 500 shares of stock, valued at $100 a share. When the will was to be administered, it was found that the stock had shrunk to $20 a share. Thus the estate was short more than $10,000 of enough personal property to cover the legacies.

The residence was sold and the proceeds used to pay the legacies. This, Mr. Cogswell pointed out, could have been avoided had the testator made a careful check of the value of his estate.

Thieves Get $227 Loot From Delaney's Home

Three watches, other jewelry, field glasses and $21 in cash were taken from the apartment of Brig. Gen. Matthew Delaney, at 1026 Sixteenth street northwest, police were told yesterday. Burglars entered by forcing a rear window. The total loss was $227.

One of the watches was presented to Gen. Delaney by officers of the Philippine Health Service. It was valued at $100.

Man Pleads Guilty To Manslaughter.

On recommendation of the United States Attorney's office, Justice F. Dickinson Letts yesterday permitted William Watkins, colored, to plead guilty to a charge of manslaughter. Watkins had been indicted on a charge of first degree murder for cutting the throat of Wesley Phillips, colored, in a street fight last October. He will be sentenced next week.

INQUIRY OF WELFARE WORK TO CONTINUE, BOWMAN DECLARES

EDITH RILEY HEARINGS LIKELY TO BE RESUMED

Chairman Cannon Welcomes Presence During Quiz on Appropriations.

Representative Frank L. Bowman (Republican), West Virginia, has no idea of dropping his investigation into local welfare activities, he announced last night.

Next week he will press the House District appropriations subcommittee to permit him to question Director George S. Wilson of the Public Welfare Board when items involving that unit come up for consideration.

Later in the week he may ask Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, chairman of the special subcommittee named to look into the Edith Riley case, to resume hearings before that body.

Cannon Invites Bowman.

Chairman Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, of the House District appropriations subcommittee, said Mr. Bowman will be welcomed at the hearings covering public welfare appropriations.

Representative Palmisano said he will call a meeting of his special subcommittee whenever Mr. Bowman requests it. Mr. Palmisano, who says he has no intention of "shutting off" the investigation, reiterated he has not found any evidence that would warrant congressional action.

Trip to West Virginia.

Representative Bowman, before leaving last night on a week-end trip to his home district in West Virginia, made clear that he was not seeking to cut down public welfare appropriations.

"If the facts were known, it is probable they are not getting all of the money they need now," he added.

He said he merely wanted Dr. Wilson to give an accounting of how the funds are spent and question him on some details of the board's work.

Pierson Promotion To Captain Urged

Glassford Will Propose Change to City Heads, Probably Today.

The promotion of Lieut. Joseph W. Pierson to the rank of captain has practically been decided upon by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, who prepared a list of those he selected for promotion yesterday for the Commissioners' approval.

The captain's vacancy was created on the retirement of Capt. C. L. Piemmons February 1. This also caused vacancies along the line, and those slated for promotion are Sergt. A. S. Bohrer, of the First Precinct, to a lieutenant and Robert J. Fraser, clerk at headquarters, to a sergeant.

It is expected that Gen. Glassford will submit his recommendations to the Commissioners today in time for the action of the semiweekly board meeting and the promotions are scheduled to go into effect Monday. It is also expected that several vacancies in the detective bureau will be filled Monday, with the recommendations of Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives. Those that are being considered for the positions are D. H. Jones, of the narcotic squad, Precinct Detective M. J. Mahaney, and H. G. Wanamaker, of the liquor squad.

Suicide Attempts Futile Four Times

Police Say Man Finally Tried to Hang Himself in Cell.

A man police say has attempetd to end his own life four times since Sunday was back in Gallinger Hospital last night after he had made the third attempt in a cell at the First Precinct station. He had gotten out of Gallinger Hospital yesterday morning.

The man, who gave his name as William McArthur, 36 years old, alias William Smithfield, was arrested yesterday morning in a restaurant near Twelfth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest on a disorderly conduct charge.

Precinct Detective Paul Ambrose said he was making the rounds of the cell block last night and found McArthur hanging by his shirt, which he had knotted about his neck. On the way to the hospital police said he tried to throw himself from the patrol wagon. McArthur, police say, swallowed poison twice Sunday.

Alertness of Child, 4, Saves Life on Street

A 4-year-old boy clung to the front fenders of an automobile which struck him last night and probably saved his life. But his action did not prevent his receiving a cut about his ear and a possible fracture of the left hip.

Thomas Burns, of 906 Sixth street southwest, ran in front of the automobile of Albert H. Seeley, 45 years old, a steward at the Corinthian Yacht Club, as it was passing the boy's home, according to police. The child's head struck the front headlight of the car, but he clung to the fender and prevented the wheels from passing over his body.

The boy's father, a soldier attached to the Army War College, and Seeley took Thomas to the War College dispensary. He was later transferred to Walter Reed Hospital.

HARMONY IS SOUGHT IN TRACTION MERGER

Capper Group Will Meet Today on Plans; New Opposition Seen.

Another effort to harmonize differences that have cropped up on the proposed traction merger will be made at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon by Senator Arthur Capper's Senate District committee.

William McK. Clayton, representing the Federation of Citizens Associations, is holding out for universal free transfers and additional assurances of reduced fares for school children.

Richmond B. Keech, people's counsel, thinks the whole bill drafted by the Public Utilities Commission ought to be thrown into the discard and a simple resolution authorizing a merger, but devoid of details, introduced in its stead.

Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, and the presidents of the two street railway lines are not kindly disposed toward either the Keech or Clayton proposals.

Renewed opposition is anticipated from local sightseeing companies, who charge the railways in maintaining a chartered bus service are in effect "in the sightseeing business." They ask amendments restricting operations of the new company to street railway and bus lines.

C. U. Publication Staff Are Guests at Banquet

The managing board and staff of the Tower, Catholic University weekly publication, were guests of the university last night at a banquet in the University Club. Joseph M. Murphy, director of public relations, and the Rev. F. P. Cassidy, moderator of publications, were the principal speakers.

Keys were presented to the members of the staff: Ben M. Morgan, editor; Nicholas J. Chiascione, news editor; Malcolm D. O'Leary, business manager; Lawrence H. Hartnett, managing editor; Thomas F. McGrath and Joseph T. DeBettencourt, sports editors, and Ralph F. Wolf, circulation manager.

Hoover Signs First District Legislation

One Act Permits Assessor to Testify in Condemnation Trials.

The first two local measures to pass the Seventy-second Congress became law yesterday, when President Hoover signed bills qualifying the tax assessor to testify as an expert in condemnation cases, and relieving the District of certain ministerial duties.

The act making the tax assessor eligible to testify on condemnation values, met with some opposition in the Federation of Citizens Association, and was opposed on the House floor by Representative John J. Boylan, who held it unfair to citizens whose property was taken by the government.

Tax Assessor Richards told House and Senate committees the measure would prevent certain real estate interests from getting unreasonable prices. The second measure signed by the President will enable the commissioners to dispense with some routine functions, empowering the secretary of the board to sign official papers.

Ohio Governor Is Guest Today of Princeton Men

Gov. White of Ohio will be guest of honor and speaker at a luncheon of Princeton Alumni in the Army and Navy Club today. Col. Courtland Nixon is president of the alumni body.

The Ohio Governor is a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. He will speak at the Woman's National Democratic Club tonight.

Sheppard Does Not Favor Return of His Old Dry Act

Senator Morris Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, author of the Sheppard act that made Washington legally dry three years before national prohibition, yesterday said he would not join any movement to place the old act again on the statute books.

He declared himself whole-heartedly in sympathy with the so-called "home raid" bill of Senator Robert B. Howell (Republican), Nebraska, but declined to comment on liquor conditions here, of which he said he had made no study.

At hearings of the Senate District committee Tuesday, representatives of the National Civic League testified the Sheppard act has never been repealed, and asked the Senate to pass a resolution indorsing the old law, rather than enact the Howell bill.

Senator Sheppard said yesterday that the Corporation Counsel's office long ago declared the old law no longer in force and the courts have adopted this view in their decisions. He pointed out that it was designed to fill a different need, and sections of it have been outmoded by enactment of the Volstead act.

Radio Engineers Hear Talk by Bureau Expert

E. G. Lapham, of the Bureau of Standards, spoke on "Piezo Oscillators for Standard Frequency Transmission" at a meeting of the Washington section of the Institute of Radio Engineers last night at Continental Hotel.
